Associations Loose Blast At Operation Of Chest

Minority Report Charges Public Was Misinformed During Drive

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

An accredited, six-member committee of businessmen and civic leaders yesterday detonated their long-delayed blast at the Community Chest Federation here, calculated to shake it to its foundations.

The six, who smoldered in silence throughout the past Chest fund-raising campaign, made public conclusions and recommendations of their study of Chest operations as a minority grouping of the 25-member Citizens Chest Survey Committee.

Officials of the Community Chest Federation, in general answer, pointed out that they expect to announce a plan for a new organization, replacing the Council of Social Agencies and the Community Chest of Washington, this week.

Specifically, they attacked findings and observations of the minority group, point by point, for 26 pages. Of some of the recommendations, they answered as "too general," "no supporting information," "may be possible, will be considered" and "not sure what this means."

"The Chest Federation," said its leaders, "is making every effort to keep constantly alert to public opinions, and, insofar as it has the power to do so, to help bring about such changes as may be wanted by the majority of contributors."

Representatives of the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Federation of Businessmen's Associations, the six reiterated their precampaign minority report, and refuted "misleading interpretations and statements presented to the public during and after the drive."

Report Asked Cuts

The minority report, issued last July, asked separation of the Council of Social Agencies from the Chest, the immediate dropping of 15 of its agencies from the Chest Federation, and the severance after one year of seven other agencies through absorption of their functions by public agencies.

In their own words and observations, the six concluded and recommended yesterday that:

1. The amazing lack of coordination between the agencies (comprising the Community Chest Federation) be corrected through an amalgamation of planning, control and fund-raising groups. No business organization could remain in business with the slipshod methods now employed.

2. The need for many of the workers in certain agencies is

Commodity Dip Fails to Depress Pay Raise Drive

By the United Press

Top labor union economists yesterday dashed hopes that this week's drop in commodity prices would take the steam out of the third round drive for wage increases.

Donald Montgomery, chief economic adviser to President Walter P. Reuther of the United Auto Workers (CIO), and Boris Shiskin, top AFL economist, said the dip had had no effect on the cost of living. They doubted that it would have any effect before spring contract negotiations.

Both said they saw no reason for unions to modify their demands on the basis of the price drop thus far.

Shiskin asserted that the market dip "is a very temporary adjustment."

Montgomery said Reuther has promised to trim the union's 25 cents an hour wage increase demand if by the time contract talks get underway prices are substantially lower.

'Epic Airmanship'

68 Safe, 1 Dead as Plane Lands After Engine Bursts Over Sea

Bunnell, Fla., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—An Eastern Air Lines Constellation carrying 69 persons landed safely with one motor gone and another afire today in an epic feat of airmanship directed by famed flier Dick Merrill after an engine exploded while the huge plane was flying over the open sea.

A steward was killed when a propeller blade or other fragment from the disintegrating engine ripped through the fuselage.

Winthrop Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, jr., was among the 63 passengers who included three infants in arms.

DICK MERRILL
Directs landing

The only casualty in addition to the steward was a woman passenger, Mrs. Carl Greenbaum of New York, who fractured an ankle in jumping from the plane after it landed. She was taken to Halifax Hospital, Daytona Beach.

The fire in the engine was quickly extinguished but only a gaping gouge in the wing marked the place where one of the four motors had exploded.

"Took Both of Us"

Merrill, gray-haired veteran of many a narrow escape in the air, said that he and the regular pilot, Capt. W. E. Johnson, were at the controls when the engine exploded and "we both flew her on in—it took both of us, I tell you."

"The passengers were all calm, and everything worked very nicely," Merrill said. "Johnson is one of the finest captains who ever flew a plane."

He said that at one point "it looked like we were going to have to ditch it and I gave a bearing on where we would go down. We were 32 minutes from land at the time."

The shaken but thankful passengers praised the crew for courage and skill in bringing down the crippled southbound airship.

The co-pilot was R. G. Burstrom, of Miami. Others of the crew were flight engineer N. H. Turner and attendants W. F. Hoy and T. P. Foltz. Foltz was the man killed.

Merrill was riding as a "check" pilot in a jump-seat directly behind the regular pilots when the inboard engine exploded.

The safe landing ended two hours of frantic suspense. The Coast Guard had reported erroneously the four-engined plane had plunged into the sea far off the Florida coast.

The plane was bound from Boston and LaGuardia Field, New York City, to the Miami-Palm Beach resort area with a capacity load. The normal load for Constellations is 56 passengers and a crew of four.

[Captain Johnson told the Associated Press a loud "whoof" made by air rushing out of the pressurized cabin was the first indication of trouble.

Flying at 22,000 Feet

[The big ship was about 130 miles due east of Brunswick, Ga., at 1:11 p. m., he said when he heard the sound. The plane was flying at 22,000 feet.

[Captain Johnson said he radioed immediately the plane was in trouble and made preparations to abandon it if necessary. The ship was turned toward land and began to descend.

[Meal service was under way in the plane at the time, he said. Johnson said he and Captain Merrill were at the controls and flew it in together. The first field spotted was the former Navy field here and the plane circled at 3;20 p. m. and landed soon afterwards, he said. The field is one of the few in this vicinity which would accommodate the large craft.]

Pound to Hold Value

Edinburgh, Scotland, Feb. 7 (AP).—Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, today said Britain must have Marshall Plan aid or "disaster" will result.

"The position so far as our balance of payments is concerned is definitely worse than it was six months ago," he said.

"The Marshall Plan does offer us a way through our difficulties, which it is impossible to see without it."

He said Marshall Plan aid would enable Britain to stop drawing on her gold reserves—"all that now stands between us and disaster."

An official announcement disclosed Britain had only 100 million dollars left of her $3,750,000,000 American loan of 18 months ago.

Britain has drained 618 million dollars worth of gold out of the sterling area's reserves since September, in order to buy imports.

Sir Stafford addressed workers in the Scottish National Savings Committee. He reiterated the government's intention not to devalue the pound in step with France.

"No one can tell of course what the future may bring—" he said. "All I can say is there is no present intention whatever of devaluing sterling in terms of other currencies, and the best way to prevent this ever happening is for us to prevent inflation and achieve a balance of our overseas payments."

Eisenhower Steps Down For Bradley

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Lanky, grizzled Omar N. Bradley, General Eisenhower's chief lieutenant in whipping Germany, yesterday replaced his old boss as commander of the United States Army.

In a simple ceremony at the Pentagon, "Ike" stepped down and swore in "Brad" as his successor. Praising Bradley as "a great American and brilliant soldier," Eisenhower made his own valedictory brief.

"I have no long, stuffy farewell to the troops," he said. "I just want to say—thank God I've been one of you, you've done a great job."

President Truman, members of Congress and the top "brass" of the armed service were present at the change of command. Afterward, Mr. Truman pinned a decoration on Eisenhower's breast—a third Oak Leaf Cluster for the Distinguished Service Medal.

Earlier in the day, Ike told a farewell press conference that he would spend most of the next few months "in and around Washington" writing his memoirs. He reports as president of Columbia University in May.

Until then, he will stay on in chief of staff's quarters at Fort Myer, except, possibly, for a short fishing trip to Florida.

There was almost a complete absence of military pomp at the Pentagon ceremony. President Truman, Eisenhower, Bradley and Army Secretary Royall marched single file into the latter's office, packed with guests.

Eisenhower Reads Oath

The two officers pivoted to face each other and raised their hands. Eisenhower read the oath and Bradley said "I do."

"With those words you have a job," Eisenhower said, grinning.

Royall handed the new Chief of Staff his commission and declared that he would "be a worthy successor to a great Chief of Staff." Mr. Truman then decorated Eisenhower for "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service as Chief of Staff."

The President handed Ike a

FBI Accuses Six of Plotting To Bomb Venezuelan Capital

By The Associated Press

The Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday announced six arrests in the transporting of two surplus Navy planes to Nicaragua "to be used in a bombing mission" against a Latin-American country.

Venezuela last week complained that two planes were flown from the United States with the presumed intention of attacking Caracas, Venezuela's capital.

The FBI announcement said the six were charged with violating the Neutrality Act, which prohibits export of certain items including aircraft without a State Department license.

Those arrested were listed as: Edward Browder, jr., Harry A. Snow, Charles B. Pavlicek, Kenneth J. Newcomer, Henry K. Baker and Capt. Olin D. Mason.

Browder, a native of Amarillo Tex., was said by the FBI to have recruited the group to fly the planes to Central America, while he remained in the United States.

The two big four-engine B-24 bombers were flown from Bush Field, Ga., to Puerto Carezas, Nicaragua, on January 26.

The Nicaraguan Embassy announced Tuesday that two planes had been taken into custody. This followed a protest from President Betancourt of Venezuela to Nicaragua that the planes had left the United States. Betancourt spoke of a "foreign plot" to prevent the inauguration of President-Elect Gallegos on February 15.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the planes in the case "were

'Little Guys' Unanimous For Rule Bill

All 24 Witnesses At Hearing Favor Auchincloss Plan; Suggest Changes

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

The little guys who have heard their home town, Washington, described as democracy's capital of the world spoke with a single voice yesterday before Congress—"We want to be citizens, too."

Political beliefs of the organizations they represented were to the right, to the left, and mostly in-between. But all 24 witnesses in the day-long session before a joint congressional subcommittee agreed they wanted the Auchincloss Home-Rule Bill.

Most had suggestions for minor changes. Witnesses, however, agreed their recommendations could wait until their right to vote for local government officials was restored.

When the hearing was over, Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) of the House District Committee declared he was "absolutely" in favor of the bill.

Stull Contradicts Reilly

"It is my fervent hope and belief that the question of local home rule for the District will be settled before the end of this Congress," he said.

House leadership officials were reported to have promised an early debate.

One surprise witness asked to be heard to rebut testimony by John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade, who indicated Friday that his organization opposed home rule.

The witness was Harry N. Stull, former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations and a member of the Board of Trade committee which studied the bill.

Reilly, said Stull, was "misinformed" when he testified the committee was opposed to home rule. "Apparently, he did not understand what the committee had done . . . It strongly indorsed the principles of the Auchincloss plan, although there were differences among ourselves on some of the provisions."

Auchincloss "Disturbed"

Stull admitted that the board directors could reject its committee's recommendations.

"I am disturbed to have the testimony of the president of the Board of Trade questioned by a member of one of his committees," said Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), father of the bill.

Benjamin C. Sigal, president of the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, said he had listened "with some amazement" to opposition by the three District Commissioners.

"They had no sound argument," said Sigal. "These Government officials have no horror at all of taxation without representation. They seem more concerned with representation without taxation."

Jesse B. Manbeck, secretary of the District Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution and the Central Suffrage Society, brought applause when he cried: "For 74 years we have been de-Americanized here in the District. We should Americanize the District of Columbia at least before we get too far afield in trying to Americanize the rest of the world."

Dixie Leaders Warn Truman On Race Stand

Southern Governors Demand End to Attacks On White Supremacy

Wakulla Springs, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP).—The Conference of Southern Governors gave the Democratic national Administration an ultimatum today to cease attacks on "white supremacy" or face full-fledged revolt in the South.

The conference adopted unanimously a resolution by Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, setting 40 days as the limit for a new meeting of Governors to review developments.

The conference rejected an alternative proposal by Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, which called for a meeting of Southern Democrats March 1 to consider a bolt from the Democratic Party. The resolution failed for lack of a second.

It also ignored a resolution by Gov. James Folsom of Alabama, who advocated support of "favorite son" candidates pledged to uphold traditions of "white supremacy" in the Democratic National Convention.

A special committee of Governors will give "careful consideration" to problems arising from President Truman's program of civil rights for Negroes. The committee will recommend "joint and common action" to make the South's displeasure heard in Washington and in the top councils of the Democratic Party.

Moscow, Feb. 7 (NYHT).—The American occupation commander in Austria has been notified officially by a Soviet general in Vienna that Russian soldiers will act "in self-defense" in the event of further incidents between American and Soviet troops in Austria, it was reported today.

A Vienna dispatch by the Soviet official news agency Tass said Soviet General Tzinev had informed the American commander in writing that he was holding the latter responsible for a number of armed attacks which, he charged, had been made by American military police on Soviet soldiers.

General Tzinev requested severe punishment for those Americans concerned.

D. C. Girl, 4, Burns to Death As Father 'Rescues' Clothing

Judith Gill's Charred Body Found in Room; Brother Is Rescued

A 31-year-old father lay in Casualty Hospital yesterday, wracked with the pain of burns and dazed by loss of a daughter he thought he had saved from their burning home.

In another part of the hospital, grief probed cruelly through the curtain of opiates given his hysterical wife—mother of the 4-year-old girl who burned to death.

Their only other child, a 5-year-old son who was slightly burned when his father carried him through the flames, was being cared for by neighbors.

That was what tragedy of a Friday midnight fire left of the Wilson P. Gill family, of 3967 East Capitol st.

Circumstances of the little girl's death sharpened their grief. Gill, a Navy Yard worker, groped in frenzy through the smoke and heat, grabbed hurriedly at the bundle of clothing he thought was his daughter.

He raced down the stairs, placed the bundle in the snow and rushed back into the house to get the son.

It was not until he reached safety with the son that he learned the girl, Judith, was still in the house. His face, arms and shoulders seared, he was forcibly restrained from re-entering the house.

Rescue Squad Effort Fails After Gary Chew's Body Is Recovered

Four-year-old Gary Chew drowned yesterday when he slipped and fell into a swift water race near his family trailer in Temple Trailer Village near Alexandria.

Members of Alexandria Fire Department Rescue Squad No. 1, who answered the call at 12:49 p. m., worked with a resuscitator on the boy's body for an hour after the accident.

Gary's father, Jack Chew, a Navy chief optician at the Naval Gun Factory, gave this story of the tragedy:

Despite a warning to stay away from the race, which supplies water to the Alexandria Water Co. filter plant, Gary and a 3-year-old playmate, Arthur Smith, had gone there to play.

Standing on the icy bank of the 12-foot-wide race, Gary slipped, crashed through a rim of shore ice and sank. Arthur ran home and his parents called the rescue squad.

Pvt. L. W. Devers of the squad said rescuers saw one of the child's gloves floating about 50 feet downstream, chopped through the ice there and recovered the body with grappling hooks.

The squad applied the resuscitator to the limp body and continued working while an ambulance carried the boy to Alexandria Hospital. He was pronounced dead at about 1:50 p. m.

D. C. Schools Feel First Impact Of Bumper War Baby Crop

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The District school system is feeling the first impact of the bumpr crop of war babies.

For the District school officials who have been harassed by part-time education for more than 20 years, these war babies just mean more trouble.

Enrollment figures for the semester which began last week show that the number of Negro students on part-time has been cut in half during the past year. By contrast, the number of white students on part-time has been tripled during the past 12 months.

School officials point out that part-time education actually has seesawed back and forth during the past two decades between the white and Negro schools.

New construction and transfer of under-used white schools in the older areas of the city to Negroes has sharply reduced the number of part-time Negro students and the over-all total of part-time students. School officials now expect to eliminate overcrowding in the Negro schools just in time to deal with an acute crisis in the white schools.

The comparative figures on part-time schooling are revealing:

| | Today | Year ago |
|---|---|---|
| White ........ | 1258 | 418 |
| Negro ........ | 3508 | 6743 |
| Total ....... | 4766 | 7161 |

As the wave of war babies hits the first grade, it automatically forecasts overcrowded junior high

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Grain prices met the first resistance to their four-day plunge yesterday, but not before some retail food costs had felt the influence of their decline.

Some food chain stores in the East and Midwest will display at least four staples—bread, flour, lard and a few pork cuts—tomorrow at a cent or two lower than their prices yesterday. And predictions of further and deeper slashes came from many quarters.

A Pittsburgh meat packer said meat would be cheaper this week than at any time in the last three months. Mark Pickell, secretary of the Corn Belt Livestock Feeders Association, saw a downward "major, long-term price trend."

Declines of 20 to 25 per cent in commodity prices within nine months were predicted by A. W. Zelomek of New York, president of the International Statistical Bureau.

"Inflation's Back Broken"

"The back of inflation has been broken," the Associated Press quoted him as saying at Cincinnati, "but it will take people a few months to realize it."

The case for lower pork prices has been bolstered not only by a declining hog market but by consumer resistance to high retail costs which has piled up supplies in wholesale warehouses. During last week at Chicago hog prices dropped 90 cents, to $23.75, compared with $24.85 a year earlier.

The Associated Press reported that wheat prices fluctuated wildly on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, closing 9 cents lower to 4½ cents a bushel higher. The sharp descent in oats was halted, but corn generally continued to plunge.

One Chicago food chain official explained why the decline in wheat prices was reflected so quickly in retail prices. "The food situation," he said, "is highly

Housewives Hope To Save Few Pennies

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The plunging commodities market of the past week will save a few pennies of Greater Washington's family food budget—if the householder uses large quantities of flour and lard.

A survey of grocers, bakers and other purveyors of food staples indicates that the crash in commodities, heard around the Nation, was hardly felt here, and will make little or no immediate difference in prices for local consumers.

Only flour felt the shock directly. Some retail stores cut flour prices by 4 cents on a 5-pound bag yesterday and others are expected to follow suit this week—if the grain market stays down or continues plummeting.

Lard Price Drops

Lard went down 3 to 4 cents in some super markets. There was some question, however, whether the lard drop was connected with the Commodities Exchange slump. Lard is not a major table item in Washington, according to the food handlers.

Higher Living Costs Laid to Democrats

Price Pegs Out

Aiken Group Drafts New Farm Plan

By The Associated Press

A long-range farm program that would allow consumer food prices to decline when food surpluses developed was advocated yesterday by a Senate Agriculture Subcommittee.

The larger the surplus the lower would prices be allowed to go.

At the same time, the program would be designed to assure farmers a fair share of the national income.

The program differs sharply from the present one. The latter tends to maintain inflexible prices. That is, the minimum price is the same, regardless of the supply.

Share Not Guaranteed

Further, the present program merely assures producers a minimum price for their products—a guarantee that may or may not give the farmer a proper share of the National income.

The new program was drafted by a subcommittee headed by Senator Aiken (R., Vt.), who has long been a leader in farm matters. A bill embodying provisions of the program is expected to be introduced in the Senate tomorrow. Aiken said he would press for its passage this session.

The program also would have as one of its goals a high level of farm production at all times.

Devices such as acreage allotments and marketing quotas to restrict or curtail production would be used only as a "last resort." Instead, when surpluses tended to arise, the Government would seek to encourage consumption by means of subsidizing consumption by low-income families and by diverting extra supplies to school lunch programs and industrial byproducts.

It also would provide for Government "incentive" payments to farmers for carrying out soil-conserving and rebuilding practices that land-owners would not be able financially to carry out without public help.

A main feature of the program is that dealing with Government financial support of farm prosperity. It holds that farmers should be guaranteed a fair share of the national income, perhaps 15 per cent on the basis of present conditions. Further, each farm crop or product should be assured a proper share of the farm income.

The program also would (1) extend benefits of the Government's social security system to farmers; (2) help farmers find ways of reducing their production costs; (3) encourage development of the owner-operated family type farm as the "basic ideal" for agriculture as contrasted with corporation-type farming; (4) protect farmers' right to engage in cooperative marketing and purchasing cooperatives, and (5) encourage development of better schools, hospitals, and recreational facilities in rural areas.

Sen. Taft Accuses Administration of Political Moves

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) accused the Democratic Administration yesterday of a deliberate attempt to keep prices high for political reasons.

The idea, he said, is to "create an air of false prosperity" for the presidential election campaign.

Taft said he could put no other interpretation on the advance announcement of Secretary of Agriculture Anderson that the Government plans soon to buy 50 million bushels of wheat.

Anderson disclosed this at a news conference Thursday after corn and wheat had dropped the legal limit of 8 and 10 cents a bushel for two days in a row.

Usually the Government's buying intentions are kept secret.

The announcement by Anderson was followed by a brief rise in wheat. But yesterday's market closed with the legal limit drop for the third consecutive time.

Taft said he thought Anderson took an unusual course to boost sagging prices.

"The Administration, which talks about bringing prices down, is afraid they actually will come down," the Ohioan said. "Of course, they think their only chance of winning the November election is to keep prices up and create an air of false prosperity."

Senator Buck (R., Del.) said he was "completely confused" by Anderson's action. He said the Banking Committee had spent much time on President Truman's request for price controls and "now we find the Administration trying to push prices up."

Republicans, generally siding with Taft, have blamed the Democrats for the high cost of living. The Democrats, led by the President, say the Republicans helped make it serious by knocking out the OPA.

competitive and we have to act fast for this reason."

Although these retail price cuts were confined to specific items and in general were small, they were directly attributable to the action of the commodity market.

The Kroger Co. at Cleveland announced its 20-ounce loaf of bread would sell tomorrow at 14 cents instead of 15. Brockelman Brothers, operators of a chain of markets in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, cut their 25-pound bag of flour 17 cents, from $2.33 to $2.16.

Reductions of 5 cents a pound for lard were announced in the East and Midwest. Bacon prices were cut from 2 to 8 cents a pound in Chicago and Memphis. At Minneapolis, millers' price of flour dropped 60 cents in three days, bringing the type sold for home consumption to $7.30 per 100 pounds.

Among those who saw reason for optimism in the present trend was Paul S. Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, who said "unless other cost factors, such as labor" offset lower commodity costs, "a halt to the upward price movement is indicated."

Officers of the American Federation of Grain Processors (AFL) took another tack. In a letter to 21 presidents of grain and commodity exchanges yesterday they warned of even lower commodity prices as a consequence "of the strike which is being forced upon us." The union has been negotiating with millers for a new union-wide basic contract with a February 10 strike deadline.

Government economists here were inclined to be slightly less optimistic than many in private business. Requesting anonymity, they said they doubted if retail food prices would match the current market decline. The slump in futures quotations, one said, would have psychological value since it would "strengthen consumer resistance to high prices."

One highly placed individual who failed to find cause for rejoicing in the market decline was the Republican chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Representative Clifford R. Hope of wheat-growing Kansas.

Hope called on the Commodity Credit Corporation to resume wheat-buying activities at once "before prices are further demoralized."

be deeper and over a longer period than the past three or four days to affect bread production costs.

Butter climbed another ½-cent yesterday, after jumping 9 cents in three days. The upward movement of butter was unrelated to the downward movement of grain, local grocers said. Several confessed they didn't understand the continued rise in butter despite strong consumer buying resistance, any more than they could make heads or tails out of the sudden skid in commodities.

Meat, fresh-killed poultry and eggs are expected to hold firm to present prices during the coming week. Cold-storage chickens may come down in price a cent or two, but the Washington area for the most part likes its chicken fresh killed.

Food men appraised the past week's abrupt drop in the commodities with caution. They agreed that prices have been too high and that an orderly retreat would be beneficial to retailers as well as to consumers. Most grocers contacted in yesterday's survey felt that the downward trend in grain prices would quickly level off.

CCC Bought Wheat Through Wednesday

Chicago, Feb. 7 (AP).—George Bradley, head of the local office of the Commodity Credit Corporation, today said his office had bought wheat Monday through Wednesday of this week but had bought none on Thursday or Friday. The office regularly is closed on Saturday.

"We were out of the market during December, and wheat prices went up," Bradley said. "We reentered the market in January and prices have been going down since the middle of that month.

Bradley Takes Staff Post

silver cigarette box, a gift of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. It had Mr. Truman's and the Joint Chiefs' signatures engraved on it.

"Marshall to Eisenhower to Bradley—that's the finest team I know," the President commented.

Following the three-minute ceremony, the participants moved across the hall where a battery of newsreel cameras, radio and television instruments were set up. There they went through it all again. Royall then entertained the President and top defense chiefs at lunch.

Bradley, known as the "GI's general," is the thirty-sixth man to head the American Army. A West Point classmate of Ike's he will be 55 years old on Thursday.

Eisenhower's retirement will leave only one of the wartime five-star generals or admirals in an active military command. Gen. Douglas MacArthur still is commander in the Far East.

Manpower Warning

The retiring Chief of Staff warned of the "seriousness" of the present Army manpower situation. Lack of sufficient volunteers has reduced the Army 100,000 men under required strength.

He proposed extra pay for men serving in Korea, Okinawa, Saipan and a few other "undesirable" spots, as a recruiting incentive. Many men will not join up now for fear they will get such duty, he said.

Eisenhower also urged a pay boost for officers—"especially those in the grades of lieutenant through colonel"—and said it was important that Congress pass pending legislation to make the WAC a permanent part of the Army.

Praising the work of the women soldiers, he said they must all be discharged by June unless the bill passes. This will make the manpower shortage even more acute.

Ike was asked what was the high point of his long military career. Pondering a moment, he replied that he supposed "the natural thing would be to say it was when the surrender agreement was signed." This occasion, however, had been anticipated and "discounted" somewhat in advance, Eisenhower added.

"I think the greatest moment was when I got the word that the 82d and 101st Airborne Divisions had landed and gone into action on the Cherbourg peninsula," he went on.

The Normandy invasion chief disclosed that he had ordered this paratroop and glider operation "over the bitter opposition of the experts." They had argued that he would be "murdering" two divisions of young Americans, but he had decided the job could be done and was vital to the success of the landing.

In revealing that he will use most of his leave in writing his memoirs, before reporting to Columbia, Eisenhower said it was the one chance in my lifetime to build security for my family—the soldier leaves the Army as poor as he enters it."

He declared he would write the book himself, with the aid of a "ghost."

Pauley Quits As Assistant To Royall

Edwin W. Pauley, whose commodity dealings have been under investigation by a Senate committee, resigned yesterday as special assistant to the Secretary of the Army.

Twice the target of Republican probes, the former Democratic National Committee treasurer is going back to his Hawaiian estate and his personal business interests, he states.

Pauley has served as an assistant to Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall on industrial mobilization and procurement procedures since September. He called attention to the fact that his appointment had been accepted on a temporary basis and declared that his work is now complete.

Royall accepted the resignation, with commendation for Pauley's "outstanding work," which he said will "prove invaluable in promoting greater efficiency."

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) a member of the Senate committee which has been investigating Pauley's commodity speculations, commented that the timing of the resignation "was very, very good."

"With wheat futures dropping," he added, "it's an opportune time for great speculation, which he may now do legally and ethically."

The California oil man has contended throughout the probe that he has had no "inside information" from his Government contacts and that there is nothing illegal or unethical about his market activity.

Pauley acknowledged that he made close to one million dollars in the past 24 months from market trading.

Two years ago, he was nominated by President Truman as Undersecretary of the Navy. After a long Senate fight over his oil connections, Pauley asked that his name be withdrawn.

Proposal to End Controls On Rooming House Rents Hit

By The Associated Press

A proposal to end rent controls on all boarding and rooming houses brought sharp protests yesterday from Senators Fulbright (D., Ark.) and Maybank (D., S. C.).

Both said they would insist that this provision be removed from a Senate bill to revise and extend the rent control law.

They are members of the Senate Banking Committee which has agreed to vote February 16 on the bill prepared by a five-member subcommittee—after possibly redrafting it.

"That provision would boost the rents for thousands of college students, most of whom are G. I.'s," Maybank said. "That's one control that certainly must be retained in full force."

Fulbright said in a separate interview that he would oppose the provision for similar reasons. "Very few college students can afford to pay more rent," he said.

Fulbright was a member of the subcommittee which handed the controversial bill to the full committee Friday. But he said he had not approved this and certain other controversial sections.

Chairman Tobey (R., N. H.) of the full banking committee said no agreement could be reached at a closed-door session late Friday.

Present rent controls expire February 29, leaving less than two weeks after the next committee session for Senate and House debate and presidential consideration of the extension.

The controversial bill was reported to the banking committee by Senator Cain (R., Wash.). He claims backing of Senators Bricker (R., Ohio), Buck (R., Del.) and McCarthy (R., Wis.).

It would extend rent controls until April 30, 1949, and retain the present system of enforcement by the Federal Housing Administrator and local boards. These points are not in dispute.

Florida-Alaska Flight Tests Troops' Reactions

By The Associated Press

The Army and the Air Force have whisked 32 soldiers from Florida's sun to Alaska's ice to see what would happen if a "possible future war" should require such a sudden shift of climate.

An Army Medical Department announcement yesterday said the Air Force soldiers are volunteers, from McDill Field, Fla., selected for high physical and mental capacity. They made the jump between the two weather zones in less than a day and, upon arrival, set up an outdoor camp, a situation simulating a crash-landing in the Arctic.

ERP Progress Noted In Western Europe

Estimates High

Europe Gold Hoarding Evaluated

Western Europe may have less than 700 million dollars in hoarded gold instead of the three billion often quoted, Treasury Secretary Snyder indicated yesterday.

In a letter to Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Snyder discounted these unofficial estimates which have been made in connection with the European Recovery Plan. It seems the Bank of International Settlement at Basle once estimated two to three billion in gold was privately hoarded by the people of France, a figure referred to by the Harriman Committee and by several members of Congress.

Many Congressmen have maintained that these hidden holdings should be discovered and used to help pay for European recovery. Snyder said there were estimates indicating the total amount of gold hoardings in western Europe at the onset of World War II to have been "considerably less than one billion dollars." Then he cited other statistics which he said "might indicate" that since the outbreak of the war about 300 million had moved from private hoards into monetary reserves" rather than the contrary."

The Treasury head added that "while the actual amount of private gold holdings is unknown, until contrary convincing evidence is produced it may be inferred that the actual figure is much smaller than has been indicated in some of the popular discussions." He noted also that private gold holdings in France, as in most other countries in Europe, have been illegal for some years.

Snyder's letter, submitted at the request of Vandenberg's committee, said, in effect: "We can't prove these holdings don't exist but neither can it be proved they do. In any event we don't believe it."

French Cabinet Approves Customs Union Program

London, Feb. 7 (AP).—Several European countries indicated progress today toward integration of their economies in line with the self-help ideas of the Marshall Plan.

The French cabinet approved tentative plans for a customs union with Italy for free exchange of goods between the two countries. It will not be effective before a year or more. Italian experts recommended the plan.

Negrtiations by France and Britain with Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg—who already have a customs union known as Benelux—for economic, political and military pacts also were reported making progress. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault reported to his cabinet on the negotiations today.

Bevin Opens Talks

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin initiated the discussions with his proposal for a "Western Union" of European countries.

In Stockholm, Swedish Foreign Minister Oesten Unden explained Sweden had not rejected the Bevin plan if it is chiefly a question of "cooperation between the western European nations on the basis of the Marshall Plan which Sweden supports."

He said Sweden would not join any big power bloc, however, "either through an explicit treaty of alliance or a tacit agreement on joint military action in case of a conflict."

Norway Takes Part

Foreign Secretary Hallvard M. Lange told the Norwegian Parliament in Oslo that Norway "in taking part in the European recovery plan did not join any political bloc."

He said Norway had no choice but to join in the Marshall Plan as Norway's foreign trade was largely directed toward the United States. He expressed regret Russia and other eastern European countries were not participating.

The World Federation of Trade Unions leadership, meeting in Paris, turned down a proposal of the British Trades Union Congress for a meeting in mid-February to consider European labor's part in the Marshall Plan. The WFTU said the proposed meeting was opposed by Russian, Italian, Chinese, French and Latin American delegations.

Britain Signs For Argentine Meat, Grain

Buenos Aires, Feb. 7 (AP).—Argentina announced today an agreement to ship meat and grain to Britain throughout this year.

A four-hour conference presided over by President Juan D. Peron broke a 10-week deadlock between Argentine and British negotiators, mostly centering around prices.

Unofficial sources said Argentina will send 190 million pounds sterling worth of food to Britain in exchange for 40 million pounds worth of machinery, coal and petroleum plus British-owned railways in Argentina valued at 150 million pounds. (The pound is $4.)

This would mean in effect that Britain is trading 12,000 miles of railroad plus the manufactured and mineral products for one year's supply of Argentine meat and an unstated amount of wheat.

During the final stages of the deadlock, Argentina had halted the issuance of meat export permits.

Britain is expected to pay at least 14 per cent above the present price of 11 United States cents per pound for prime chilled beef. Brittain may pay enough extra to cover increased production costs estimated as high as 40 per cent.

The railroads include the Argentina Great Southern, the Buenos Aires Pacific and the Western Railway.

Hospital Council To Hold Hearing

The Hospital Advisory Council will hold a public hearing on the District's hospital construction plan Thursday at 2 p. m. in Room 5023, Municipal Center, Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, announced yesterday.

The hearing will be restricted to discussion of the recent survey and construction plan released late last month. Requests for permission to appear should be made to Dr. Ruhland by Tuesday, he said.

Spain Unblocks Assets

Madrid, Spain, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Assets in Spain of 22 European and Far Eastern countries, frozen since the start of World War II, were unblocked today in an apparent effort to restore normal trade as soon as possible after the reopening of the French-Spanish frontier.

France, Italy, Belgium and a number of Soviet satellite nations were affected by the order, which economic circles said was also linked to the reportedly imminent agreement on German property in Spain, valued at about nine million dollars.

France, Spain Agree to Open Frontier Again

Paris, Feb. 7 (AP).—France and Spain announced tonight their common frontier, closed nearly two years, would be reopened Monday midnight.

The move ran into immediate difficulties with French labor unions and Communists.

The French Federation of Railwaymen announced its men would run no trains into Generalissimo Franco's Spain. Communist organizations and the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor protested.

The Communist newspaper, L'Humanite, declared the French government acted on "orders from Washington."

The Socialist newspaper, Le Populaire, said France was supported in an anti-Franco policy by only a few other countries. France dislikes the Franco regime as much as ever, the paper added. But the policy was hurting France economically.

The border was closed on March 1, 1946.

Travel and postal, telegraph and telephone communications will begin Monday. Ships can use each country's ports and planes can use airports again. The agreement also applies to the French and Spanish protectorates in Morocco and to Algeria in North Africa.

The announcement said the two countries would negotiate a new trade pact immediately. Transit freight cannot be resumed across the border until February 29 because of technical arrangements.

Congressmen Urge Aid for Iran Army

Capture City

Communists Make Gains Near Mukden

Peiping, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Communists are actively besieging Suchiatun, a railway town only 7 miles south of Mukden, progovernment Chinese press dispatches from Manchuria said today.

Communists were acknowledged to have captured Liaoyang, 35 miles south of Mukden, and Taian, 55 miles southwest.

(The Chinese Communist radio said the government's Fifty-fourth Division was "wiped out" and this completed destruction of the new Fifth Army.)

Anshan, 50 miles southwest of Mukden, was admitted to be totally isolated, its electric power cut off and many people dying of cold.

Communists also infiltrated the outskirts of Yinkow, 110 miles southwest of Mukden, preventing use of that seaport for government reinforcements.

Government troops from China proper were said to be in a severe battle with strong Communist forces 100 miles southwest of Mukden.

Elephant Meat Costly

Berlin, Feb. 7 (AP).—Siam, only Berlin elephant to survive the war, died last year. Now a zoo attendant has been brought into a German court charged with stealing and selling a 20-pound slice of Siam at an excessive price—400 marks. That is $40 at the military rate.

Little to Stop Move By Russia, Report On Near East Says

By The Associated Press

With a wary eye on Russia, a House subcommittee urged yesterday that the United States build up the Iranian army and obtain air supremacy in the Mediterranean and Near East.

The recommendations were part of a report by Representatives Bolton (R., Ohio) and Merrow (R., N. H.), members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. They toured the areas last fall.

Russia's "paramount aim," they said, is to "drive us out of western Europe and the Mediterranean basin." If Russia should move south, they said, "there is little to stop the advance."

Greece, Turkey and Iran, the subcommittee figured, might hold the Reds for a little while, but American airpower would be needed to protect the Mediterranean and Near East. So, it said:

"The United States would do well to take steps to achieve and maintain air supremacy."

Also in terms of "United States self-interest and security," the report said, "we should do well to consider seriously the question of building up the Iranian army." This would put Iran on the same basis as Greece and Turkey in getting American aid, it said.

(The Russians have accused the United States of building up a strategic military base in Iran; the State Department has called these accusations "distorted" and "false.")

Six Charged In Bomb Plot

to be used in a bombing mission as a part of a revolutionary plot against the present government of a Latin-American country."

The FBI said the pilots "were to get $30,000 each for the flights and were to fly to Nicaragua and other Central American points, refuel and return to the United States through Texas."

Hoover said that Mason and Snow, the latter described as a former RAF pilot from Amarillo and a member of the Air Reserve, were pilots of the two planes.

Browder was arrested at Miami, Fla., while Snow, Pavlicek, Newcomer and Baker were taken into custody at New Orleans. The FBI said that Mason is from Vernon, Tex., and has been absent without leave from Oliver General Hospital, Augusta, Ga. He is being returned to the United States by way of Panama by military authorities.

Complaints were filed Friday at Augusta against the six men. The maximum penalty for violation of the Neutrality Act is $10,000 fine and two years in prison. Bond of $25,000 was asked for Browder and $10,000 for each of the others.

Pavlicek was described as an inactive captain in the Air Force Reserve from New York, and copilot on one of the planes.

Newcomer and Baker, both of Augusta, were mechanics for the flights to Nicaragua, the FBI said.

"Mason arrived at Puerto Cabezas on January 26, but Snow was forced to land at Daytona Beach, Fla., due to radio trouble and did not arrive in Nicaragua until January 27," the announcement added.

The FBI said that two bombsights which were seized last week at Augusta, were "being held on Browder's instructions."

The FBI announcement said Browder was already out on bond on conviction in another case involving transport of military equipment. He has appealed a one-year sentence given him in Federal Court at Augusta December 2, on a charge of conspiracy to violate the law prohibiting theft of Government property, the announcement added.

"Browder was arrested by the FBI at Arapaho, Okla., on April 23, 1947, together with Karl John Eisenhardt of Baltimore for having transported 21 stolen Government machine guns in a B-25 plane from Daniel Field, Augusta, Ga., to Baltimore on April 13, 1947," it went on.

Korea Swept By Sabotage; 27 Are Killed

Seoul, Korea (Sunday) Feb. 8 (U.P.). Twenty-seven persons were killed, 10 injured and 150 others arrested during the wave of strikes, sabotage and violence which swept south Korea yesterday as a protest against the United Nations Commission now in Seoul.

An official announcement said the situation throughout the American zone had been "relatively quiet" since Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge imposed an 11 p. m. curfew and ordered arming of military vehicles late last night.

Meanwhile it was announced that three agitators arrested in Pusan were found carrying direct orders to instigate a three-day sabotage campaign. The orders were signed by the Communist-front South Korea Labor Party.

The first sign on anti-Americanism occurred in Seoul where an unknown number of leftists attacked an Army post exchange warehouse, withdrawing only after the American guards fired warning shots into the air.

Bands of youths ransacked the offices of the right-wing daily newspaper Dongsasha Ilbo, upsetting type and smashing presses.

Ten civilians and one policeman were killed at Samnang Jin, 20 miles west of Pusan, when mobs overthrew seven police boxes.

Police reinforcements were being rushed to Miryang, 25 miles northwest of Pusan, where rioters killed one policeman and kidnaped two others.

Taegu, capital of Kyongsang Pukto, where 53 policemen were killed in riots in October, 1946, was comparatively quiet although three schools and two factories were reported striking.

General Hodge, American military commander in South Korea, received a letter Friday which said the movement would be a three-day campaign.

Arabs Cut Off Arms Of Jew in Palestine

Jerusalem, Feb. 7 (AP).—Arabs cut off the arms and an ear of one Jew and killed a second one in an attack on a convoy in Upper Galilee today.

The maimed Jew died en route to a hospital.

The deaths of seven Jews and two Arabs raised the fatality total since partition November 29 to 1089.

Iran Reported Improving $10,000,000 U. S. Loan

London, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The Moscow radio broadcast a Tass dispatch from Teheran, Iran, tonight quoting press reports that Parliament approved a 10-million-dollar loan from the United Sattes.

Recent Tass dispatches from Teheran said Parliament was considering a bill to accept a 25-million-dollar credit from the United States for the purchase of American war surplus material.

Britain Held Responsible

Lake Success, Feb. 7 (AP).—The United Nations Palestine Partition Commission served notice today Britain must protect police arms and ammunition in the Holy Land until the United Nations take them over.

The five-member commission expressed dissatisfaction with Britain's decision that the large stores, which include machine guns and armored cars, simply will be left for the commission when it assumes control.

[The U.N. action came amid reports from Damascus, Syria, that Arab military leaders have scheduled their "D-Day" against Palestine's Jews for some time next week. The long-discussed major Arab offensive will begin on an organized scale at an unspecified time during the week, informants told the United Press.]

The U. N. commission formally requested Britain to agree to preparatory steps looking toward establishment of Jewish and Arab militia in the projected countries.

Greeks Lay Inertia Of Army to U. S.

By Homer Bigart

With the Greek Army, Feb. 7 (NYHT).—Here in northern Greece near the Albanian frontier, a handful of American officers have probably the weirdest assignment ever handed out. They are supposed to advise the Greek army to get out in the mountains and fight the guerilla forces of General Markos. But they have been told to say it with supreme sweetness, tact and diplomatic indirection.

It's a tough job because nobody yet has discovered how to tell an army tactfully to get off its fanny and fight.

The only weapon the Americans possess is the threat Congress might withhold guns and money unless the Greeks show more fighting spirit. But the Greeks know a bluff when they see one. They know Greece is indispensable to the Marshall Plan.

So the Greek government takes the line American help is too little and too late, there are not enough machine guns and artillery.

Forgetting that no one but a Greek has been killed or captured in this civil war, Athens says it's impossible to contain the Slav hordes with an army so small and poorly equipped.

The Athens press daily laments the rebels are better armed. This defeatist attitude is not really for consumption of foreigners and millionaire Greeks of Kolonaki Square who are squirreling away their gold in Switzerland and New York. Political officers have been heard preaching it to the troops.

In addition, every little village demands protection and has extracted from its political representatives in Athens a promise it shall be garrisoned. Consequently divisions are spread so thinly tha few units are free for action.

The Americans argue the best defense against raiders would be constant pressure on the main guerilla bases in the Pindhos Mountains.

This correspondent rode nearly 100 miles across rough mountain roads of Thessalis without hearing a shot. We started from Kozani, headquarters of the Fifteenth Mountain Division, accompanied by the division commander and two American officer . Lieut. Col. Marcus Adams, chief of the American military detachment stationed here, and Capt. Larry I. Welch. There were two truckloads of soldiers, an armored car and a truck loaded with sandbags which went ahead testing for mines.

Standing in the open cab of the truck, a Greek soldier scanned the lumpy road looking for telltale patches of disturbed earth. The road was terrible and although every village had swarms of idlers, no one worked on it.

Colonel Adams, a short chunky man from eastern Kentucky, who has stoically eaten every Greek dish confronting him, sat in a jeep with a Greek driver and Greek interpreter, scanning the terrain with a faintly disapproving eye. The interpreter was a mild bespectacled Athenian, more interested in poetry than in the Slav hordes pressing down from the north.

In a second American jeep was Welch, who had fought in Italy and is now serving as operations and intelligence officer on Adam's staff.

Beyond siatista, the road dropped into the valley of Aliakmon where the Greek army maintains a defense line against the rebels in the Pindhos Mountains, just beyond. We forded a few small tributaries where bridges had been blown by the guerillas, and passed villages where crowds of ragged children held their thumbs aloft in the Greek gesture of approval.

In the late afternoon we reached Kastoria, a handsome town straddling the neck of the peninsula jutting into a lake hemmed by high mountains. By Greek standards, Kastoria is rich—some 2000 Kastorians are settled in New York and send remittances home. Consequently, it speaks with authority in politics, and it was proper that Athens should send four British 25-pounders for its protection. Guns were emplaced on the high rocky summit behind the town and it was reached by a road built with funds from expatriate Kastorians living in Astoria, Queens.

Adams inspected the town's defenses and then drove westward to the village of Mesopotamia in the foothills of Grammos, where a brigade was stationed. The brigade commander, a fat squat colonel who apparently had just been aroused from siecka, said he needed guns and more guns. His outfit was fighting the guerillas constantly but the date of his last important engagement escaped him. His troops looked in better physical condition than the average American G. I. and seemed well equipped. Three American 60-millimeter mortars were in the village.

Adams asked the officer, "Is your battalion ready to fight?"

"We had four engagements last week, now we are resting," was the reply.

To the fat Greek colonel, who complained of the lack of machine guns, Adams said, "You have more machine guns than my outfit had against the Germans. Try to give the best you've got with what you have got."

Adams said it was his opinion the Greeks had enough guns and ought to show some get-up-and-go. "It's an old military axiom," he said, "that one should sympathize with a soldier only when his mother dies." Thus ended the first incursion of American officers into the theater

India Deposes Alwar Prince in Gandhi Probe

New Delhi, Feb. 7 (AP).—The investigation of the assassination of Mohandas Gandhi began reaching into high places today.

The government of India suppressed the administration of the small State of Alwar and summoned its prince and prime minister to New Delhi for inquiry.

An investigation was underway in the administration's alleged "support or connivance" in activities of the outlawed RSSS (National Volunteer Corps), and "its possible complicity in the assassination of Mahatma Gandhi and other serious crimes."

The Sikh prince, Maharajah Tej Singh, and the Alwar Prime Minsiter, N. B. Khare, already were in New Delhi.

India took over rule of the small state of one million persons and named a temporary administrator.

The 37-year-old maharajah directed the civil and military services of Alwar to cooperate fully. Representatives of India's princely states were reported to have concurred in the view there were prima facie grounds for taking the step.

One theory gained ground tonight that Narayan Vinayak Godse, held as Gandhi's assassin, spearheaded an India-wide conspiracy to kill leading Congress Party figures and government ministers with the aim of establishing an anti-Pakistan Hindu dictatorship.

(Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru disclosed two new areas of conflict between India and Pakistan. He said armed police from Moslem Pakistan had seized 43 square miles of rich Indian territory in Assam, which adjoins Burma.

(Other Moslem raiders from Pakistan killed 31 persons and burned 150 houses at Jaisalmer, 265 miles northeast of Karachi, the Pakistan capital, he said.)

(Conversations between the Indian and Pakistan United Nations delegations in New York were suspended until Monday while the opposing parties studied compromise moves to end their dispute over Kashmir. That case will come before the Security Council Tuesday.)

Order to Sink Subs Denied by Tsalclaris

Athens, Greece, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Deputy Prime Minister Constantin Tsaldaris today denied reports published by all four Athens afternoon newspapers yesterday that orders had been given to all Greek ships to sink any suspicious submarines seen in Greek waters.

The naval ministry said the report did not originate with it.

D. C. Schools Feel War Baby Impact

schools six years hence and envisages overcrowded high schools nine years away.

School officials are trying against odds to meet this problem. They know the logic of the birth statistics, the building permit applications and other evidence of city growth. But these efforts are being crippled by a budget which does not allow them to make land purchases and start construction ahead of the wave of new students. In fact, school officials insist that available building funds must be used to catch up with a population already in the schools.

The first of the wartime babies entered the kindergarten this school year, increasing kindergarten attendance by more than 500 students above last year.

Next September, these 500 additional students will be ready for the first grade.

Dr. Carl Hansen, associate superintendent in charge of white elementary schools, said that the increase in first grade students will be even greater since a number of parents do not enroll children in kindergarten.

District birth rate figures indicate how great the increases will be in coming years.

Ten years ago, 12,988 babies were born in the District. In 1942, the figure jumped to 21,317 and in 1943 to 23,352. Children born in 1942 will be ready for the first grade in September.

In 1944 the number of babies born in the District was 22,856, in 1945, 22,954 births were recorded, and in 1946, 25,929.

The birth rate increased again last year to 28,622. These children will be entering schools five years from now.

Board of Education fund requests to construct buildings have been consistently cut by Congress and the Commissioners. In the 1948 budget the Board of Education request for $6,658,180 was trimmed to $2,783,380. In 1949 the board asked for $11,600,000. The Commissioners have cut that to $4,335,683. This request now goes before Congress to face additional cuts.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning said that there are now in the works enough new schools or additions to schools to take care of schools presently on part-time schedules.

The school administrator, though, would like to be constructing right now the buildings that he knows will be needed within the next five years.

Dr. Corning estimates that it will take $50,000,000 to satisfactorily solve the problem in both Negro and white schools.

That amount is the minimum needed, he said, to provide full-time instruction now, prevent half-time instruction within the next several years, and rid the city of obsolete school buildings that are costly to operate.

A Board of Education request to the Commissioners to seek this money from Congress as a loan has gone no further than the Commissioners.

A request for $3,650,000 that the board wanted to begin construction on 11 school buildings or additions to avoid anticipated part-time schooling was cut from the 1949 budget by the Commissioners. Also trimmed away was a request for nearly two million dollars to buy land for 19 school sites.

The Commissioners approved 1949 capital outlay requests of $4,335,683 to complete 11, buildings already under construction and $20,000 for one site.

All but one of the 11 buildings are needed right now to end part-time education. A building on the site also is needed at once.

Part-time instruction in the while schools is at present in the southeast area across the Anacostia River. It is a fast growing area of large apartment units and moderate homes.

The Kenilworth School has 136 students on part-time, Kimball 379, Beers 340, Congress Heights 218 and Patterson 285.

Among the 11 approved projects are an addition to Kimball and to Beers. The site in the vicinity of Oxon Run is for a building to relieve the Congress Heights and the Patterson.

But by time these buildings are completed, Dr. Hansen estimates that the school population will have increased beyond their capacity.

Figures compiled by his office show that 976 permits for new housing in the area have been granted in recent months and applications are pending for some 2000 more.

D. C. Ranks 25th in 80-City Teacher Pay Survey

A survey of average salaries paid to teachers in 80 of the Nation's largest cities shows that Washington ranks twenty-fifth.

The survey, conducted by the research division of the National Education Association, compares the average salaries currently paid in cities with a population of 100,000 or more.

Detroit was in first place with an average annual salary of $4133; second was San Francisco with $4028, and third was Fort Wayne, Ind., with $4000. Washington, in twenty-fifth place, pays an average salary of $3398.

The survey was held at the request of Eber B. Jeffery, president of the Washington High School Teachers Association and history teacher at Coolidge High School, and Dr. Regis Boyle, president of the Education Association of the District and journalism teacher at Eastern High School.

Inquiries were sent to 92 cities and replies were received from 80 Reports were not received from New York, Jersey City or Newark.

The top 30 cities and average salaries paid are:

Detroit, $4133; San Francisco, $4028; Fort Wayne, $4000; Minneapolis, $3900; South Bend, $3843; Los Angeles, $3810; Long Beach, $3790; Philadelphia, $3775; Milwaukee, $3742; Oakland, $3713; Hartford, $3668; Pittsburgh, $3640; Toledo, $3617; Chicago, $3616; Takoma, $3614; Seattle, $3612; Cincinnati, $3603; Gary, $3575; Trenton, $3550; Indianapolis, $3500; Cleveland, $3466; Springfield (Mass.), $3465; San Diego, $3440; Boston, $3419; Washington, $3398; Sacramento, $3396; Baltimore, $3380; St. Louis, $3371; St. Louis, $3371; San Antonio, $3369; Denver, $3369.

Eyewitnesses Tell How Propeller Tore Through Fuselage of Imperiled Airliner

(Here are eyewitness reports from passengers aboard the Eastern Air Lines Constellation which landed safely in Florida after an engine exploded over the ocean.)

Bunnell, Fla., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. M. Ariowitsch of New York, said tonight they were sitting amidships having lunch aboard the big airliner when "there was a crash and the door leading to the pilots' compartment flew open."

"It was then we saw the starboard propeller of the first (inboard) motor had come off, and passed through the forward compartment just aft of the pilots' compartment.

"The next half hour was an agonizing period. The crew members were marvelous."

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Schwalce of the Bronx, New York, were traveling with their two small daughters, Evelyn 2 and Susan 4.

"We were in the forward cabin within a few feet of where the propeller went through, striking the flight attendant and killing him, and barely missing our two children," Schwalce said.

"There was no sound indicating anything was wrong until he heard a terrific crash and saw the attendant fall. Once the crew recognized the danger they handled the situation marvelously. We thought we were going down."

John J. Meyer of Leominster, Mass., said, "The crew did wonderfully. The passengers were amazingly calm. There was not a single hitch. When the propeller went through the side of the plane it was the first sign of trouble. The whole engine just dropped off."

A young mother, Mrs. Harold Kaufman of Springfield, Mass., said she clasped her 8-month-old baby to her breast during the emergency flight.

"I don't want to budge an inch now," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Slotnick of Newton, Mass., wore orange-colored life jackets they said were passed out to passengers by the crew members.

"We were sitting on the right side well up forward and an attendant had just placed a dinner tray on my lap when there was a slight jarring sensation and a bad crash," Slotnick said. "I looked out of a window and just as I glanced up the rest of the motor fell away and down. It was then we noticed the side of the ship had been split open by the propeller. We were glad to get back on land."

The List of Passengers

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Eastern Airlines tonight released the following revised list of persons aboard its Constellation airliner which landed today at Bunnell, Fla.

Flight Attendant G. P. Folz was killed aboard the plane when a piece of an engine or propeller pentrated the fuselage and struck him. There were no serious injuries.

Other members of the crew were Capt. W. E. Johnson, Pilot R. G. Burstrom, Engineer N. H. Turner and Flight Attendant W. J. Hoy. H. T. (Dick) Merrill, famed round-the-world aviator, was aboard as a check pilot. All were stationed at Miami.

The revised passenger list follows, with initials and addresses given where known:

Max Ariowitch, New York City; Mrs. Max Ariowitch; A. D. Berkey, Chicago; G. Graff, New York City; Mrs. G. Graff, W. Beinecke, New York City; Mrs. W. Beinecke, Mrs. F. Wallach, New York City; Miss A. Budach, New York City; J. Bronzo, New York City; Miss Peggy Flynn, Rochester, N. Y.; Miss A. Lawless, Rochester, N. Y.; F. Fitterer, South Amboy, N. J.; Mrs. H. Florea, New York City; Carl Greenbaum, Mrs. Alice Greenbaum, New York City.

H. Harris, Mrs. H. Harris, New York City; Mrs. Violet Kaufman, Springfield, Mass.; Candice Kaufman, same address (child); Mrs. Ida Webber, Springfield, Mass.; M. Schwalb, Mrs. M. Schwalb, Miss S. Schwalb, one child, the Bronx, New York City; Mrs. J. D. Tarcher, New York City; Karl Louis, New York City and Omaha, Nebr.

Cyrus M. Johns, Mrs. Cyrus M. Jones, New York City; Miss Herd, White Plains, N. Y.; Miss N. Kleinsmith, Huntington, N. Y.; Leo Ritter, New York City; Miss N. Woodbury, New York City; O. White, Mrs. O. White, New York City; Mrs. G. F. Smith, New York City.

Winthrop Rockefeller, New York City; Miss E. Riordan, Harrison, N. J.; E. Steinlauf, Mrs. E. Steinlauf, New York City; S. Barruch, Mrs. S. Barruch, New York City; Mrs. J. Freirich, one child, New York City.

M. Gross, New York City; D. Lyons, Mrs. D. Lyons, Lowell, Mass.; H. J. Leen, Mrs. H. J. Leen, Miss Leen, Dorchester, Mass.; D. Streich, Buffalo, N. Y.; R. Moore, Mrs. Ann Moore, West Roxbury, Mass.; D. Roble, Quincy, Mass.; J. J. Meyer, Leominster, Mass.; H. C. Barron, Boston, Mass.; J. Connery, Beverly Farms, Mass.; Eli Slotnick, Mrs. Eli Slotnick, Newton Center, Mass.; H. Marks (believed traveling with the Slotnicks); Miss S. Gawlick, Lowell, Mass.; L. Hutchinson, Mrs. L. Hutchinson, Caribou, Me.

Passenger Describes Moments Before Landing

Bunnell, Fla., Feb. 7 (INS).—Carl Greenbaum, a passenger aboard the EAL plane which landed near here today, told of the tense, dramatic flight over the ocean and the last-minute landing at Bunnell Field.

"The motor blew out at about 18,000 feet and we dropped down to about 250 feet at one time, and there was that ocean, right below us," he said.

Greenbaum said all passengers leaped or walked through all doors and auxiliary exits to safety escaping the growing fire from the motor. The right wheel blazed suddenly upon landing, but no one was reported burned.

"My wife jumped off too," he said. "But she broke her left foot and fractured a rib.

"It's an awful feeling when you find yourself over the ocean with one motor burning.

"One of the crew came back through the plane—when we were over the water—calmly telling us to fasten our belts for a crash landing.

"I don't know how the rest of the people felt, but I was plain scared.

"After we started into the landing field, though, everybody sort of calmed down.

Ocean Crash Is Averted

carried a crew of six. When the big airliner came down on a tiny CAA strip near here with a wild screech of its brakes, two of the motors were out, witnesses said.

T. E. Lovelace, a construction worker who was running a machine on the Flagler Beach road near the airport, saw the big ship coming in for the emergency landing.

"She was just barely skimming the trees, and the motors were roaring raggedly," Lovelace said. "She circled the field three times and then I saw her drop down behind the tres. I knew there might be a crash so I went to the airfield.

"The plane was sitting at the far end of the field, listing to one side because two tires blew out when the pilot braked to prevent running off the strip. The passengers were standing around dazed and white faced.

"They seemed unable to believe they were alive.One woman had jumped from the exit and broke an ankle. There weren't any steps for the passengers and they all scrambled out in a hurry because one motor was still smoking."

Lovelace said the passengers told him that when the engines started going out over the ocean the crew advised them to prepare for an emergency landing in the water. They offered up what they thought might be their last prayers, he said.

Lovelace said the crewmen hardly knew how they got the plane ashore.

The plane had checked in with an "all is well" report to Jacksonville.

A few minutes later, its radio reported that one engine was afire. The pilot radioed that he was going to "ditch it" at a point about 150 miles due east of Daytona Beach.

Then the radio fell silent and nothing was heard further from the plane until it turned up here. More than a dozen Coast Guard planes, four cutters, a patrol chaser and two Army B-17's fanned out over the ocean in a desperate hunt.

A heavy land plane, a Constellation could stay afloat only a few minutes in the sea.

The radio apparently went out because of the engine trouble and there was no way for the crew to advise they were still aloft and limping toward land.

Merrill, in 1937, was named world champion aviator by the International League of Aviators. In 1936 he made a record-breaking flight across the Atlantic with Actor Harry Richmond.

3 Die as C-47 Falls On Hop From D. C.

Saluda, N. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—At least three men—probably four—were killed and six were injured late today when an Air Force C-47 cargo-type plane crashed in a fog into Mount Page 2 miles from here.

A survivor said nine soldiers and one sailor were aboard. Persons living nearby pulled the six men from the burning plane.

Seaman 2/c Thomas Gamble, 19, of Columbia, Ala., just discharged from the Navy and en route home, related the plane left Washington, D. C., this morning. He said he didn't know where the plane was scheduled to land.

Had Been to Bolling Field

The flight plan in the plane showed it was from the Greenville base and had gone to Washington's Bolling Field on the ferrying trip and was returning to Greenville.

Gamble was the least injured of the six. He reported none aboard had a chance to parachute to safety, since the crash came unexpectedly in the fog.

Saluda is about halfway between Greenville, S. C., and Asheville, N. C.

Other Survivors Listed

At the hospital, the survivors other than Gamble were listed as:

Maj. William E. Byers, pilot, Greenville Army Air Base; home, Clemson, S. C. Capt. George W. Hueners, Greenville Army Air Base. Capt. Harry V. Beck, Fort Benning, Ga.; home, Morgantown, W. Va. / T/Sergt. L. S. Bussler, Greenville Army Air Base, and S/Sergt. S. F. Holmes, Maxwell Field, Ala.

All except Gamble were burned.

Army P-80 Jet Explodes, Burns in Illinois

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 7 (AP).—An Army P-80 jet plane exploded and crashed into a cornfield 3 miles west of here today and burned up so completely that only fragments of flesh and wreckage remained.

There were no survivors. The P-80 usually carries only a pilot.

4 Army Men, Hitch-Hiker Die in B-25 Bomber Crash

Jasper, Ark., Feb. 7 (AP).—Icing conditions and fog may have caused a B-25 bomber to ram a nearby mountain last night, killing all five occupants—four Army men and a "hitch-hiking" sailor.

Sheriff Russell Burdine said a log found in the charred wreckage recorded "icing conditions" and fog.

Apparently off course, the plane was bound from Wright Field, Ohio, for Little Rock—150 miles southeast of here.

Wright Field identified the four Army men as First Lieut. Phillip Novick, 26, Brooklyn, N. Y.; First Lieut. Charles W. Thomas, 26, Zephyr Hills, Fla.; First Lieut. Felton R. Roberson, 27, Little Rock and Osborne, Ohio, and M/Sergt. George L. Hatjes, 28, Dayton.

Identity of the "hitch-hiker" was not established.

Rockville Firms Yield $750 to Safecrackers

Safecrackers made off with more than $700 early yesterday from two Rockville, Md., business establishments.

First entered was the Atwell Cleaners at 332 Commerce lane, where $60 was taken from a safe. Entry was gained by breaking a back door, according to Detective Sergt. G. W. Linthicum of the Montgomery County Detective Bureau at Rockville.

A safe in the nearby Rockville Motor Co. was then broken open after entry was gained through a rear window. A $500 bill and $150 in smaller denominations were taken.

Correction

In an Associated Press story from Bridgeport, Conn., concerning Mrs. Nina Gore Vidal Auchincloss Olds, The Washington Post inadvertently referred to her father as "the late Senator Gore." Senator Gore (D., Okla.), who served in the Senate from 1907 until 1921 and again from 1931 until 1937, is very much alive and lives at 1661 Crescent pl. nw., and maintains a law office in the Union Trust Building. The Washington Post regrets the error.

By Fianna Fail

Eire Voting Upset Laid To Inflation

Dublin, Feb. 7 (AP).—Fianna Fail Party leaders today blamed postwar inflation for the election setback that wrecked Eamon de Valera's majority in the Dail (parliament).

But despite moderate gains by Labor and the leftist Republican (Clann na Poblachta) Party, there were few signs in Catholic Eire of the strong Socialist swing that occurred in Britain and on the continent following the war.

De Valera's Fianna Fail emerged from Wednesday's election as still the largest party in Eire. Complete returns showed it won 66 of the 147 seats in the new parliament. The combined opposition won 76. A postponed election will fill the remaining five seats. The new Dail meets February 18 to elect a Prime Minister.

Pershing Gives $50

General of the Armies John J. Pershing yesterday contributed $50 to the District campaign for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. In a letter addressed to Edgar Morris, general chairman of the local committee, Lieut. Col. Ralph A. Curtin, the general's aide, said General Pershing wished to add his support to the March of Dimes.

Truman Gets an Ultimatum From Dixie

of Arkansas and Folsom of Alabama joined Thurmond in castigating Truman's program.

They took exception to demands for antilynching and anti-poll-tax legislation, an end to racial segregation, and enactment of a permanent commission to bar racial discrimination in employment.

Said Governor Laney of Arkansas: "We have been betrayed by the leadership of the Democratic Party. We have been sacrificed to the gods of disillusionment . . .

"If these (laws) are to be imposed upon us, I for one would rather they come from a Republican than from the party for which I have given my allegiance."

Want Two-Thirds Rule Back

Laney added: "Mild measures will not get much hearing."

Folsom and McCord urged the Southern Governors to fight their battles within the Democratic Party. They said the South should especially insist on return of the historic two-thirds rule for nomination of party candidates.

Caldwell of Florida said the South had only itself to blame for allowing repeal of the two-thirds rule in 1936, when President Roosevelt was renominated.

"I will favor any report to recapture the two-thirds rule," said Caldwell, "but I am not interested in any measure which would elect a Republican."

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, conference chairman, said a morning meeting discussed education—and only education.

He said the conference hoped to evolve a program for regional colleges for specialized training, jointly supported by several States, and for undergraduate as well as graduate study. Some colleges would be for whites, and others for Negroes.

Atomic School Suggested

Development of a South-wide school of nuclear energy, with a cancer research laboratory in connection with the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) atomic energy plant, was suggested as a possibility of the regional education plan by President C. E. Brehm of the University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

J. Tyler Miller, head of the Virginia school system, said his State is developing a school of international affairs that might be open to all Southern students on a cooperative interstate basis.

"White Supremacy" Foe Enters Ga. Governor Race

Macon, Ga., Feb. 7 (AP).—A former Navy chaplain, ousted from his church for denouncing "white supremacy," today announced his candidacy for Governor of Georgia in the Democratic primary. He is the Rev. Joseph A. Rabun. Last year he was removed from his pastorate at McRae, Ga., the home and political stronghold of Herman Talmadge, Georgia's outspoken advocate of white rule.

Form Conference

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The formation of a Midwestern Governor's Conference was announced today by the chief executives of Iowa, South Dakota, Michigan and Kansas.

Gov. Robert Blue of Iowa, chairman, said the first meeting of 12 Governors was planned for November or December to try to agree on common action on problems of the breadbasket States."

Proof Reds Back Wallace Is Claimed

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee yesterday turned up what a member said is definite proof that the Communist Party is backing Henry Wallace for President.

Representative McDowell (R. Pa.), called on Wallace to "either accept or denounce this Communist support."

(Wallace has suggested all presidential candidates disavow the support of (1) those who advocate the overthrow of the Government and (2) those who suppress civil rights.)

An informant in Atlanta sent the committee what McDowell called a membership "whipper-upper" on the letterhead of the Communist Party of Georgia.

It say a third party headed by Wallace has the Republicans and Democrats worried. It says, too:

"Will the Communists control the third party? No.

"But the Communists, as loyal American citizens, tremendously interested in their neighbors and fellow Americans, will not be denied the privilege of helping the new party. They will contribute their experience and devotion to the working class to this new party."

Speaking generally, McDowell said he thinks it is "a pretty good idea" to compel any political candidate either to accept or reject Communist Party support.

A law which would require this was recommended to an Un-American Activities Subcommittee yesterday by Louis Waldman, a New York labor union attorney.

D. C. Girl, 4, Dies in Fire

cording to Detective Sergt. A. D. Clark.

Still unwilling to accept the tragic realization, Gill thought his daughter had followed him back into the house when he returned for the boy.

Gill had been out visiting for the evening, leaving a niece, Pattricia Steele, 16, of 1363 Maryland ave. ne., with the children. He returned about midnight, relieving the baby sitter.

Deputy Fire Marshal Capt. Roy Warfield said Gill told him he had dozed off on a couch and was awakened by smoke and heat.

The four-family, two-story brick and shingle temporary housing unit flared rapidly. "I never saw a fire spread so quickly," Captain Warfield said.

Also routed by the fire were Anthony J. Fusco and his daughter, Camilla.

By mid-morning yesterday, members of the Stoddard Recreation Association and neighbors of the two families had started collecting food and clothing for them. Among those aiding are Sanford Souser, president of the association, who lives at 3969 E. Captol st., and Mrs. Thelma Hanna, 29 Stoddard pl. se.

Fire on 3d St.

A two-alarm fire at 1005½ and 1007 3d st. se., at about the same time routed two persons — Mrs. Sarah Hall and her brother, Lawson Morgan, of the 1007 address. There were no occupants at the upstairs address. Captain Warfield said the fire may have started from a basket of hot ashes placed against the back of the house.

Vance Duncan, 28, a Navy Department employe of 1014 22d st. nw., fought his way out of a flaming room about 4 a. m. yesterday when another roomer tossed him a fire extinguisher.

Duncan had suffered cut wrists and arms as he broke out a window to try a drop from the second floor. He was treated at Emergency Hospital and released.

Mosley Undertakes New Political Career

London, Feb. 7 (AP).—Sir Oswald Mosley, prewar leader of the British Union of Fascists, began a new political career today.

He made a speech saying his new "Union Movement" had started functioning and declared he was prepared, if necessary, to "meet force with force."

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older

THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Housing Defects Job for Builders

Baltimore, Feb. 7 (AP).—All faulty construction found in veterans' homes during an investigation now under way in Baltimore must be corrected by the builders, Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro said today.

D'Alesandro said City Building Engineer Paul A. Cohen had been instructed to make "a full inquiry.

The Mayor noted that "while only about 500 homes have been reported to date as defective, it is obvious this merely indicates a widespread condition."

An investigation was ordered by the Mayor after William J. Muth, vice president of City Council, supplied names and addresses of veterans who complained of faulty new homes.

D. C. Counsel Asks Nonresidents' Suit Be Dsmissed

Only pupils who attended District public schools before the passage of the July appropriations act are entitled to free tuition, Corporation Counsel Vernon West held in a motion filed in District Court yesterday.

The motion seeks dismissal of a suit brought last Sunday by parents of 37 pupils in nearby Maryland seeking to enjoin school officials from dismissing the children under the non-resident theory.

The plaintiffs maintain that the children were enrolled before passage of the act. The corporation counsel contends that the mere fact of enrollment is not enough.

Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts of District Court has restrained school authorities from dismissing the children pending a hearing tomorrow.

Manassas Club to Give Children 2000 Chicks

Manassas, Va., Feb. 7.—A project to furnish 2000 chicks to local boys and girls is being planned by the vocational guidance committee of the Manassas Kiwanis Club.

Twenty children wil receive the chicks about April 2 and will report five months later on the success the yhad in raising them.

Harrisburg-Baltimore Highway Plan Pressed

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 7 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Highways Department is pushing plans for a new four-lane, low-grade express highway between Harrisburg and Baltimore.

E. L. Schmidt, chief highways engineer, announced that a survey of the route for the proposed new road project is expected to get under way this year.

Schmidt said the road will follw a completely new route to avoid hills and wil not have more than a 5 per cent grade along its entire distance.

He said present plans call for the road to pass through York, Pa., with a viaduct carrying traffic over the railroad yards.

Rep. Folger Won't Run

Two Associations Loose Blast at Community Chest Fund Operations

questionable, while other agencies are understaffed.

3. There is reasonable doubt whether so many executives are needed in various agencies.

Centralization Urged

4. A central purchasing office be established to buy supplies such as food and other items used in quantity.

5. A central maintenance crew be established to maintain and repair equipments and buildings and to redecorate buildings.

6. The possibility should be explored of housing as many agencies as possible under one roof, as well as utilizing workers and equipment to better advantage. The rentals paid by many agencies are amazing.

7. Agencies should be reorganized to prevent wasteful overlapping and duplication of activities.

8. Pet projects, the creating of positions by the ambitions of a few people, as well as a less commercial atitude on the part of some agencies will better accommodate the duties required by the community.

Just a Beginning

The eight points were termed "only a few suggestions for improvement — there are many more."

"It would be well," said the six in joint statement, "to reexamine the attitudes of the Chest and the Council of Social Agencies, rather than to blame the minority report for the latest in a series of failures to raise enough money for the Chest."

Failures to meet fund-raising goals for the past four years, they said, should "awaken" the Community Chest to the fact that "the people of the District are not satisfied with the Chest—are not willing to donate money under the guise of charity to groups which cannot by any stretch of the imagination be of interest and benefit to the community as a whole."

"Those agencies which do have popular appeal, which have demonstrated again and again their usefulness and the need which exists for them, must not be penalized by the addition of unwelcome groups," they declared.

Survey Ignored, Charge

Except for a "meaningless proposed merger," the group complained, the Chest Federation showed "complete disregard of any recommendations made by the Citizens Survey Committee."

The survey committee, in majority report after a four-months' study, recommended "greater integration" between the Chest and the Council of Social Agencies and urged the setting up of specific qualifications for admission to the Community Chest Federation. A second minority group refused to join either division, claiming the majority report failed to iron out "crucial issues" while the first minority report was "seriously damaging" to Chest activities.

The minority report was signed by Mrs. Ernest W. Howard, John H. Connaughton and George L. Gregg of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Jerome B. McKee, Benjamin Striner and Louis F. Frick of the Federation of Businessmen's Association.

Yesterday's declaration was signed by all but Connaughton, who was replaced on the committee by Past President Clifford Newell of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The 15-page declaration assailed "many misconceptions deliberately foisted (on the public) by the Community Chest workers." Critics of the minority report, they said, "ignored the fact that the report was the outcome of conclusions on existing conditions . . . the committee did not create those conditions."

Explaining continued silence to attacks that they were "medieval, extreme, short-sighted and old-fashioned," the six said they chose to say nothing "during the drive."

"The two federations did not wish to have upon their conscience the thought that through their activities many people were caused suffering," they declared.

In a section devoted to "refuting statements made during the campaign," representative of the two federations branded as untrue these assertions:

1. That funds designated by donors for specific agencies go to those agencies.

2. That the Council of Social Agencies does not dominate the Community Chest.

3. That costs of raising Chest funds are declining.

4. That member agencies of the Chest are examined and voted upon annually by the board of directors. In this regard, they charged that "all the 58 agencies have been voted in as an entity for a number of years, with no review made or consideration given to present status."

5. That the Council of Social Agencies studies and recommends uniform services among the agencies.

6. That member agencies suffer as much as has been claimed by reductions in allotments due to the Chest failure to meet its fund-raising goal.

The group also touched upon findings of their initial study, in which they said:

1. Red tape of entrance requirements kept the Children's Country Home operating at two-thirds capacity.

2. The Jewish Community Center, recipient of $54,000 annually, held a "peculiar attitude" towards renting out unused space to relieve the burden of private contributors.

3. They were amazed at operating expenses of the Health Security Administration, including such items as $75,000 for salaries, $6000 for telephone calls, and $7000 for rent (1946 figures), and said "this agency should certainly bear a more thorough study."

4. The Animal Rescue League was voted outside the scope of Chest activities by 24 of the 25 members of the Citizens Survey Committee.

5. Agencies like the Foster Day Care and Counseling Association have been "practically discontinued all over the country" since the war.

6. The Legal Aid Society could be made self-supporting by charging a percentage fee on "monetary adjustments effected" by the society.

7. The Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club and the Washington Criminal Justice Association were both voted not necessary adjuncts of Chest operation by majorities of the full committee.

8. Activities and objectives of the Washington Heart Association "though doubtlessly fine and meritorious" do not conform to Chest policies.

9. Both the Washington Housing Association and the Washington Urban League are "too controversial" to participate in Chest solicitations.

10. The YMCA and YWCA (excepting their Negro branches) are "big business," can get along without Chest help, and only join "as a favor to the Chest."

The six members took special pains to praise the work of the Child Welfare Clinic of Children's Hospital, the Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing, the Travelers Aid Society and the Washington Home for Foundlings, but declared that the work of such organizations was the responsibility of the District, not of private contributors.

In conclusion, they declared:

"It is the sincere belief of the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Federation of Businessmen's Associations that if steps were taken to correct many conditions brought to light in their survey, adequate money would be raised to carry out the purpose and aims of the Community Chest."

Charges Answered

In answering statement released last night by Edward J. Keyes, executive director of the Community Chest Federation, each point in the minority group declaration was answered by the agency head responsible.

The statement said "common denominator" recommendations were taken from bot majority and minority reports of last July and incorporated in the newly-planned organization to be announced this week. These include, it said, recommendations of the new organization, change of by-laws of the Community Chest to give greater representation to the public, and release on a year-round basis of educational material about the Chest.

Concerning the minority group's eight points of observations and recommendations, Keys said he found "so little supporting material" therein to "interpret exactly what is meant."

In answer to the need for amalgamation, he said the new organization was aimed at that; of top-heavy and short staffing of agencies, he found the charge "too general to answer;" of doubt of need for so many executives, he said there was no supporting information to interpret the statement.

Keyes said a central purchasing office idea was tried but was stopped when found to be "continously opposed by local business firms;" that the organization would consider the recommendation for a central maintenance corps, and that the six members are "entirely right" in their suggestion that all agencies be housed under one roof "if anyone knows a building big enough and centrally located enough" at lower rental than the sum of all agency rentals.

Conclusion No. 7, of the minority, declaration, that agencies be reorganized to prevent wasteful overlapping and duplication of activities, Keyes declared, is being taken care of in the new organization. He said he wasn't certain what was meant by "pet projects," "ambitions of a few people" and "less commercial attitude" of point No. 8.

The Chest Federation, said Keyes, does not blame the Minority Report for the latest campaign failure, only for "contributing" to that failure.

Lee D. Butler, president, Community Chest of Washington, answered the statement on donor preference contributions to the Chest declaring that such pledges are specically earmarked for the agency designated and were so in the past campaign. Because of this, he said, the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club and the Washington Animal Rescue League will receive more in 1948 from the Chest than their reduced share of campaign underscription.

He said member representatives of the Council of Social Agencies do not vote as a bloc at board or trustee meetings, that they "often show sharp differences of opinions," and consequently any charge of domination by the Council is unfounded.

Two Factions Vie On Arlington Vote

County Democratic Committee And Legislative Group Are Split

With eyes on the calendar, two Arlington political factions are swapping paper punches over the issue of non-partisan local elections.

On one side is the County Democratic Committee, whose chairman, Harrison Mann, doubts "that the public good is being served" when major parties withdraw from County Board elections.

But the Joint Legislative Committee, which claims to represent 18 Arlington community groups, wants to keep the party label out of both County Board and School Board races.

By yesterday, each faction had accused the other of trying to "take over" and "control" local government by their stand.

Group Asks Answer

The joint committee yesterday telegraphed Arlington's three General Assembly delegates for an answer on an earlier request to introduce legislation setting up a county referendum on the issue.

Thus far, Committee Chairman T. Oscar Smith said last night, no answer has been received from the delegates. The General Assembly is due to pack up early next month.

The Joint Committeee emphasized yesterday that "more than half" of Arlington's population, made up of Federal workers, is prohibited from entering partisan elections by the Federal Hatch Act.

The committee statement said that the "small clique who control the Democratic Committee are planning to deal the Federal employes out of the picture," and enter their own nominee in next fall's county board election.

Would Enforce 'Agreement'

Prior to 1946, both Democrats and Republicans had put up candidates for the county board. But last fall, both parties agreed to keep the county and school board race nonpartisan.

The joint committee, in asking for enabling legislation, should like to make that "gentleman's agreement" manditory.

According to Democratic Committee chairman Mann, the group has not yet decided whether it will nominate "by a primary, mass meeting, or hold no primary at all" for next fall.

In a recent statement, Mann said County Democrats wonder whether the drive to eliminate party labels "isn't an attempt by certain cliques to take over and control the local government" after eliminating major parties.

Both the County and School Boards have endorsed the nonpartisan referendum.

Stafford Red Cross Quota Set at $890

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 7 (Spl.).—The Stafford County Chapter of the Red Cross has been assigned a quota of $890 in the anual drive, which opens March 1. Mrs. Edward Harrison of Falmouth has been named campaign chairman.

The Red Cross met jointly with the Stafford Public Health and Welfare Association last night to outline plans for the drive. The association adopted a resolution to sell its "TB Cottage" near Falmouth, formerly used for isolation of tuberculosis cases, and call off eye and dental clinics set for early spring because of a lack of technicians.

Programs to Mark Birth of Lincoln

General Grant to Discuss Liberator As Example to Average American

Programs will be held today to mark the 139th birthday of Abraham Lincoln February 12.

At 2:30 p. m., Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will be principal speaker at a program in the Lincoln Museum, 512 10th st. nw.

He will discuss "President Lincoln as an Example to the Average American." General Grant is a descendant of the Civil War general. Tomorrow's program will be sponsored by the National Park Service and the Washington Lincoln Group.

At 8 p. m. tomorrow patriotic groups will gather at the First Congressional Church, 10th and G sts. nw., for annual memorial services honoring the Civil War President. Among the participating organizations will be the Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Potomac, and Cushing Camp No. 30, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Among organizations assisting in presentation of colors will be the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Woman's Relief Corps, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Ladies of the GAR, Auxiliary to the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, United Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary, Lineal Society of the Spanish War, American War Mothers, American Legion Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, Gold Star Mothers, Blue Star Mothers, Ladies Auxiliary Washington Post No. 58, Catholic War Veterans Auxiliary, Auxiliary 104, Army and Navy Union USA, and Order of the Purple Heart Auxiliary.

Group Rejects Jewish Faith As Nationality

The executive committee of the Washington Chapter has indorsed the basic principles of the American Council of Judaism, it was announced yesterday.

These basic principles affirm that American Jews are Americans by nationality, with Judaism as their religion.

"On this basis, we proudly affirm our membership in the world religious community of Israel," the principles declare. "But modern Jewish nationalism is a misinterpretation of the spirit of the Jewish faith and a tragic reversal of the historic process of emancipation.

"Our homeland is the United States of America and we reject the concept that Jews are homeless unless they live in Palestine."

The declaration of basic principles was established at convention as a result of the United Nations approval of the partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states.

UMT 'Bottled Up', Legion Head Says

Some Congressmen Fear Vote on Issue, O'Neil Tells Parley

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 7 (AP).—James F. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, tonight championed universal military training as the foundation of national security in a public address climaxing a two-way conference of Legion leaders in Virginia.

He declared military training is the only hope for world peace as long as other nations continue to rely on national strength.

O'Neil charged the Legion-indorsed military training bill is beeing bottled up in the House Rules Committee by its chairman, Representative Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.) under influence of other Congressmen who want to avoid a vote on the controversial issue.

On leave from his post of chief of police in Manchester, N. H., O'Neil was honored at a banquet preceding his address. He was accompanied by his aid, Ernest Jones, Omaha, Nebr.

Copies of the Gold Star Honor Roll bearing the names of 6000 Virginians killed in World War II were presented O'Neil, immediate past National Commander Paul H. Griffith, Uniontown, Pa., Virginia Department Commander John A. Blakemore, Abingdon, and Herman U. Black, commander of Roanoke Post No. 3, conference host.

The presentation was made by Mayor Richard T. Edwards on behalf of Gov. William M. Tuck.

Charles W. Crush, Christiansburg, announced the legion-sponsored Boys State will be held at VPI July 16-24 this year. He said there will be facilities for 500 boys, 200 more than last year, and urged civic clubs and other organizations in each community to send boys to the Boys State. Crush is department chairman of Boys State.

A similar affair for girls, known as a Girls State, will be held again at Radford College. The cost is $15 for each boy and $20 for each girl.

To Start April 10

Republican Parley Set For Roanoke

Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 7 (AP).—Virginia's Republican State convention will be held Saturday, April 10, at Roanoke and will begin at 10 a. m., members of the Republican State Central Committee unanimously decided today after they had rejected bids of Lynchburg, Richmond and the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax area.

State Republican Chairman Robert H. Woods was named to head a committee on arrangements for the convention. Members of that committee will be A. D. Smith of Newport News, Thomas Woodward of Suffolk, Miss Phyllis A. Otey of Richmond, A. H. Zehmer of Dinwiddie, Mrs. Allene Hough of Roanoke, B. A. Davis of Martinsville, A. B. Sloenburger of Winchester, Kenneth Livingstone of Arlington and Robey Thompson of Abington.

Business transacted at the meeting for the most part concerned arrangements for the convention. The committee decided that one delegate would be allowed for each 100 votes or major fraction thereof cast at the 1944 presidential election with a minimum of one vote for any locality. Approximately 1450 persons will attend the convention.

Committeemen said that with the date and place of the convention set, it is now possible for localities to call mass meetings and for district conventions to be scheduled.

Among items to come before the convention will be selection of a State chairman and GOP candidate for United States Senate.

Fred W. McWane of Lynchburg was named chairman of the public relations committee to replace James P. Selvage who has left the State. Mrs. William B. Logan of Woodstock, a member of the GOP National Committee, was also named to the committee.

Animal Permit Action Deferred By Bladensburg

Final reading of a regulation which would require permits for keeping more than two domestic farm animals has been put off to the next regular meeting of the Bladensburg Town Council.

The council at a meetnig Friday also called a special meeting for 8 p. m. Thursday is the Bladensburg fire house for a public hearing on proposed new traffic regulations for the business section at Edmonston rd. and Defense Highway.

In another action, Gustav Ey, retired Army sergeant, was appointed part-time traffic police officer for the school area, at a salary of $50 a month.

Plans Are Pushed For Restoration Of Port Tobacco

LaPlata, Md., Feb. 7.—Plans for the incorporation of the Society for the Restoration of Port Tobacco were completed at a meeting of the group at the home of Col. Peter Vischer last night.

Robert Barbour, historian, explained that the group hopes to get its restoration program under way by enocuraging private investors to build in the original style of the old town. He said the St. Charles Hotel would be restored as an apartment hotel and dining room and the Charles County Courthouse rebuilt on the original site as society headquarters and a museum and library.

Officers elected at the meeting were H. Holland Hawkins, LaPlata, president; Colonel Vischer, first vice president; Frank B. Wade, Port Tobacco, second vice president; Gen. DeWitt Peck, Pomfret, executive secretary; Eugene K. Lloyd, jr., LaPlata, recording secretary; Mrs. Phyllis Barbour, Port Tobacco, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Alexander Barnes, LaPlata, treasurer, and Robert Barbour, Port Tobacco, historian.

The Navy Contributes to 'Zoo's Who'

THE ZOO CAN HAVE HIM—"Budhoo," not Bud who? puts on his act for a sailor visiting the National Zoo. The gibbon from Burma is among the jungle beasties donated to Dr. Mann's collection by the Navy

'OH, WHAT YOU SAID!—Civilization is fine for some, but this great crested cockatoo would rather be in the Solomons from which he came. For Wave Ruth Hanninen, the bird displays the brilliant feather head-dress which has given him his name

50-Year Appeal for Gifts Still Builds Up Capital's Zoo

By V. R. Montanari

Post Reporter

Back around the turn of the century, Washington's National Zoological Park, then a young and struggling institution, made an appeal that has brought results through the years.

The word was sent out through the State Department and the military services that any animals their personnel might pick up in foreign climes would be appreciated right here at the Zoo.

The response of the services, ranging from a gift of a rhinoceros from the seamy jungles of India to birds plucked from the icy shores of Antarctica, formed a tradition that has continued right down through World War II to the present.

Gifts Still Appreciated

Contributions of foreign service personnel have helped to build up the Zoo to the flourishing state it has reached in modern times under the directorship of Dr. William M. Mann. And though the collection is recognized as one of the best in the world now, authorities are still very grateful for the latter-day response to the appeal of almost 50 years ago.

Among the more recent acquisitions are the famed penguins brought back from the Antarctic by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Navy expedition last year. Five of these popular birds are still alive at the Zoo despite their high mortality in this germ-laden climate. In the Antarctic it's too cold for most germs to live, and the penguins don't build up much immunity.

Other winged residents of Dr. Mann's establishment include two great red-crested cockatoos—the first that this Zoo has ever had, and the only ones in the United States except for two given the San Diego Zoo by Admiral Halsey. The local ones were sent here by Maj. General Robert G. Breene from the Solomons, where he was engaged in operations against the Japanese in the recent war.

The birds don't exactly talk like parrots, but do imitate sounds and like to do considerable screaming on their own. Their life expectancy is greater than their keepers', Dr. Mann says.

A Hoolock gibbon from Burma, described by Dr. Mann as one of the greatest acrobats in the world, is another military contribution. He was brought here from Burma by Col. Donald D. Flickinger, famous in the Army Medical Corps as a parachuting doctor who saved many soldiers in the war by jumping to their aid.

Plays to Packed Houses

The gibbon, known as "Budhoo," plays to packed audiences by nonchalantly taking giant swings for half an hour at a time.

A flying phalanger, which looks like a flying squirrel but belongs to the opossum family, is another military conquest sent him by a returning lieutenant from Australia along with some cagu birds. These were sent by Maj. Gen. Joseph D. Patch, who retired with the rank of colonel after the war to his home at 2800 Woodley rd. nw.

From Okinawa, both the Army and Navy medical services sent venomous habu snakes, a variety similar to the copperhead and belonging to the viper family. Twenty-one military men were bitten by the habus on Okinawa and, since little was known about them before the war, some specimens were sent here for development of a serum to combat their poison. A Navy specimen is still residing at the Zoo.

The State Department is represented by several species, Dr. Mann pointed out, including a rhinoceros sent by an American consul general in Calcutta a number of years ago. He obtained the rhino from the forestry department of the State of Assam, Dr. Mann recalls. Two other present residents of the Zoo, Syrian bears, were brought from Iran by Ambassador George V. Allen.

School Studies Slated

Leesburg, Va., Feb. 7 (Spl.).—Dr. Clarence A. Newell of the University of Maryland will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. with three committees of the Citizens School Study Committee of Loudoun County. On February 16 he will meet with three other committees and the two groups will later draft recommendations for school improvements.

$800 Due Women On Wage Rulings Is Still Unclaimed

About $800 due 18 women workers in the District under the local Minimum Wage Law is going begging because the workers have not been located, the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board has announced.

The sum represents cases closed during the six months ending January 1, 1948. Persons listed as being entitled to such funds are Susie Morgan, Bessie Washington, Marie Skinner, Elizabeth Wright, Phyllis Lewis, Phyllis Williams, Flora Green, Sallie Lumis, Florence L. Miller, Rosemary Lilly, Marcia Williams, Hildegarde Maro, J. W. Lightner, Bessie Howard, Carrie L. Brown, Lillie Belle Jenkins, Hilda Brockett and Catherine O'Neal.

Those listed may call at the Minimum Wage Board office, Municipal Center, 300 Indiana ave. nw., Room 4042, to identify themselves.

Sprague's Death Laid to Monoxide

John L. Sprague, 39, former Metropolitan detective found dead in his car in southeast Washington Friday, apparently died of carbon monoxide, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said yesterday.

He issued a temporary certificate to that effect, but withheld a verdict pending further chemical analysis.

Sprague, an Indian Head, Md., tavern operator, was found in his new automobile parked in the 1200 block of Good Hope rd. se. He resigned from the detective force here in 1944.

The programs are a presentation of the Supreme Council, Knights of Columbus, and are sponsored in the Frederick area by Mount St. Mary's College and Seminary Council 1965.

Way Seen to Recoup Tobacco Cut Costs

Expert Gives Tips; Va. Income Loss Put at 15 Million

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 7 (AP).—Extensive suggestions for increasing income from crops to make up for recent drastic cuts in tobacco acreage allotments were announced today by the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service.

The plan outlined by Agronomist P. H. Dehart includes immediate steps recommended for this year as well as a long-range program for making better use of resources on tobacco farms.

Dehart estimated the 28 per cent flue-cured acreage cut and 35 per cent dark-fired cut announced by the Federal Government would amount to a 37,000-acre decrease in tobacco planting in 22 Virginia counties.

Income Loss Estimated

This will mean a loss of about 15 million dollars in income at present prices, he added.

The plan outlined by Dehart included these immediate suggestions for 1948:

1. Increase corn yields through use of adapted hybrids and more fertilization.
2. Seed a recommended winter oat variety any time now until 30 days before the expected date for the last killing frost. After that, seed spring varieties such as Clinton, Benton, or Fulghum.
3. Produce soybeans for oil or seed.
4. Give more attention to recommendations for producing high quality tobacco.
5. Order and accept immediate delivery of fertilizer.

Dehart said a few of the better corn growers may produce hybrid seed for sale.

Long-Range Program

The long-range program included, in addition to following through on the above suggestions, these steps:

1. Utilize idle acreage for forests, crops, or hay and pasture.
2. Increase small grain acreage until it is more nearly equal to corn acreage as a basis for crop rotation.
3. Increase alfalfa acreage for use as farm feed or cash crop.
4. Produce certified small grain seed. (He said certified seed production for most new varieties is far behind demand.)
5. Reduce feed costs by increasing ladino clover seeding.
6. Expand production of lespedeza, crimson clover and rye grass seed.
7. Launch a general pasture improvement program.

School Overcrowded At Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 7.—Crowded conditions at James Monroe High School have become acute with the opening of the new semester this week. Supt. Guy H. Brown said 42 new students registered, bringing total enrollment to 420. The school is planned for 250.

A public hearing on proposals for a consolidated high school for Fredericksburg and several nearby counties will be held at the city council chamber Wednesday at 2 p. m.

'Lincoln' Address Today

Lieut. Col. Thomas E. Rhodes will speak on "Abraham Lincoln" before the Sunday Morning Breakfast Club today at 9 a. m. in the lounge of the Central YMCA, 1736 G st. nw.

Baby Deaths Fall

1947 Births In Virginia Set Record

Richmond, Va., Feb. 7 (AP).—The State Health Department announced today that more babies were born in Virginia in 1947 than in any previous year, while the infant death rate hit a new low.

Births in the State totaled 82,500—a gain of 15 per cent over 1946. Deaths of 3025 infants under 1 year established a rate of 36.7 per 1000, lowest on record.

The birth rate was at a ratio of 27.3 per 1000 population, highest in a generation. The 1921 birthrate was 30.9 per 1000—the State's highest.

Total deaths last year of 28,950 set a rate of 9.6 per 1000 population as compared with a rate of 9.4 in 1946, lowest death rate in the Commonwealth.

The department listed the following death causes: Heart disease, 7951; apoplexy, 3057; cancer, 2897; Bright's disease, 2105; tuberculosis, 1212; pneumonia, 1097, and other diseases such as influenza, poliomyelitis and scarlet fever.

Nonhighway accidents killed 1494 persons and highway accidents, 721.

District Granted Use of Garage On Playground

The District government has been granted temporary use of a garage building on the playground adjoining Jefferson Junior High School.

J. George Stewart, clerk of the Senate District Committee, said the District Recreation and the Southwest Citizens Association granted permission for use of the structure for shop facilities of the traffic department.

The garage is to be razed in 15 or 18 months to enlarge the playground. Commissioner Guy Mason said the District is prepared to close H st. sw. between 7th and 9th sts., except for a small stretch beside the garage, tear up the paving and sod the area to enlarge the school grounds.

6800 Have X-Rays In Silver Spring And Takoma Park

More than 6800 persons have been X-rayed in Silver Spring and Takoma Park in the current drive of the Montgomery County Tuberculosis Association. Nearly 4200 have received reports on the findings.

The X-ray machine will begin its final week at the Silver Spring National Guard Armory Tuesday, where it will be operated from 1 to 8 p. m. daily. The machine will be moved to 7330 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda., February 14 for use in the campaign to X-ray residents of Bethesda-Chevy Chase.

The trailer unit will be located beginning Tuesday from 1 to 8 p. m. daily until Saturday, when the hours will be 9 a. m. to noon at Laurel and Carroll aves. in Takoma Park.

'Little Guys' Unanimously Declare at Home-Rule Hearing, 'We Want to Be Citizens, Too'

serted the District government is now "inefficient, wasteful, cumbersome, confused, complicated and flagrantly outmoded."

The Rev. J. F. Whitfield, president of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance made up of Negro Protestant Churches in Washington, aroused loud applause with a simple statement that he did "not speak for a racial minority but as a citizen."

Negro's Statement Praised

"No citizen or group of citizens should be denied the right to vote in this country. Citizens are morally bound to teach and urge good government, an achievement made impossible here," he said.

Representative Charles B. Deane, a North Carolina Democrat, declared the statement "was one of the finest ever heard by this committee."

Other testimony:

Dr. Lawrence F. Schmeckebier, who authored an earlier plan for District government reorganization, supported the plan and said the new one was a "good bill." He thought it should include provision for a Federal representative to sit on the elected council of 12 members.

Miss Bernice M. Lee, representing the Young Democrats of the District, said her organization approved the bill. It would restore democracy in Washington, reduce the work load for Congress, modernize administration, and provide better social services.

"Safeguard Against Police"

Dr. Clark Foreman, president Southern Conference for Human Welfare, declared votes for District residents would be their protection against investigation by police because of "political beliefs."

Arthur H. Fawcett, representing the Washington Federation of Churches and its Department of Social Welfare, declared his organization—representing all Protestant Churches in the District—"has expressed strong support for home rule."

George W. Hodkins of the Kalorama Citizens Association, but speaking only for himself, said he "favored home rule, with or without national representation in Congress or the right to vote for President and Vice President."

L. A. Meadows, president of the Manor Park Citizens Association, declared Washington residents "should have the right to remove irresponsible, inefficient, unscrupulous individuals from public office."

Not Afraid of Democracy

William Benhof, jr., president of the Anacostia Citizens Association, said some opposition had come from persons who are "fearful of democracy—I have no such fears." Citizens of Washington "should participate in the democracy which we are broadcasting throughout the world," he declared.

Benjamin Striner of the District Pharmaceutical Association and the Shepherd Park Citizens Association though persons who have legal domiciles elsewhere should be protected from local income taxes when given the right to vote here. But he favored the bill.

Horace J. Phelps of the Petworth Citizens Association indorsed the bill "without reservation," but recommended that instead of 12 councilmen, 21 should be elected.

Doesn't Fear Radicals

Elmer Batzell of the MacArthur Boulevard Citizens Association was asked if he felt, as did some Congressmen, that "radical elements" could take over the local government if home rule is passed. "I don't think so," he told Representative Deane. A few in his organization thought the present government satisfactory, he said.

Woolsey W. Hall of the Central Northwest Citizens Association agreed with the bill, but thought a plurality vote should elect councilmen rather than a majority. This, he said, would eliminate the need for a run-off election.

Morris Miller of the Citizens Council for Community Planning thought it was an excellent bill with a few exceptions.

Vincent J. Brown of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, "indorsed the objectives" of the Auchincloss bill. "It is of paramount importance," he declared, "to make this city the epitome of democracy so that we can facilitate the sale of democracy (abroad)."

For Proportional Representation

Maynard B. DeWitt of the American Veterans Committee for Greater Washington, declared he thought it was "the fundamental right of Americans to make their own mistakes and not have others make it for them."

Mrs. Charlotte Sillers of the Women's Auxiliary, United Public Workers, recommended a clause be inserted legally abolishing segregation, that proportional representation be used in voting and that councilmen be paid $5000 yearly rather than $3000.

Mrs. Frances Lichtenberg of the Washington League of Women Shoppers also favored the bill with a few exceptions which could be ironed out after passage.

Others who testified in approval were Mrs. Mary Gregory, president of the District Federation of Colored Women's Clubs; Mrs. George Tobias of the Washington Group, American Association of Medical Social Workers, and Dr. Evan Clague of the District Chapter, American Association of Social Workers.

The hearings are to be resumed tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. in the House Caucus Room and are expected to end Tuesday afternoon. All-day sessions are to be held, Auchincloss said.

J. B. Reynolds Dies; Manager For Coolidge

James Burton Reynolds, 77, veteran Republican politician and one-time Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, died of pneumonia yesterday in Doctors Hospital, New York. He was stricken a week ago.

He lived here at 2456 Tracy pl. nw.

Mr. Reynolds, together with the late Frank W. Stearns of Boston, is credited as beeing the behind-the-scene strategy planner of Calvin Coolidge's vice presidential nomination in 1920.

He resigned his post as secretary of the Republican National Committee early in 1920 to take over management of the campaign to secure the then Governor Coolidge's nomination for the presidency.

Friends of Mr. Reynolds asserted years afterward that as delegates were entering the convention hall to nominate the vice presidential candidate, he was seen to approach the late Judge Wallace McClamant, of Oregon, saying, "Now, remember." It was Judge McCamant who placed Collodige's name before the convention, the nomination sweeping aside plans of old-line leaders and securing the post for Coolidge.

Mr. Reynolds then became Coolidge's personal adviser and acted as his manager during his presidential campaign in 1924.

Following his retirement from national politics at the conclusion of Coolidge's presidential tenure, Mr. Reynolds devoted his time to professional services as a tariff consultant and attending to personal business interests. He was recognized expert in tariff and custom matters.

Bornin Saratoga, N. Y., he lived for some time in neighboring Glens Falls and was a director of the Glens Falls Insurance Co. Following graduation from Dartmouth College in 1890, he was a correspondent of the Boston Adviser and Record for four years and an editorial writer for the New York Press for a year before turning his attention to politics.

From 1896 to 1905 he was secretary for the Republican State Committee of Massachusetts, leaving that post to become Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Theodore Roosevelt from 1905 to 1909. During this time, in 1907 and 1908, he was chairman of a governmest commission to Great Britain and western Europe to study trade relations.

He was appointed to the United States Tariff Board in 1909 by William Howard Taft, serving until 1912. Then followed eight years as secretary of the Republican National Committee. He was a delegate to many Republican National Conventions, beginning in 1896.

He married Mrs. Charles Hearin of Mobile, the widow of a former Governor of Alabama, in 1912. She died in 1943. He left no close relatives.

Mr. Reynolds was a member of the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase and Cosmos clubs here; Lawyers and Union League, in New York; Algonquin in Boston and Manufacturers in Philadelphia, and Alpha Delta Phi college fraternity.

Funeral services will be held in Washington, but arrangements are not yet completed. Interment will be in Glens Falls in the spring, the remains resting in a vault here until then.

Darden Hurls Challenge at Soviet Russia

Williamsburg, Va., Feb. 7 (Spl.). The General Assembly, meeting in the restored capitol of colonial Virginia here today, heard a challenge to Communist Russia from former Gov. Colgate W. Darden, jr.

The president of the University of Virginia told the assembled legislators, meeting in joint session in the historic Hall of Burgesses that America can have peace by maintaining technical and industrial superiority over Russia.

The one-day session of the Assembly in colonial Williamsburg, where legislators met from 1698 to 1779, was the first since the war and marked a return to a custom started in 1934 after the reconstruction of the former capital.

Among the guests of the modern General Assembly today was John D. Rockefeller III, son of the man who sponsored the restoration of the historic town; Gov. William M. Tuck and the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of Appeals.

The 140 members of the Virginia Senate and House of Delegates jammed the tiny hall of the House of Burgesses, sitting on wooden benches which are a monument to the stamina of the early colonists of Virginia.

Speaker G. Alvin Massenburg, using a large bell to call the house to order, sat in an authentic speaker's chair which resembled a small sentry box. It stood behind a square table bearing reminders of Colonial days, such as huge brass candlesticks, quill pens and a snuff box.

Prior to the Joint Assembly session, Senator Frank P. Burton of Patrick County took the oath as a member of the Senate, the first to be sworn here in more than 150 years. Delegate Paul Crockett made the only speech from the floor in the Assembly session, paying tribute to John D. Rockefeller, jr., and his associates who made it possible for the legislators to meet in the former capitol.

President Darden declared Russia's political hierarchy "is planning, with calculated ruthlessness and cunning, to subvert Western society and to fasten upon us the shackles of slavery."

Our strongest weapon, the former Governor said, is a "steadily rising standard of living, with all that it implies—a larger and more highly skilled labor force, scientific competence much beyond anything known today, more and more people who comprehend democratic processes and who know not only what individual liberty means, but who understand how to work the machinery upon which it depends."

America's strength lies not so much in the possession of the atomic bomb as in the technical and industrial capacity that made its production possible, Darden maintained. To support the scientific advances in our country, he said, our citizens must be brought to understand more about how their Government functions.

Mrs. T. S. Wheelwright, Sr.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Laura Martin Wheelwright, 75, active Red Cross worker for many years, died today in a hospital here.

Mrs. Wheelwright was one of the founders of the Red Cross in Chesterfield County, a chairman of the county chapter for over 25 years, and helped to build the chapter house. By Arthur L. Gavshon

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Qualified British military informants say broad plans are nearing completion for linking defenses of the Marshall Plan nations.

Anglo-American chiefs of staffs, according to these informants and diplomatic sources, will submit to 15 Eurpean countries proposals to standardize a wide range of military equipment and training as the basis for a program of military self help. Standardization will be on the basis of American and British patterns and methods.

These sources emphasized that the plans are to be regarded neither as part of the Marshall program nor as excluding states outside its focus. They are primarily intended to established military cooperation among nations which some day may have to fight as allies.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin broadly hinted such measures are contemplated in his address to Commons on international policy. Bevin said Britain's military alliances, as well as her political ties, with the countries of western Europe are to be tightened.

The informants expressed confidence that the standardization principle would be acceptedly readily in Western Europe, since most of the countries already depend almost exclusively on the United States and Britain for military requirements.

Asked to confirm these assertions, spokesmen of the British Foreign and War Offices gave cautious "no comments." The War Office spokesman, however, disclosed that Gen. G. M. J. Revers, chief of the French General Staff, has visited British military establishments and has been in consultation on technical and training matters with the Imperial General Staff.

Every care will be taken to avoid the impression that the Anglo-American arms and strategic program involves "ganging up militarily" on Red Europe, diplomatic and military informants insisted.

Mere 'Projection'

DISCLOSURE of the plan came as the United States swung into a detailed study of the report of the Paris conference which answered Secretary Marshall's call for a European Recovery Program.

The Paris report specifically stressed the desirability of streamlining Continental economic recovery by standardizing basic items of industrial equipment.

The sources—who ranged from British military planners to ambassadors of Western European countries—pointed out that a program of arms standardization is "just one stage removed" from the principle of industrial standardization.

Most of the 16 states sooner or later must face the question of whether their armies are to be equipped with weapons forged in the West or in the East, they declared.

The standardization program was generally seen to be "essentially gradual," to be put into effect over a period of at least 10 years, barring emergencies. Many of the Marshall-aid countries already are in close military liaison, the informants added.

War Office sources said that at least 11 Marshall-aid states have sent officers and men to Britain for training in the last year. The exceptions are Austria, Switzerland, Iceland and Sweden.

Sweden recently placed the second of two large orders for an unspecified number of Vampire jet fighter planes with the DeHavilland company, an official statement announced. Technicians of the Swedish air force are expected to come here for jet propulsion training at the DeHavilland factory.

British training missions have gone to most Western European states to train and reorganize their war-battered armies on the spot. The Italian army, said an Italian diplomat, has been reorganized from top to bottom on the British model since 1943, when Mussolini fell. He said Italy had five British-equipped and trained divisions in the field when the war ended.

U. S. Dividing Surplus

SIMILARLY the United States has large missions in Greece and Turkey, training, reorganizing and equipping their armies. Surplus American military stores and equipment are being disposed of in several other countries, including France, Italy, Austria and the Low Countries.

Britain has supplied France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Italy, Greece, Portugal, Turkey, Eire and Iceland with radar equipment, aircraft—including jet-propelled machines—and armaments since the war ended. Troops of several of those countries wear British uniforms.

Turkish technicians were instructed in jet-propulsion at the DeHavilland works. The French and Belgian chiefs of staff have visited British battle schools.

France last year purchased guns, aircraft, transport and all the other material necessary to equip a full airborne division, 16.000 strong. She has purchased many naval vessels since.

Meanwhile the sources saw significance in Lord McGowan's visit to Portugal and Spain late last year. The chairman of Imperial Chemical Industries—largest industrial concern and arms works in Britain—called on Portuguese and Spanish political and banking chiefs, although he did not see Generalissimo Franco.

British officials stressed that there is no direct intention of strengthening the armies and defensive resources of the countries taking part in the Marshall Plan. But one source who is in a position to know how Foreign Secretary Bevin's mind works said Britain "views with understanding" an already-expressed American desire to promote military self help among the 16 states.

He was referring to United States Defense Secretary Forrestal's statement to the House Foreign Affairs Committee that he hopes his department will be given the job of integrating the armed forces of the Marshall-aid countries.

Like Latin Plan

AMERICAN peacetime plans for building a unified defense of Western European states—common arms, air bases with equipment and techniques known to all the partners, and training which would allow military units of one country to be blended with those of another—were seen to follow a pattern already set for the Western Hemisphere.

That program was laid before Congress in the closing days of the 1947 session, tagged with a "must" label by Marshall, Army Chief of Staff Eisenhower and ranking War and Navy Department officials.

Under its terms the United States would help other Western Hemisphere countries develop military, naval and air bases for their common defense if attacked.

High British officials ruled out the possibility of any full scale merger of Anglo-American armed forces in the foreseeable future. But they said they are aware of—and back—the United States' desire to standardize the arms of several foreign countries to prepare herself for any emergency that might emerge from East-West rivalries.

The year-old Anglo-American agreement for the exchange of 100 officers between the RAF and AAF for training is working out "most successfully," an Air Ministry spokesman said. He remained tightlipped when asked whether RAF officers in the United States are being instructed in the technique of atom-bomb warfare.

Other authoritative sources said, however, that "this and several additional aspects of up-to-the-minute scientific developments are included in their training as a matter of course."

British officials said they expect that the United States and British governments will maintain "at least indefinitely, if not permanently," the Washington-based, wartime-created Combined Chiefs of Staff board. Both countries continue to exchange information on military equipment, weapon and munition developments. American observers regularly attend conferences of British Commonwealth army specialists and planners.

It is unlikely that plans to coordinate the forces of the Western European countries will be accompanied immediately by a full exchange of top secret information.

Small-Arms Changes

THE new standardization plan means that Britain, France and other Marshall-aid countries will be able to order most of their military requirements from the United States in future emergencies, the officials said. It does not mean that the countries of western Europe will give up arms production themselves.

Precise details of what weapons would come under the standardization program could not be learned at once. However, informants said that the British .303-inch rifle would be redesigned to the United States .30-caliber, that other small arms will be changed to the United States pattern and that cartridges will be grooved instead of rimmed.

Some Continental countries already are using the same designs as the Americans in their weapons. The French artillery, for example, uses 75, 105 and 155 mm. rifles (guns). So does the United States Army.

More Hush-hush Than A-bomb

'BW' Gag Rule Fosters Scare Stories

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

IS bacteriological warfare an immediate, dire threat to world survival—more potent and dangerous than the atomic bomb?

An official answer to this question cannot be obtained today. "No comment" is the invariable reply of top defense officials whenever some scientist, politician or writer comes up with a scare story about germ warfare.

Such stories often make atomic weapons sound mild by comparison. And almost always they are coupled with a plea that America outlaw "BW"—or that United States scientists entirely shun experiments in bacterial warfare.

Yet the American people cannot find out whether these declarations are true or false. They cannot, because of one of the most amazing gag rules in our peacetime history. This ostrich-head-in-the-sand "security"—far more restrictive than that governing atomic energy—bars any official from even discussing bacteriological warfare.

It is "top secret"—including, some say, merely mentioning "BW."

You can find Army officers who contend that BW, while very dangerous, is so inefficient as a weapon as to be of doubtful value. No military man wants to use a weapon he cannot control, at least to a degree. And some view BW as a two-edged sword, ready to cut friend or foe.

Another question raised—either because BW is so deadly and efficient or is so unpredictable that it is not—is that it should be outlawed by United Nations action.

Less Than 'Absolute'

IN absence of any official answers, and after a careful investigation of the situation—including interviews with prominent civilian biologists and bacteriologists—the writer is convinced that:

1. Germ warfare can be very serious, but it is not an "absolute weapon." At present, at least, it is not a grave threat to the United States or to world survival. Much of what has been published on the subject is in the "scare" category.

2. Unlike atomic warfare, there are defenses against BW. Most serious threat to America in this field is the danger that we might yield to pressure and abandon experimentation into its defensive and offensive potentials.

3. Both domestic and international influences are urging the abandonment of work in this field. Some of it is well-meaning hatred of war on the part of American bacteriologists. On the other hand, there are elements here and abroad with motives directly contrary to ours, who urge that United States scientists stop BW work and that the United Nations outlaw it.

4. Unlike the production of atomic weapons, it would be impossible for a world authority, as we envisage it, to enforce an agreement against BW experimentation. Deadly germs can be produced secretly in any public health laboratory, brewery, distillery or cave. An international agreement in this field could be ignored with impunity by a would-be aggressor.

5. Communist forces may be expected to back such a plan. Late last year Poland proposed the outlawing of BW to the U. N. Assembly, and the Soviet bloc probably will press the issue as a red herring to confuse the question of atomic control. Due to its nature and complexity, BW lends itself readily to anti-American propaganda.

6. Our present BW security policy is dead wrong. It should be modified to permit top Government officials to release a limited amount of information under proper safeguards.

Squirt-Gun Jitters

VIRTUALLY all the civilian scientists interviewed began with the statement that the usual magazine treatment of bacteriological warfare is exaggerated.

"Anything that will quiet the fear going around that wars will be settled by a squirt-gun is helpful," says Dr. Elmer Brandes, Agriculture Department expert on plant biology.

Dr. Brandes declares that much of what has been written on the subject is a "great oversimplification." BW can be terribly effective, he explains, but "the stage must be set—every condition must be right." Everything must work out—environment, weather, exact choice of a germ. Even a sudden shower might nullify the whole thing, he says.

"If an enemy carefully prepares," he adds, "it is a threat. But it probably would not be more than a serious annoyance. It might cause us loss of life, animals and crops, but it would hardly bring us to our knees. If I were a military man, I'd put my investment in the A-bomb."

Dr. Leland W. Parr, professor of bacteriology at George Washington University Medical School, generally agrees with Dr. Brandes. Like Brandes, he has not worked in the field of biological warfare, but both scientists would be bound to know much of the general scope of the situation and to have heard of any major discoveries in the field.

Parr, who is secretary-treasurer of the Society of American Bacteriologists, declares that the terror element of BW has been overemphasized. He points out that its victims either die or recover completely—unlike those wounded by other forms of warfare.

Danger from BW saboteurs is not great, Dr. Parr feels. As long as boiling will destroy germs, the threat to water supplies and food is not a really grave one, he says.

"The real threat," he says, "comes from airborne germs. If some means were found to keep microbes virulent in the air and to distribute them widely by planes, it would cause trouble."

Dr. Parr said that suggestions that soldiers could be infected by germ-impregnated bullets or bomb fragments is unlikely. The heat of friction and explosion probably would destroy the bacteria, he said.

Nearby 'Oak Ridge'

THE George Washington bacteriologist declared that he disagreed fundamentally with colleagues who decline to work in the BW field. Many top men have refused to work for the Army at its BW "Oak Ridge" at Camp Detrick, Md., 40 miles from Washington. It was built during the war as the Nation's main BW experimental station.

Pilot plants for mass production of such weapons were constructed at the secret station. Whether they were ever operated is not known, although it is admitted that we were prepared to destroy Japan's rice crop by such means when the war ended.

Camp Detrick still is operating. Last fall the Government condemned additional land nearby for use as a proving ground for dissemination of BW by airplanes. There have been reports that we have developed an easily spread, long-lived agent of germ warfare that can be laid by aircraft.

The unwillingness of many American bacteriologists to aid in BW is partly the result of an international effort. Last summer the International Congress for Microbiology followed the International Society of Cellbiology in calling upon all scientists to "prevent exploitation" of such "barbaric methods."

Most of us would agree with this at first thought. Yet, isn't it suicidal for American scientists to refuse to work in this field as long as other nations carry on such activity?

Thinking in the Dark

THE solution, of course, would be international control. But by the very nature of bacteriological warfare, that would be practically impossible. Therefore, the United States could not afford to go much further than to agree not to wage BW, without binding itself not to continue experimentation.

At the same time, the American public has no real knowledge on which to base an opinion. How dangerous is BW to the United States? What are the defenses?

It seems to this writer that the time has come for a frank statement on these questions by a top defense official. The present "security" policy prevents this. It is so absurdly restrictive that a January, 1946, report on BW issued by the War Department was withdrawn some 15 months after issue.

The document no longer is available to American newsmen, although the Soviet military attache received it at the time, along with other attaches on the Army's press release list.

Many top defense officials object strongly to the gag policy. They would welcome an opportunity to put the public straight, to counteract the pressure urging us toward a course which might be fatal.

Dixie Picks A No'thnuh

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

AMID all the dark talk of a Dixie rebellion, congressional Democrats for the first time in history have chosen a liberal Yankee to lead their fight to recapture the House.

REP. KIRWAN

Southern Democrats, who heretofore have always put one of their own in the key campaign spot, surprisingly went along with the choice. Georgia's Eugene Cox even seconded the nomination.

The new chairman of the Congressional Democratic Campaign Committee, whose job it is to put Democrats in Republican seats, is 61-year-old Michael Joseph Kirwan.

Kirwan is a Youngstown, Ohio, Irishman, with a brogue as thick as Washington weather. He has worked at every job from driving mules in a mine to braking on a train. In World War I he was a machine gunner. Before he came to Congress he was a member of the Youngstown City Council.

Succeeds Virginian

BUT the most surprising thing about Kirwan, and his election-year choice by a split party, is this: He's a 99.4 per cent Roosevelt Democrat, of the vanishing New Deal variety. How he gets along with Southern Democrats is his own secret, but it has something to do with that brogue.

Kirwan succeeds the late Patrick H. Drewry of Virginia, who knew how to clock elections but frankly had his doubts about the New Deal. Before Drewry there was Tennessee's Joe Byrnes, Arkansas' William Oldfield and Virginia's Hal Flood. By some sort of unwritten rule, the chairmanship always stayed in the South.

House Democrats went North this time for a very practical reason. Southern seats are sure. Outside the Deep South, Democrats must pick up at least 31 Republican seats in order to control the next House.

Kirwan thinks he knows how to do it. In 12 years he has transformed his own traditional Republican district into undisputed

Regional University a Possible Solution

South in Legal Snarl

By Bem Price

ATLANTA, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Supreme Court decision in an Oklahoma case that Negroes are entitled to the same educational opportunities as white students, has white leaders in the South working overtime.

They are trying to find a solution to equal education without disturbing the segregation pattern fixed by State constitutions and laws.

The court did not dispute Oklahoma's right to segregate the races. It said simply that if a course is available to white students, it should be available to Negro students at the same time.

To provide such educational facilities for all, the Southern States would have to spend millions of dollars they do not have, or eliminate segregation.

In the latter event they would run head on into the fact that most State constitutions forbid mingling of the races in school.

A Regional Solution

SO FAR only the Southern Governors Conference has come forward with a proposed solution. At last October's meeting of the 15 member Governors, Governor Jim McCord of Tennessee suggested that the Southern States pool funds and purchase a school to provide graduate education for Negroes in the entire region.

The suggestion came before the Oklahoma decision but after the Texas case in which the Supreme Court held that the State must provide facilities on a graduate level equal to those offered white students. This decision did not include a time element as did the Oklahoma ruling.

Texas is now spending three million dollars for the establishment of a State university for Negroes.

As a first step toward effectuating McCord's suggestion, a five-man committee held a meeting January 18 at Meharry Medical College, Nashville. After a closed meeting with trustees of Meharry, the committee's chairman, Gov. Millard T. Caldwell of Florida, said the eight-million-dollar institute had been offered for sale to the Southern States.

Said Caldwell: "It is apparent that no single Southern State is able financially to supply the best educational facilities for all its citizens. In specialized fields there are not enough students to justify establishment of separate schools in each State.

"Purely coincidental to this meeting, the trustees of Meharry College have reached the conclusion that it must close unless the Southern States can take over its operation.

"Therefore, they have offered to turn over this institution, including an endowment of five million dollars, to the several Southern States if the States will take over its operation and maintain its present high standards."

Before the Southern States can take such a step, Governor Caldwell said, it might be necessary to ask congressional approval. Action by the various State Legislatures also would be required.

Member States of the Southern Governors Conference are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Maryland, Kentucky, West Virginia and Oklahoma.

10-Year Litigation

THE legal fight leading up to the Oklahoma decision started some 10 years ago.

Lloyd Gaines, a Negro, applied for admission to the University of Missouri Law School. The school refused to admit Gaines and referred him to the State's Negro college, which did not offer a law education. Gaines brought suit against the university registrar and carried the suit to the Supreme Court.

In 1938 the court ruled that where a State provided educational opportunities on a certain level for one racial group, there was a legal obligation to furnish substantially the same opportunities to other racial groups.

As a result of the Gaines decision the Southern States, with the exception of Mississippi, set up a "differential system" to provide graduate education for Negroes. More than 2500 Negroes now are receiving financial aid from Southern States to pursue degrees on the graduate level in institutions outside the State itself. These scholarships are awarded when a Negro student cannot obtain the desired course in a Negro college within the State.

In most cases these scholarships make up the difference it would cost the Negro to study in his State's white school and his expenses to go to another State where racial segregation is not required.

Although some Southern States for many years have made financial awards to Negroes who sought higher learning elsewhere, the differential scholarship plan was not generally adopted until after the Gaines decision.

WORLD AFFAIRS

Short Cuts to Plenty

Greece Learns How To Be 'a California'

By Sigrid Arne

TEAMS of United Nations scientists have gone into Poland and Greece to help them find short cuts to "freedom from want."

Such a team is now working in the Near East. A fourth is due shortly in Siam.

These teams are sent out at the request of the countries involved by U. N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization. FAO can concentrate quickly the best of the world's knowledge on any food subject—whether it is irrigation, types of seed or the cheapest plow.

The present work can't be expected to load the dinner tables of 1948. Farming isn't that way. But the FAO men figure that if the world's politicians can produce a lasting peace, FAO can raise the world's living standards.

The job that was done in Greece in 1946 was probably one of the most complicated that FAO will have. That mission was headed by Franklin S. Harris, president of the Utah State College of Agriculture.

That team found that Greece's agriculture and livestock raising were so intertwined with the rest of the nation's life that it had to turn out a full plan for a Greek economy. The report is being used by several governments and hundreds of private firms which hope to revive or start business with the Greeks.

Boulder Dam Terrain

THE TEAM found several bright spots ahead for the Greeks. Here are a few:

Greece, with her mountains, is a fine spot to develop water power. In 25 years, the experts say, Greece could have the equivalent of Boulder Dam and could irrigate land to produce fruits and vegetables approaching the California manner.

They found Greece can use her dry summers to start a new export industry—seeds. They also found that Greece's wild flowers could become the basis of a flower and bulb-raising industry comparable to that of the Netherlands.

Most importantly for the Marshall Plan, they found (1) that the Greek tax system slows down the production of wealth and (2) too many people live off the land.

They found the tax burden is on the poor farmer and city worker. They suggested higher income, gift and inheritance taxes, which now produce only 15 per cent of Greece's revenues. (In the United States they produce the bulk of taxes.)

To take up the unemployed, both on the farms and in the cities, the mission pointed out that many small industries would be easy to start. Many are already there, such as food processing, textile weaving, clothing manufacture, cement making, small metal products.

Poland Lacks Seed

POLAND was a different picture. Poland has enough land to have been a prewar exporter of food, and she is returning to that trade. But the war stripped her and her soil is depleted.

The Polish government gave every aid to the FAO mission and is following its advice. But both world shortages and quarrels are making it difficult for the Poles to buy what they need.

FAO said Poland first needed fertilizer and seed. Both are allocated by the International Food Emergency Committee, and this year's allocations cut Poland very short. She got no nitrogen fertilizers at all.

But some short cuts are possible.

The FAO men pointed out that the tractors which lie idle, sometimes for months, on the government-owned farms, could be shared with private farmers in midsummer. And they could be used to start new forests in the winter.

FAO suggested that the Poles rush production of dried peas and beans, which supply proteins for the diet, since meat is going to be short for some years.

Many Polish scientists were systematically killed by the Germans. She needs knowledge. FAO suggested she send abroad some of her young scientists. Thirty are now studying in the United States.

FAO said the Poles should greatly increase their forage crops to increase their cattle and milk. But Poland could get practically no seeds for this spring.

Tax Moratorium

TO HELP farmers tilling land which lay fallow through the war, FAO suggested the government lighten their taxes, or forgive them until they get going. The government agreed. It never had taxed the families moving into the new western sections taken from Germany, anyway.

In the Near East, an FAO team is conducting a school to teach government men in all the Near Eastern nations how to keep statistics on their food production. The school, in Cairo, is run by T. C. M. Robinson of the United States Department of Agriculture. Other scientists are making studies of irrigation, drainage, livestock raising, crops and nutrition.

A team is due in Siam this month. It will be directed by Dr. R. H. Walker, dean of the experiment station at the Utah State College.

Siam wants to learn how to raise more and better rice and how to control the rinderpest, which attacks the water buffalo, the nation's beast of burden. The answer to that pest has been worked out by Canadian and American scientists.

The team will also go into Siam's prices and its shortages of goods for farmers and help to set up a government report of crops.

50 Acres of Sahara Paying Off as Farm

Seddik Pacha (right) shows a guest around the two acres of gardens which surround his modern house. Like the farm, they were desert until six years ago

Special Dispatch to The Post

CAIRO, Feb. 7.—An experimental desert farm is yielding a rich harvest of fruits, vegetables and flowers for its owner, who wanted to "play around" with 50 acres of Sahara sand to see what would grow.

Mixed with mud from the banks of the Nile, 20 miles away, and irrigated by a canal fed by the Nile, the once arid soil will pay off the investment by next year.

This is the achievement of A. Seddik Pacha, Egyptian business executive, member of the government's council of high tourism and comptroller of German war properties. His experiment started in 1942 with a piece of land 12 miles from the Pyramids.

Today half the acreage is producing mangoes which grow to melon size of about 2 pounds each and bring in more than $15,000 a year.

Seddik Pacha calls his estate Tara, after the "Gone With the Wind" mansion, and its focal point is a modern home with all conveniences known to Americans, plus some unusual ones he has introduced for comfort in the desert.

Modern farming methods were introduced principally through the use of a jeep, which does all the plowing, grading and harrowing. A gasoline pump taps a nearby canal and every four days the entire farm is irrigated by this system. An artesian well provides water for household purposes.

Livestock is two female buffalo and 12 cows, enough to supply milk and butter. Carrots, tomatoes and other vegetables, grown profitably during the war to supply a needy market, are now only moderately cultivated, principally for local consumption. Nile oranges, tangerines, a few apples and California pears are other products of this desert farm.

Japan's Voluble Burglar Really Lecturing Now

TOKYO (AP).—Japan's "preaching robber" is really preaching now—on the level.

In the days when Matsukichi Tsumaki was a practicing burglar, he got that "preacher" tag hung on him because he had a habit of lecturing his victims for leaving their doors unlocked.

"Now if you had been prudent," his argument ran as he stuffed wallets and silverware into his sack, "and locked your door at night, I couldn't get in and this wouldn't be happening to you."

Despite the advice which he thoughtfully handed out free in exchange for valuables, police took a dim view of Tsumaki's profession when they finally caught him in one of his sermons.

They shipped him off to prison, where he might be yet except that there was a fire one day and he was so heroic in helping rescue other convicts that he was rewarded with a parole.

Now he is in demand as a lecturer and he has been talking before religious bodies in Buddhist temples and before crime prevention societies and social organizations.

'First Go' On Seaway Up to U. S.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—For the third time in a quarter century, Ottawa is awaiting United States Senate action on the St. Lawrence seaway project to bring ocean ships into Chicago and 2,200,000 horsepower of electricity to the United States and Canada.

Twice the Canadian Parliament has ratified treaties to complete the project and twice the American Senate has turned thumbs down. The latest treaty, signed by both governments in 1941 and now before the Senate, has not yet been approved by the Canadian Parliament. In the words of Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier, "This time we're letting Washington move first."

445 Million More

CANADA already has spent 209 million dollars on sections of the waterway in the Great Lakes and another 65 million dollars keeping them in repair.

As estimated by the United States Army, the waterway could be completed for $445,086,000. The United States would pay $310,274,000 and Canada, getting credit for what it has already spent, would pay the remaining $134,812,000.

In its 50-year history, the project has met with little opposition in Canada. While in the United States, Eastern railroads, Mississippi and Eastern ports, labor, coal operators and lake carriers have all fought it, in Canada only the railway brotherhoods have been opposed.

Supporting the waterway here are the construction and cement companies and the lake ports like Toronto and Windsor. Canada's largest city, Montreal, would become one of the world's largest ports, taking over many of New York's functions.

The navigational part of the project, Chevrier explained, is divided into five sections. Four of these have been completed. The "missing link" is the international section on the St. Lawrence River in upper New York State. There the water drops 226 feet to Montreal. This would have to be leveled by ship locks.

"But," Chevrier pointed out, "Canada leveled the drop between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario—326 feet, or 100 feet greater—with the building of the Welland Canal to bypass Niagara Falls."

'Soo' a Part

THE United States, too, he pointed out, made a preliminary investment in the project when it constructed the locks at Sault Ste. Marie between Lake Superior and Lake Huron—a drop of 21 feet. The United States, he added, has spent 83 million dollars on the waterway.

Chevrier said that if and when the treaty gets to the Canadian Parliament it is assured of passage. But the "if" and the "when" may not be decided in Washington until the last of the month.

Arabs Hush Their Yankee Doodle

By Joseph C. Goodwin

DAMASCUS, Syria, Feb. 7 (AP). After one brief postwar sally along the path of Western progress, the Arab world appears to be swinging back to its general distrust of all foreigners and foreign ways.

Political leaders blame American support of Palestine partition. They say that was an unexpected slap in the face to a trusting people who look to Western democracy and American "know how" to lead them out of their ancient shell.

Less than a year ago foreigners, especially Americans, were treated with almost embarrassing deference. American diplomats were wined and dined. American businessmen were handed about like royal visitors. American ways and American styles were imitated widely. Night clubs blossomed. American songs and dances were the rage.

Governments sought American loans for modernization of industry and agriculture, public health programs and social reforms. Officials and individuals openly courted American capital. Oil men breezed into cabinet meetings and royal chambers.

President Truman's Palestine immigration proposal brought a lull.

A Sudden Freeze

THEN almost overnight—the night of November 29, when the U. N. voted for partition—the wind changed and continued chill.

American consulate property was attacked by Damascus mobs. The USIS office was wrecked in Baghdad. Anti-American demonstrations were held throughout the Middle East.

Oil pipeline contracts were held up. Company property was destroyed in Trans-Jordan. Americans fled from mobs. High priced technicians and skilled workers flown from the United States were idle. Expensive equipment gathered rust.

Middle East travel slowed to a walk. Visas became difficult to obtain. Customs officials got tough. Airlines found local cooperation freezing up. Trans-Jordan and Saudi Arabia turned thumbs down on American journalists.

Night spots dropped European artists and European bands and the tarboush and the kafiah returned to the heads of well dressed men. Tourist attractions closed down.

"The American Government and the American press are servants of Zionism and the unholy dollar," said Fawzi Kaoukji, leader of the Arab "People's Army." "We want no part of them. America passed the partition plan. We'll cancel it."

Forgotten Tongue

THIS ancient city, capital of a four-year-old republic, is typical:

Not long ago the principal hotel was astir with American businessmen. Airline people and oil bigwigs. Today small groups of tarboushed Arabs sit in the lobby drinking tiny cups of coffee. A few sour-faced oil workers hang about the bar. Sweating out air transport to America.

Residents who once proudly demonstrated their ability to speak French and English stick to Arabic. One night club remains open but its program is all Arabic—the dance floor covered with tables occupied only by men.

European "B" girls, once darlings of the cafe crowd, are gone, replaced by unsmiling Arab singers and belly dancers in harem costume.

Americans abroad walk lightly.

Foreign-language signs are passe.

'Chained' East Calls Helen Keller

By Cynthia Lowry

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—Deaf and blind Helen Keller is ready to start out on a familiar trail to the East, picking up her war-interrupted work of helping her fellow "prisoners of darkness."

The gray-haired, alert woman of 67 will leave by plane March 26 on a year-long journey through the Orient. Middle and Near East. As always, she will be accompanied by Polly Thomson, her companion, secretary and substitute eyes and ears.

In troubled nations and occupied lands, Miss Keller will appear at public meetings. She'll visit schools and hospitals. She will talk to men and women responsible for the care of the blind.

After months spent in the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand, she will return to Japan in September for her first visit in 11 years.

If Babe Ruth is a national hero of that occupied country, Helen Keller is a national heroine. To Japan's two and one half million blind, deaf, mute and disabled, she is a living symbol of courage for breaking out of the prison of silence and blackness into which she was born.

Visit With Empress

ANNOUNCEMENT of the long trip was made recently at a New York meeting of the John Milton Society for the Blind. The Protestant group, which publishes religious books and pamphlets in Braille, is sponsoring the journey.

After the meeting, Miss Keller talked informally about her plans. A young Japanese reporter questioned her eagerly about her visit to his country.

"What cities will you visit?" he asked intently. "Will you see the Empress?"

Miss Thomson's fingers telegraphed the words into the palm of Miss Keller's hand.

"Many cities," Miss Keller answered with a smile. "Tokyo, Osaka, Hiroshima, Nagasaki and others. Yes, yes, we hope to see the Empress. Polly and I saw her when we were there before."

"Helen wrote to General MacArthur and asked him about conditions," Miss Thomson broke in. "He said she could expect every help from him—even a military plane. Helen adores flying."

Two years ago, after the end of the war in Europe, Miss Keller visited Britain, France, Italy and Greece.

"Conditions are worse in the Orient," Miss Keller said. "The Orient and the Near East is a belt of darkness."

Much of the time the two women will be accompanied by Dr. Milton T. Stauffer, general secretary of the John Milton Society, and his wife.

"We're going to crusade for better treatment of the blind," Dr. Stauffer summed up. "In many countries they've been neglected or there's prejudice against them. They have even been forced into prostitution or begging to keep alive."

Miss Thomson transmitted his words to Miss Keller.

"Yes, yes," the woman said, as though she herself were not sightless, "we must break the chains of their darkness."

Older Regulars Make Way for Youth

'USA, Ret.,' Is a Service Citation

By Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist

(Excerpts from a statement last week before a House Armed Services Subcommittee. General Dahlquist is Deputy Director of Personnel and Administration, Department of the Army.)

THE first retirement act for Regular Army officers was enacted in August, 1861, just as the Civil War was breaking. Practically all field officers of the small Regular Army were at that time unfit to exercise command in the field because of advanced age, disease and infirmities. It was clear that something had to be done to remove such men so that those younger and more vigorous individuals who, in fact, exercised command, could be advanced to appropriate rank.

That law prescribed that "when any officer has become incapable of performing the duties of his office, he shall be either retired from active duty or wholly retired by the President." Reenacted in 1882, that law is still the law which authorizes retirement for physical disability of Regular Army officers.

The standard for determination as to whether an officer should or should not retire for disability therefore has been "fitness for full military service." There is nothing in the law concerning fitness for civilian pursuits. The disabilities which render most men ineffective for full military service are diseases of deterioration. They occur for the most part among the older officers.

Retirement compensation is 75 per cent of pay less allowances—it varies from approximately 47 per cent of total pay of second lieutenants to 57 per cent of the total pay of officers with over 30 years' service. As clearly evidenced by the debates which preceded the enactment of the law, the compensation was designed to provide for officers who had engaged in military service as a life work. The amount of retirement pay varies according to the grade and length of service, not according to the severity of the disability.

The present system of compensation for service-connected disabilities is based on the following:

a. The amount of compensation is on a graduated scale and is dependent entirely upon the severity of the disability, not upon rank or length of service. Thus, a person 100 per cent disabled receives $138 a month. Under certain circumstances, where attendants are necessary, for example, the emoluments may be increased up to $360 a month. A person 50 per cent disabled would receive half that amount.

b. The basis on which this scale was drawn is presumably loss in earning capacity based on average wages.

c. Payments are increased or decreased as the disability becomes greater or less, and stop entirely if a person gets well.

This is the system in effect for all enlisted men with less than 20 years' service and was the system for all nonregular officers until 1928. It is the system by which officers who are not certified for retirement pay but who do have a disability are now compensated.

The purpose of disability compensation is completely different from the purpose of retirement. Disability compensation is payment for disabilities received while in the service; its purpose is rehabilitation until the individual can resume his normal pursuits. The purpose of retirement is the removal of ineffective officers; the compensation is for services rendered and for mandatory termination of a career.

Arbitrary Percentage

IT BECAME apparent after World War I that there was a great difference between the disability compensation given a wartime officer and the retirement pay of a regular officer. The discrepancy was most apparent among junior officers of relatively the same service. Actually few regular junior officers were ever retired.

A regular lieutenant found unfit for military service was retired and given 75 per cent of his pay for life, regardless of the extent or length of time he had the disability. The nonregular received compensation based upon the extent of the disability, and unless he was totally disabled the amount was considerably less. If he got well the payments were reduced or stopped entirely.

Shortly after World War I, agitation began for legislation to put the disabled nonregular officer of World War I on the same basis as the retired regular officer. In 1928 the Tyson-Fitzgerald bill was passed by Congress. This provided that nonregular officers disabled 30 per cent should be placed on the emergency officers' retired list at 75 per cent of their pay. The President vetoed the bill, and in his veto message said:

"This bill proposed to compensate a limited number of emergency officers not according to their disability but according to the rank which they held in World War I . . . It discriminates against emergency officers of less than 30 per cent disability and all disabled enlisted men of World War I."

The bill was passed again on May 24, 1928, and became law.

At that time, however, it applied only to veterans of a previous war. The number involved was not large.

In 1939 a bill was introduced to increase the Air Corps by calling 3000 Reserve officers to extended active duty. In the House, a proviso was added to confer retirement benefits on Reserve officers disabled while on active duty.

The act was passed after some changes were made. Because it was tied to the Retirement Act of the Regular Army, "fitness for military service," not fitness for civilian pursuits, became the criterion for determination as to whether an officer should receive compensation. The amount of compensation depended upon an officer's rank and not upon the extent of the disability. Furthermore, the retirement pay would continue for life regardless of any later change in the officer's condition.

Swelled to 600,000

IT IS doubtful if anyone at that time realized the full import of this law. When it was enacted, 3000 young aviators on extended active duty were being considered. Six years later it had to be applied during the demobilization, within 18 months, of an Army of 900,000 officers and 7,400,000 enlisted men.

In the 25 years preceding 1940, and including World War I, less than 3000 officers were retired, an average of 125 a year. In 1945 there were 600,000 officers who had to be separated from the service within 1½ years.

To insure that the rights of the individual and of the Government were both protected, and to have information for future reference in case of claims, the War Department required every person due to be separated from the service to undergo a complete final physical examination. If there was any indication of a physical disability the officer was hospitalized for treatment and complete observation.

Upon completion of observation the officer was put before a disposition board composed of medical officers. That board made a determination as to his fitness for general military service. So far as nonregulars due for separation were concerned if there was any question as to their fitness they were ordered before a retiring board.

The reports of the retiring boards were forwarded to the Surgeon General for review.

In practically every case where the findings of a retiring board were disapproved, the officer, if a nonregular, was ordered before a new retiring board if he was still in the service or offered that privilege if he had been separated.

'Permanency' Puzzle

THIS was necessitated by the determinations that had to be made. To be eligible for retirement or retirement pay, an officer had to be unfitted for military duty, the disability had to be permanent and the disability had to be an incident of the service. The determination of fitness for military duty was not too difficult, but the other two determinations caused a great deal of difficulty.

In many cases it is extremely hard for a doctor to say definitely that a disability is permanent except after prolonged observation.

Many times the officer was actually disabled at the time of appearance before a retiring board, but sound medical opinion was that within a year or so he would be completely well. Because the officer had to be per-

"Curley" Ferguson (left), who runs a hardware store and pool parlor in Stinnett and who lets customers ring up their own purchases, sells some carriage bolts to H. S. Hays

By William C. Barnard

STINNETT, Tex., Feb. 7 (AP).—A freezing mist stung the stranger's face when he got off the bus in this northern Panhandle town. He saw nothing that looked like a hotel—just a row of weather-beaten business houses bordering the highway from Borger and Amarillo.

Constable Ben Foster, a small, lean, middle-aged man, walked up and stuck out a hand.

"What can I do for you, friend?"

"I have to spend the night and I'm looking for a room."

"I'll get you fixed up," Foster said, smiling. "If Ed hasn't got something maybe Curley will have, and if Curley's full up I'll put you up in the jury dormitory at the courthouse. We're not trying anybody right now."

Then he added reassuringly: "Don't worry about a room—Stinnett never turns anybody away."

Ed was clear out of rooms and so was Frantz (Curley) Ferguson. But Ferguson, owner of a hardware store and pool parlor, had an idea:

"My youngest can spend the night with his grandma. My wife and I will move into his room and this man can have the big bedroom with the desk."

The visitor protested, but Ferguson refused to listen.

"It's all settled," Curley said. "Now, here's my car keys—you probably have some running around to do while you're here and I don't want you getting wet and muddy."

Canopy of Smoke

IT was a typical incident here, and big city citizens who walk around the unconscious man on the sidewalk and never nod to the guy in the next apartment would be amazed.

Stinnett, with a population of 635, is the seat of Hutchinson County, which sits atop the world's greatest gas field. Thirteen miles south is Borger, carbon black center. Over most of the county the smoke hazes the atmosphere, softens the sunrise, colors the sunset and sometimes gives the appearance of an impending blue norther.

Most men of Stinnett work in carbon black plants and in the gas field. The gas wells march right into town.

Outside Stinnett are fine ranches and wheat farms, and the ranchers and farmers are part of Stinnett's community life that centers in the two-story brick school. Everyone knows everybody. There are no doctors or dentists in town and Druggist Burt Downer does quite a business patching up scratches and swabbing throats.

It was at Stinnett that Frankie Groves, 103-pound, 16-year-old junior, last fall became the first girl ever to play in an interscholastic league football game.

Businessmen decided to present Frankie with some new clothes. Curley Ferguson went out for 30 minutes and got about $100. After that he just went back to his store and people began dropping in to contribute. Nobody gave less than $5.

"We sort of make it a point to help out," Ferguson says. "A while back, a fellow here went over to Borger and a doctor told him he needed an operation and would be laid up in a hospital for three weeks. That was at noon, but the word got around. By 5 o'clock we had enough money to pay the doctor, the hospital and to keep the man's wife and three children until he could get back to work."

Everybody's Game

"THIS town goes in for athletics," says School Superintendent M. W. Graves. "Every eligible girl and boy plays basketball and every eligible boy, except three, went out for football. The three have after-school jobs. Boys and girls stay in training. I have never seen a high school girl here smoke a cigarette."

Miss June Gibbs' home economics class took in $1200 last year selling food at entertainments and hot dogs and coffee at football games. That's no easy trick, since there are no bleachers here and the crowd continually moves around.

When a fullback lights out on a 60-yard run, the fans run along the sidelines with him. Ed Fagg, 90, turned out for one game last fall and trotted up and down the sidelines, too, saying, "I'm going to see this game if it kills me."

Coach Truman Johnson, 220-pound Irish-Cherokee Indian from Oklahoma, teaches history and civics and drives one of the three school buses, making two 15-mile runs a day. The former Centenary football star and Chicago Cardinal professional sets out before sunrise and gets home after dark.

In his store, Ferguson runs things from an easy chair at the rear of the shop. A man came in, picked out a frying pan, rang up the sale on the cash register, got his change, waved to Curley and departed.

Curley's visitor was impressed by this easy self-service.

"Is it a good idea to let people get in your cash register?" he asked.

"Why not?" Curley shrugged. "If they get short-changed they have nobody to blame but themselves."

Abe Lincoln Wove Constant Pattern

This picture of Lincoln, apparently a copy of the Alexander Hesler photograph, was restored by Henri G. Courtais, New York artist, from a print that was almost unrecognizable from age. The Hesler portrait was made during Lincoln's first presidential campaign, when he was 51, and is one of the last to show him without a beard. It is now in the F. H. Meserve Collection

By James Russell Wiggins

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S universality derives both from the universal wisdom with which he dealt with his problems and from the universal character of these problems themselves. So it is with most of history's immortals.

Statesmen of equal greatness may bring to problems peculiar to their time alone a comparable measure of genius without acquiring a legend that causes men, generations later, to return to their records for light on contemporary affairs.

This aspect of Lincoln is evident on each anniversay of his birth. He remains a living force in American society, and in the world, partly because he so frequently dealt with imperishable issues that reappear in new dress in new decades.

Time is so important an element that it is dangerous to transplant the wisdom of a statesman in fields outside the century fences of his being. It is an experiment, however, that is so fascinating that no amateur can resist it, no matter how many wilted vines attest the hazards. The wisdom of Lincoln is the object of much such historical uprooting and transplantation.

Similar Problems

LINCOLN WOULD find this generation no better prepared than his to solve the unanswered conundrum of government that he voiced in his congressional message of 1861:

"Must a government, of necessity, be too strong for the liberties of its own people, or too weak to maintain its own existence?"

The problems of trying to make sure of men's loyalty to their government were as much a part of Lincoln's time as they are of our own.

It was also his task to deal with military leaders who had political potential. Perhaps General Eisenhower, when he put aside political ambition, was not unmindful of the bad example of General McClellan. If Lincoln could step onto the scene, how he would envy President Truman his good fortune in military commanders.

Lincoln was no stranger to the problems of organized labor in an industrial society. At New Haven, in 1860, during the New England shoe strike, he said:

"I am glad to see that a system of labor prevails in New England under which laborers can strike when they want to, where they are not obliged to work under all circumstances, and are not tied down and obliged to labor whether you pay them or not. I like the system which lets a man quit when he wants to, and wish it might prevail everywhere."

His Party 'Mixed'

THERE IS A Marxian ring to this sentence out of Lincoln's address to the Workingman's Association of New York in 1864:

"The strongest bond of human sympathy, outside of the family relation, should be one uniting all working people, of all nations and tongues and kindreds."

If this sounds like a trumpet in the class struggle, it should be read with another excerpt from this same speech:

"Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise."

Present-day Republicans may feel that the party is mixed and divided on many issues. Lincoln had plenty of experience with a mixed and divided Republican host. This descriptive paragraph is from T. Harry Williams' "Lincoln and the Radicals:"

"No polyglot army of an ancient emperor ever exhibited more variety than did the Republican party of 1860. Within its diverse ranks were radicals and abolitionists who wanted to destroy every vestige of slavery, moderates who had been content to restrict its expansion into the territories, Whigs, Free-Soilers, and anti-slavery Democrats, Eastern manufactures who hoped for a protective tariff and Western farmers who favored free trade, hardened machine politicians and visionary reformers."

Sectionalism

THE great struggle over slavery, it is too painfully clear in these days, was not ended in Lincoln's time, nor was it solely an issue of human servitude. How remarkably persistent are the racial problems of which slavery was one aspect! The dilemma of racial inequality in a society professing the equality of man turns out to be one of the American problems universal in time. The civil rights reports and presidential messages of 1948 make this clear.

And how persistent are the problems of violent sectionalism with which President Lincoln had to deal! It would amaze the Civil War War President to read today's newspapers and learn of Southern Congressman grumbling about civil rights messages; of a Southern insurrection in the Democratic Party; of calls for a conference of Southern Governors.

These things, to be sure, are only the vestigial remnants of the old disease. They serve to show how hardy the issues out of which the old sectionalism developed.

Even problems of administrative nature seem to enjoy some kind of immortality. The difficulties of divided military command confronted Lincoln with some of his most troublesome problems just as they have other Presi-

Enemy Could Trap Our Fleet

Canal a Potential Pearl Harbor

By Clarke Beach

PANAMA'S turn-down of a United States request to keep military bases on her soil appears beside the point in view of a report by a high-rank group of military and atomic energy experts.

These men say that our present Panama Canal could not be defended regardless of how many bases we had. This was stressed repeatedly in an exhaustive study which Congress recently received from the Governor of the Panama Canal, J. C. Mehaffey.

Congress ordered the investigation in 1945. It cost almost five million dollars and was conducted largely by officials of the Army, Navy, Air Forces and the Atomic Energy Commission.

The report, which was unanimously agreed to in all essential particulars, concluded that only a sea-level canal would be secure against attack. It said such a canal could be built most economically at the site of the present waterway.

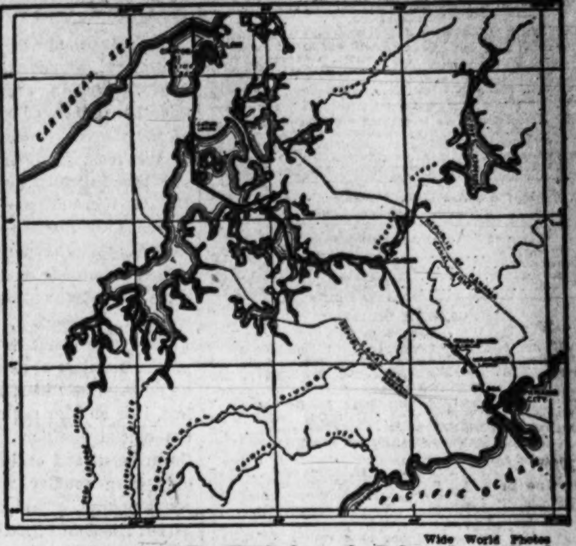
"The military defenses of the canal could not prevent a determined and resourceful enemy from striking the canal with one or more of the modern weapons loaded with atomic or conventional explosives," said the report . . . "The canal as it exists today cannot be considered as meeting the future needs of national defense . . .

"Even with a very strong military defense, no assurance would exist that an enemy could not penetrate to the canal with aircraft of great speed carrying conventional or atomic weapons, or with aerial rockets and torpedoes."



Wide World Photos

Vast Fleet Trap

THE vulnerable features of the Panama or any other lock canal are the locks and the "summit lake" (Gatun Lake in the case of the Panama Canal), which supplies water for navigation and lockage.

One or two atomic bombs or a series of hits by conventional bombs could breach the lock chambers, or the retaining walls of Gatun, an artificial lake. Even if the structures could be rebuilt, it would then take one or two years to refill the lake, depending on the rainfall.

A successful sneak attack when our fleet was making the 8½-hour canal passage would thus be a double Pearl Harbor. We would lose the use of the highly strategic canal, and major components of our sea power would be marooned for perhaps two years.

According to the report, lingering radioactivity would prevent repair of the locks. New ones would have to be constructed some distance away, and this would take at least four years.

The experts believe, however, that no conceivable attack on a sea-level canal would close the channel for more than a few weeks. They said slopes could be constructed to prevent landslides.

Atomic bombing of the channel would block it with radioactive debris, but the experts say that if personnel and equipment were available the obstruction could be removed within a few weeks.

Tidal Locks Debated

THE proposed sea-level canal would have tidal regulating structures on the Pacific side. These could be wrecked by bombs, but the report says the canal then could be used as an open waterway.

Need for these tidal regulating structures was the only thing on which the board did not agree unanimously.

Between high and low tides on the Pacific side the water sometimes drops or rises 20 feet. The maximum on the Atlantic side is only two feet. This would cause a current as swift as 4½ knots, which would endanger vessels if their power failed.

The tidal structures would consist essentially of a set of locks for the passage of vessels when the tide was high or low, and a navigable pass in a separate channel.

Needed for Supply

AN isthmian canal is as vital to our national defense as ever, a high naval authority said recently, regardless of the fact that we now have a two-ocean Navy. He said we need it not only to shift elements of our naval strength rapidly, but to transport supplies between our Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Railroads could not take on the burden of cargoes normally transported by water. If our merchant fleet had to make the journey around South America, it would add 7873 dangerous miles to each trip, greatly diminishing also the tonnage available for commerce.

During the last war combat ships made 6400 canal transits, other military craft 10,300. Already, however, the military value of the canal has been reduced. The 110-foot wide locks are too narrow to pass the carriers Franklin D. Roosevelt, Midway and Coral Sea, which are 113 feet wide.

The canal report estimates that relatively cheap alterations, costing about $130,000,000, would enable the canal to pass all the traffic which could be expected within this century, except oversize vessels.

If a new lock canal were constructed on approximately the present site, with locks large enough to carry the biggest ships we are likely to build before the year 2000, the report estimates the cost at $2,308,000,000.

A sea-level canal, which the experts regard as the only really secure type, would cost $2,483,000,000 and take 10 years to build.

The Real Issue

The home-rule bill is being struck foul blows, in our opinion, by citizens who pretend to favor the establishment of democratic government here. It is said, for example, that the Auchincloss-Ball bill is only "half a loaf." A considerable number of citizens have solemnly gone before the joint House-Senate committee in opposition to the bill because it does not give the District representation in Congress and in the system for election of the President. This argument is so utterly phony that we think it discredits those who make it rather than the home-rule bill.

Under no circumstances could a home-rule bill include a grant of national representation to the District. National representation requires a constitutional amendment that would have to be passed by two-thirds votes in the House and Senate and win aproval of three fourths of the States. Such a resolution would have to come out of the Judiciary Committees—not the Committees on the District, which are sponsoring the present bill. Even if by some remote chance the two proposals should be simultaneously approved by Congres, home rule would presumably come into effect first because of the time that would be required to secure ratification of the proposed constitutional amendment.

It is utterly unrealistic, therefore, to call the home-rule bill half a loaf. That measure is a full grant of local suffrage—the only kind of suffrage that Congress can grant by simple legislation. Any conscientious student of public affairs knows, moreover, that the grant of local suffrage would give the strongest possible lift to the cause of national representation. Every local official would have to stand for national representation to get himself elected. The local government, representing the wishes of the people, would have to knock continuously at the door of Congress for the wider grant of suffrage. To oppose home rule, then, is to oppose any sort of suffrage in Washington. In effect, the short-sighted citizens who are saying that they do not want home rule without national representation are fighting for continuance of authoritarian rule in the District, and we think they ought to have the courage to acknowledge that fact.

No less unrealistic is the group opposing the bill because it deviates from some accepted practices in other cities. The provision allowing District residents domiciled in the States to vote in the local elections has become a special target. But the basic test of a municipal charter is whether it is adapted to the special requirements of the city proposing to use it. Washington is a unique city. Some departures from customary rules are necessary to give the proposed District home-rule system a fair chance for success. We cannot avoid the feeling that adjustments for this purpose—adjustments thoughtfully worked out by the Auchincloss Committtee—are being unfairly exploited by those who are seeking to defeat any restoration of democratic government in the District. Fortunately, the joint committee appears to be well aware of the flimsiness of these devious attacks. It must be impressed also by the fact that opponents of District suffrage feel themselves to be on such insecure ground that they strike at phantoms instead of the central issue of restoring democratic government.

Flying Schedules

In proposing a 5 per cent rebate to passengers when planes are more than 30 minutes late, Northwest Airlines has an interesting approach to one of the principal vexations to airline passengers and managements alike. The rebate is similar to a device initiated by the railroads on extra-fare trains. It is, however, a palliative rather than a cure for the delays and cancellations caused by bad weather.

The most pressing airline problem today is not crashes, but the unreliability of flying schedules. As the President's Air Policy Commission observes with a wry twist, "It is irksome to passengers to make a great effort to get to the airport 20 or 30 minutes before scheduled departure, a practice recommended by the airlines, only to wait an hour or more for the take-off. This is especially true on early morning flights." The answer lies in a concerted effort to find better means of all-weather navigation and traffic control—an effort which, incidentally, would dovetail with the development of better safety devices. There is, to be sure, no one panacea, but there are several methods long tested by the Air Force and Navy which would provide great improvement over the present situation. A broad effort will require substantial governmental help, but first the airlines must make up their own minds to go ahead on a unified rather than piecemeal basis.

Atom Correspondence

The interchange of ideas on international control of atomic energy between Prof. Albert Einstein and four noted Soviet scientists, published in the current Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, is certainly one of the most depressing symptoms of the sick time in which we live. Some time ago Dr. Einstein advanced the idea, shared by a number of his British and American colleagues, that the danger to the world inherent in atomic weapons could be overcome only by a general renunciation of national sovereignty, only, indeed, by a world government representative of peoples rather than of nation states. This is by no means a new idea, to be sure. Nevertheless, it is an idea radically at variance with the official position of the United States Government and could have been advanced only in a country where dissent is still countenanced. That the idea is indorsed by Dr. Einstein of itself makes it deserving at least of serious consideration, we should think, by all men of intelligence and good will.

Dr. Einstein's Russian fellow scientists have responded, however, in an open letter published in The New Times of Moscow, as though the distinguished American physicist were a mere tool or dupe of Wall Street. The idea of world government, they declare, is put forward "by frank imperialists who are trying to use it to conceal their plans of unlimited expansion." And then the Russians endeavor to disparage the concept as a scheme to subvert the Soviet Union, arguing that the United States would dominate the world parliament just as it now, according to the Russian critics, dominates the United Nations—through coercion, economic control and the deception of the capitalist press.

This sort of jingoism is to be expected, of course, from Soviet politicians and publications; it has its abundant counterpart over here. But from men of science one is entitled to ask something more. What is so peculiarly disheartening about these stale cliches in this context is the simple fact that they emanate from men who ought, like Prof. Einstein, to be above the vulgar battle. If scientists can do no better in dealing with the most formidable problem of our age than to descend to billingsgate, what hope of accord is there among mere statesmen?

But perhaps these Soviet scientists never actually wrote the letter published over their names. It reads like an editorial from The New Times. It may have been the work of some official in the Propaganda Ministry which the scientists were compelled to represent as their own. This interpretation scarcely makes it less ominous. In any case, Dr. Einstein's dignified reply seems unanswerable:

> Is it really unavoidable that, because of our passions and our inherited customs, we should be condemned to annihilate each other so thoroughly that nothing would be left over which would deserve to be conserved? Is it not true that all the controversies and differences of opinion which we have touched upon in our strange exchange of letters are insignificant pettinesses compared to the danger in which we all find ourselves? Should we not do everything in our power to eliminate the danger which threatens all nations alike?

These are the words of a scientist and a citizen of the world. Can they evoke no kindred response from men of kindred character in the Soviet Union? As Dr. Einstein observed, "The objective of avoiding total destruction must have priority over any other objective."

The Mahasabha

The plot to assassinate Pandit Nehru, Sardar Patel and various other leaders of the new Indian government has been laid to the group of Hindu zealots who call themselves the Mahasabha. In consequence the Mahasabha, along with various other groups of militants, Hindu, Moslem and Sikh, has now been outlawed by decree. By implication the Mahasabha is also held responsible for the murder of Mohandas Gandhi, since the murderer has been identified as a member of that sect.

The Mahasabha appears to have had its origin as a group of ultra-orthodox Hindus who had banded together for the purpose of protecting their religious traditions and laws, including the institutions of caste, from what they considered the contamination of western ideology, modernism and latitudinarianism. In this aspect they might be considered a kind of Hindu fundamentalists. During Gandhi's agitation for independence they constituted themselves into a political party, under the leadership of Vinayak Damodar Savakar and Bahai Parmanand, both of whom were active in the great civil disobedience campaigns. Yet in the latter days of the British Raj the Mahasabha was considered to be one of the "moderate nationalist" parties, since it had expressed its willingness to accept dominion status for India, in contrast to the Congress Party which demanded nothing less than immediate and unqualified independence. At the same time the Mahasabha was bitterly opposed to the creation of a separate Moslem state in India as demanded by the Moslem League. It strongly supported the government in the recent war; supplying recruits for the army and workers for the munitions factories.

With the creation of Pakistan, however, the role of the Mahasabha in Indian politics was quickly changed from centrism to extremism. It became one of the sources of propaganda which have kept alive the epidemic of violence and terror, that has thrown an evil shadow over the first months of Indian independence. Meanwhile, the Congress Party, by virtue of its triumph, has been forced by circumstances into what can only be described as a counterrevolutionary position. It finds itself obliged to suppress with all sternness the flames of particularism and fanaticism it had fanned for so many years. It finds itself obliged to adopt the same draconian measures in dealing with the zealots that were employed against its own agitators by the British; and already it is reported that leaders of the Mahasabha have been summarily jailed.

Long-Range Unification

In his valedictory talk at the National Press Club the other day, General Eisenhower made what we consider the most incisive statement yet of the real meaning of unification as it bears on the men in the armed forces. Within a few years General Eisenhower envisions a joint training program for graduates of West Point and Annapolis whereby they will live together and hence share a common experience and understanding of their responsibilities to the Nation. The desirability of such indoctrination of young officers along lines of unity rather than partisanship hardly needs emphasis. Beyond this, General Eisenhower speaks of free transfers between the services except where technical considerations prohibit them. There is scarcely a man whose usefulness would not be increased by such interchange of experience. Finally, the outgoing Chief of Staff suggests that after some years of duty, senior officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force lose their identity with one particular service and become instead officers of the armed forces as a whole. That surely is a less wasteful way to classify men of demonstrated competence whose value to the Nation goes beyond the confines of one narrow channel.

These are indeed goals to shoot at, goals which if achieved and accompanied by comparable changes on operating levels, give genuine promise of adding to the national security. As a matter of fact, this welding of personnel is the most important consideration of all, for the real test of any armed force is less in materiel than in the caliber of leadership. The fundamental aim of unification is not to impose a strait jacket that requires unity of thinking, but precisely the opposite. What is to be sought is a state of mind that goes beyond petty squabbles and interservice jealousies, a quality of thinking that regards the defense forces not as allies but as one team to which individual esprit de corps and background contribute. Originality and differences of opinion are not only to be expected but to be encouraged within the broader reference of the common task.

To Make Sport Withal

For a good many years we have entertained the suspicion that the modern Olympic games do much more harm than good to the cause of international understanding and amity. This suspicion, it seems to us, is fully confirmed by the dispatches that have been coming out of St. Moritz in Switzerland, where the fifth quadrennial series of winter games is now in progress. The games have been punctuated by a number of incidents which make a travesty of everything that is understood by the word sportsmanship.

First, there was the bitter and obscene squabble between the two hockey teams which claimed the privilege of representing the United States. Thus the members of the team representing the American Amateur Association when it took to the ice against the Swiss last Saturday were jeered and insulted by their own compatriots as well as by foreigners of every nationality. On the same day a general brawl occurred between members of the Canadian and Swedish hockey teams, and the manager of the American bobsled team announced that the steering mechanisms of the American sleds had been tampered with in a way which, if it had not been discovered, might have imperiled the lives of the racers. A few days later it was discovered that somebody had stolen the Olympic flag from the mast over the St. Moritz ice stadium. Weather conditions have been highly unfavorable and there has been much disgruntlement about the management of various events by Olympic committees.

All this, it seems to us, can have no other effect than to exacerbate national animosities. This, indeed, has been the evident result of most of the Olympic festivals of the past. The notion that international athletic contests promote international understanding and good fellowship has by now been utterly exploded. The intensely competitive nature of these exhibitions serves to exaggerate the element of national prestige and the desire to win is not moderated by religious scruple about the manner of winning, as it was in the case of the ancient Panhellenic games at Olympia, Delphi, Nemea and Corinth. The history of the modern Olympiads now covers a period of more than 50 years, but nothing in this history encourages us to believe that the games are capable of providing the "moral equivalent of war" prescribed by William James.

Marshall Plan Economy

The move to reduce the requested appropriation of $6,800,000,000 necessary for the first year's operation of the Marshall Plan is not a move in the direction of economy. Just the reverse. A dollar put to work in Europe this year will give far greater returns than a dollar spent next year and will assure substantial savings in appropriations in the succeeding years.

Coal, for instance, is generally acknowledged to hold the key to the improvement of European economy. More coal produces more food and machinery; more food and machinery produces more coal. This increase is cumulative and progressive. In an economy that is in low gear, this accelerating process will continue through the four years of the Marshall Plan. The volume of resultant production is obviously dependent upon the size of the initial appropriation. That is why it is so vital to the success of the Marshall Plan that the first year's appropriation be sufficient.

By appropriating the requisite sum this year, we make certain that the sums needed in succeeding years will be less than the present estimates. By appropriating less than the full amount, we lose the opportunities for economies and savings in appropriations in the succeeding years. The cheapest is not always the most economical.

There is, to be sure, no commitment to make appropriations for the following years. It is certain, however, that such appropriations must be made if we do not wish to waste the larger part of the sums previously expended. Actually, then, all that we gain by a reduction in the first year's appropriation is the interest on the dollar amount of the reduction for one year. Our losses would be incalculably larger.

Large economies can best be effected if there are no interlocking directorates and boards of advisers at various policy levels. The administrator will not lack for advice. It will pour in on him in profusion and confusion from all parts of the globe. Pick a good man and give him the opportunity to make good.

Aid To Education

President Truman's Commission on Higher Education needs to be commended for recommending Federal aid exclusively to publicly supported colleges over the protest of the Catholic members on the commission, who wanted Catholic colleges to share in the benefits. The spokeman of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the dean of the graduate school at Catholic University said the exclusion has "dangerous implications."

Of course, it has "dangerous implications" for any private or religious educational institution that would accept Government patronage and would form a financial alliance with the Government, as the majority report stated that any school accepting public funds should also accept "the right of the people as a whole to exercise review and control of the educational policies and procedures of that institution."

The Supreme Court of the United States ruled that "the Government has a right to control whatever it subsidizes." If the Catholic or Protestant colleges denominationally owned and operated do not want to lose their freedom of inquiry and independence of action, they had better not accept financial aid from the Government.

The Catholic hierarchy would do well to heed the wise admonition the editors of the Pittsburgh Catholic magazine, an official diocesan organ, of March 17, 1938, gave to Catholic educators, saying: "When state funds are accepted, some measure of state interference and control must also be accepted. State money for Catholic schools means close dealings with public officials; it means political connections; it means dictation regarding the manner in which the schools are to be conducted . . . Under favorable conditions, assistance from the public treasury is a handicap and a difficulty; under unfavorable circumstances, it can become a catastrophe. The entire history of the church, emphasized by recent events, shows that public funds come at too dear a price. Mexico had state aid, and so had Spain, and Germany and Italy, and France. And it proved a weakening, demoralizing connection. Better the sacrifice and the limitations which independence requires than the unsound edifice built on the deceptive, treacherous basis of state aid."

"Palestine Contrasts"

"Justice," in his letter published February 5, not only disagrees with the suggestion in your editorial "Palestine Contrasts" of January 24, but also with the decision of the United Nations to partition Palestine into a Jewish and an Arab state.

Without entering into any details regarding the rights of the Jewish people to Palestine as their national homeland, suffice to say that two world forums, the League of Nations after the first world war, and now the United Nations, have sanctioned these rights.

In regard to "Justice's" worry that if one American soldier is killed in Palestine the result will be a tremendous wave of anti-Semitism in the United States, he can rest in peace, as no American soldier will have to go to Palestine. It is proposed that the constabulary necessary to maintain law and order in the interim period between British evacuation and the establishment of the Jewish state shall be recruited from among the smaller nations. None of the big powers will send any men.

Interior's Murals

In The Washington Post of January 18, you presented two of a set of four murals by Millard Sheets. These murals are to decorate the walls of the Department of the Interior Building. They depict Negro participation in the cultural development of the Nation. But they arouse several questions in my mind.

Why is one of the kneeling figures bare from the waist up? Is that a customary costume in Negro religious services, or does it portray ancient styles?

Why are the dignified concert pianist and singer shown as tiny figures in the background while a long-legged half-naked dancer, and guitarist are the most prominent figures in the mural of The Arts? Is that because Negro artists present their art in a state of undress more often than in a dignified cultured manner?

Are the science and education figures to portray a large expansion of naked flesh, or will they appear in normal garb?

Picture records of the Nation's climb to prominence are pleasing things, but why not make the records with a degree of accuracy in dress, time and accomplishment? I thank the Department of Interior and Mr. Sheets for giving recognition to the Negroes' contribution to national culture, but please take that half-naked man out of religion.

Eisenhower's Refusal

The parallel between General Eisenhower's recent lengthy letter (" . . . I could not accept nomination . . . " plus 797 other words) and General Sherman's 12-word statement ("If nominated I will not accept. If elected I will not serve.") has been drawn ad nauseum.

Overlooked have been the eight words of another great American soldier, Andrew Jackson: "The Presidency cannot properly be sought nor declined."

"No Relief From Slums"

Your February 2 editorial on the House of Representatives' rejection of a request for an appropriation of $3,400,000 for land redevelopment showed that the writer was not fully informed on the program.

The February 4 issue of The Washington Post reported a meeting of the D. C. Board of Trade. In discussing land redevelopment, Mr. Mark Lansburgh, head of the D. C. Redevelopment Authority, said that "increasing living space for higher-income population nearer the central area" would slow decentralization. This confirms the statement of the colored civic leaders before the congressional committee. What the Board of Trade wishes is to move out the low-income group of Negroes immediately north of the business section to ghettoes in the southeastern section of this city.

Slum clearance is used as a cloak to hide the sinister motives which are the real purpose of the redevelopment program. About 10 or 15 years ago a Government agency prepared tentative plans for redeveloping a large section of the southwest section of this city.

At this time the National Capital Park and Palnning Commission refuses to disclose what it proposed to do with the land in the northwest and southwest sections of this city when it has been redeveloped. This information should be given in a public hearing by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia before any budget estimates for "land" redevelopment are submitted to Congress.

It is proposed, as stated in the same article in your paper, that some of the redeveloped land be used for fringe parking lots, and also large parking garages, on the margin of the business district.

It is not necessary to tear down much-needed housing in this emergency to make parking lots. Space for constructing parking garages to house many thousands of cars is found over Eckington railway yards north of New York ave., which is from 1000 to 3000 feet wide and a mile and a half long. From here the business district can be reached in 10 minutes by motor or bus. In New York City office buildings are constructed over the New York Central Railway right-of-way. Houston, Tex., is considering building a two-million-dollar six-story parking garage to span a bayou running through the city's center to solve its parking problem.

All sensible citizens favor slum clearance, but insist that it be conducted for the benefit of all citizens and not so as to create Negro ghettoes. Displaced citizens should be rehoused on the same land from which they are dispossessed when redevelopment is progressively completed.

Is Tension Relaxing?

By Andre Visson

Words Lose Strength

THERE IS a strange feeling in Washington these days. The torrents of lies and slander against the United States keep pouring forth from the Soviet press and radio. Soviet notes of protest keep showering down on the State Department as well as on foreign governments friendly to us: Protest against our planes flying over Soviet ships in the Yellow Sea; protest against an American-British airbase in Libya; protest against the visit of American battleships to Italian harbors; protest against the presence of American military missions in Iran and the alleged American supervision of various military preparations in that country. These diplomatic notes, couched in not too diplomatic language are, contrary to custom, released immediately, and trumpeted by all the means at the disposal of Soviet propaganda.

On our part, we have released the greatest propaganda in our arsenal — the secret Soviet-Nazi documents. And we continue to send sharply worded notes to Soviet satellites such as Romania, accusing them of violating their pledges and commitments.

If one were to judge the situation by the strong words, the diplomatic notes, and the unprecedented violence of the Soviet propaganda barrage, one could only conclude that we were facing a most serious crisis. But listening to the high officials in Washington and to responsible foreign diplomats, one is astonished to hear them ask one another: "Do you not have the feeling that the international tension is easing up?"

Are these men just indulging in wishful thinking? Or is there really some justification for this undercurrent of optimism which—though it has not yet been officially expressed—can be easily discerned in the diplomatic circles of the Nation's Capital.

WHEN YOU try to track down what lies behind this feeling of optimism, this feeling that we are succeeding in the containment of Soviet Russia, there seems to be no concrete or convincing evidence. Responsible diplomats are unanimous in their admission that the eastern Mediterranean remains exactly the same "danger zone" that it was six months ago; that the tension in Trieste, Greece, Palestine and Iran is the same; that the forthcoming Italian elections in April may bring serious trouble either by giving the Communist-Socialist bloc a majority, or by inciting the Communists to start disturbances if they should realize that they cannot win the elections.

What then is the main reason for the undercurrent of optimism? It is to be found not in the realm of concrete facts, but rather in the more general domain of human reactions. Responsible diplomatic observers feel that words, as violent as they may be, or perhaps because of their very violence, lose their potency and consequently their psychological effect when not followed by action.

Two years ago American foreign policy was frequently criticized abroad — and sometimes at home — for making too generous use of words, of declarations of high intentions, of devotion to moral principles, of indignation over the violation of those principles and of various international commitments—without supporting the words with action.

Now we cannot help having a feeling of relief when we find that all the violent oratory of the Soviet diplomats and propagandists, all their lies and slander revealing their lowest motives and most sinister objectives, also remain unsupported by action. We do not know whether the Soviets and their satellites have reached the point where our words of protest have ceased to impress them. Perhaps so. But we do know that the violent Soviet slander and denunciations against us have ceased to impress us.

IS THIS all to the good? I am not sure. We are now waging a war in which psychological factors are what count most. But I think it would be dangerous to depend too much on the psychological reactions alone. We must analyze what it was that prevented us from following all our notes of protest for the last two years with deeds, and try to understand the reasons which are now preventing the Soviets from following their propaganda campaign with action.

The truth is that we have been protesting against Soviet actions in a region in which we were unable to act, because we did not have the necessary force there. We could not send our battleships into the Yugoslav, Bulgarian or Romanian harbors, or seize the envoys of these countries in Washington as hostages in order to prevent the execution of Mikhailovich and Petkov, or the trial of Maniu, without starting a shooting war. And now the Soviets, in their turn, are protesting against actions of ours and denouncing us for various fantastic aggressive designs in a region where they are in no position to act, unless they are willing to start a shooting war.

In other words, it took us two years to realize our geographic limitations in eastern Europe. And it has taken the Soviets less than that to realize their geographic limitations in the eastern Mediterranean. This conclusion may justify the optimistic undercurrent now prevailing in Washington. But let us not be too sanguine. Let us not forget that the Soviets can use in our zone pressures which we cannot use in theirs.

'Senator' Truman Irks Old Pals

By Drew Pearson

FDR'S running feud with Capitol Hill Democrats is a well known story, but with Harry Truman it was expected to be different. After all, he had served in the Senate, and once, as President, he even resumed his old seat on the Senate floor. He sometimes lunches with Senate Democrats in the private office of Leslie Biffle, and, even more important, he claims he understands the viewpoint of a Senator.

Today, however, Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill are just as sore at their old pal, Harry Truman, as they were at Roosevelt—possibly more so. What Alben Barkley and Sam Rayburn say about their chief in the White House can't be printed in a family newspaper.

They were especially indignant at the way he handled the attempt to fire Marriner Eccles, replacing him with dyed-in-the-wool Republican Tom McCabe. They were also burned up at the way Truman ousted James Landis from Civil Aeronautics, after his long service for the Government and after Truman had given a categorical commitment to Rayburn that Landis would be reappointed.

And, finally, they are not at all happy over the present tax battle and the fact that they have to go down the line for what they call Truman's "screwball" plan to reduce everybody's taxes by $40.

Probably the boys will be back in the fold about the time of the Democratic Convention in Philadelphia, but in the interim some of them even say that if there were any way to ditch Harry Truman they would certainly do it.

Haven for Brass Hats

RETIRING brass hats have found a happy nesting ground in the International Refugee Organization. What qualifications American Army officers have for handling refugees is anybody's guess, but they have been flocking to IRO—for obvious reasons.

In the first place they get a salary of around $8000 a year which, because they work for an international organization, is income tax-free. On top of this they draw Army retirement pay which runs around $6000; in other words, a total of $14,000 a year—tax free. This is good going in any country.

Here are some of the Army brass hats who have found this out: Maj. Gen. Walter Wood, stationed in Washington; Maj. Gen. John Wood, stationed in Vienna; Maj. Gen. Hardigg, stationed in Geneva; Maj. Gen. Vincent Meyer, stationed in Venezuela; Admiral George Ments, stationed in Rome.

The British have also found what a lush roosting place the International Refugee Organization is. Of the total number of 1863 internationally recruited IRO employes, the British have 724 and the Americans 335, despite the fact that the United States so far has contributed about 80 per cent of the IRO budget. The British contribute only 15 per cent.

Under the Dome

WIVES of Republican Congressmen are hopping mad at Mrs. Truman. She has scheduled the White House reception for Congressmen on February 10, the day that most Republican Congressmen will be out making Lincoln Day speeches. GOP wives hint that Mrs. Truman wants to prevent the Republicans from getting a preview of the White House that so many of them hope to occupy next year . . . Senator Bob Taft plans to go after Harold Stassen hot and heavy in Stassen's own State of Minnesota February 12. Taft's anti-Stassen speech, which will not mention the former Governor by name, will be entitled, "What Is A Liberal?" . . . President Truman has selected Wyoming Democratic Senator Joe O'Mahoney as the Administration's No. 1 needler of Taft in Congress. O'Mahoney will battle Taft on all economic issues, which may end up in his becoming Truman's running mate . . . Jesse Klemenko, New York lawyer, has been appointed by Attorney General Tom Clark to prosecute Taft-Hartley law violations in New York, Ohio, Maryland and California. Clark wants to test the validity of the Taft-Hartley Law before the Supreme Court as soon as possible . . . Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho has told friends he will not accept the Vice Presidential nomination on the Henry Wallace ticket.

More Grain Speculators

WHILE the Senate has been swinging the spotlight on Ed Pauley and the political grain speculators, a special House committee has been plodding along in the shadows, supposedly examining the books of nonpolitical traders. Some of these traders are reputed to be big Minnesota grain dealers, friends of Minnesota's Harold Stassen and also friends of Minnesota's August Andresen, the Congressman supposed to do the investigating.

Democrats, sore at Andresen's dragging feet, finally blew off steam at a closed-door meeting of the investigating committee. John McCormack of Massachusetts and John Carroll of Colorado lashed out at Chairman Andresen for political sabotage.

"We have to get the facts before we move," shot back the Minnesota Republican. "We're not going to turn this investigation into a Roman holiday. There will be no smearing of reputations until we get the facts."

"When," pressed Carroll, "are we going to get into the big speculators?"

"We are going to do that," Andresen promised.

"Has any effort been made?" persisted the hard-hitting Colorado Congressman.

"Not yet," admitted Andresen.

Carroll got off on a new tack, and asked how many staff members had been hired.

The answer was two.

"How many does the Senate subcommittee have that is investigating speculators?"

Finally, under the spurs of Carroll and McCormack, the plodding Minnesotan agreed to hire a real investigating staff.

Capital Chaff

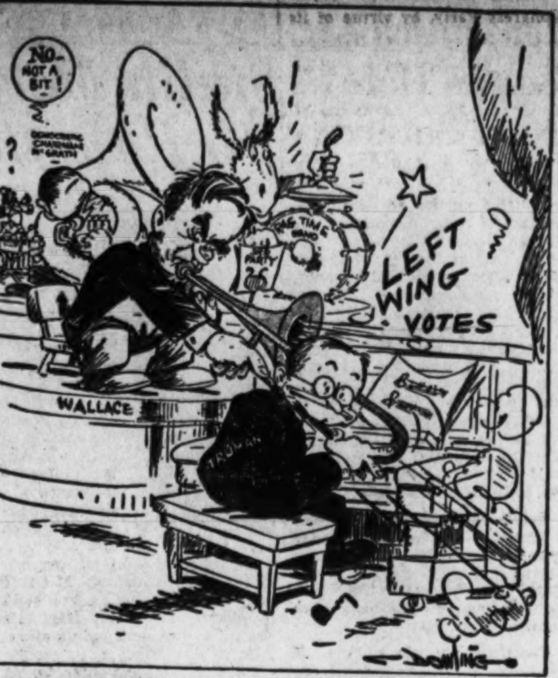
THE eighteen Republican Senators who met secretly at the home of Kansas' Clyde Reed to revamp the Marshall Plan, made one important decision that never leaked out. They agreed to block aid to any country still holding prisoners of war. This is aimed at England and France . . . Secretary of State Marshall has authorized the State Department Planning Committee to begin drafting a 4-billion-dollar Marshall Plan for the Far East. It will assist China, Japan, Australia, the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies. Marshall will submit the program to the current session of Congress . . . President Truman is considering Bob Murphy as new civilian governor of Germany when the State Department takes over June 30. Murphy is a member of the "Rebuild Germany Now" group . . . President Truman has asked his chief adviser, Clark Clifford, to prepare a new anti-inflation bill with strong price curbs, to be submitted to Congress soon . . . The Senate subcommittee investigating commodity speculation has detected a trend among economists to trade "short." In other words, they were betting that prices would go down.



ARE YOU SURE THAT DOESN'T BOTHER THE PIANO PLAYER?

All Factors Present

Political Miniature

By Luke P. Carroll

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—All the elements in the American political scene—the issues, personalities, parties and tradition—are concentrated in Illinois this year as never before in any State.

There is the traditional tug-of-war between a big city machine and determined rural dwellers, a battle that is interesting this year because it may mark the end of a Democratic machine as powerful as any in the history of the Nation.

There is the threat of a third party, an organization committed to the candidacy of Henry A. Wallace for President. This had some success in the last local election here and will be a potential factor in every contest this year whether or not it gains status as a political party.

There is the strange campaign being directed by Gov. Dwight H. Green, who, in running for his third term as chief executive of the State, is still hopeful that he will be selected for the Republican vice presidential nomination.

There is also the promise of clear-cut debate on foreign affairs in the contest for United States Senator. The Republican incumbent, C. Wayland Brooks, an arch isolationist, is opposed by Paul H. Douglas, a liberal. The result of the battle is expected to provide a true answer to the question of the sentiments of the Midwest on foreign policy.

Half and Half

IN all instances the battle lines are so sharply drawn and the personalities so clearly defined that the contests may have a more important bearing on the results of the presidential campaign than is usually the case in local elections. And since Illinois, with 28 electoral votes, has the third largest delegation, the effect of these purely local conditions cannot be overestimated.

For all practical purposes, Illinois has been divided in two on political matters. Cook County, with 52 per cent of the State population, has been under the domination of a strong Democratic machine for years. The "down-State" area has been just as stanchly Republican.

In 1946, when a strong Republican tide swept the country, the machine was badly cracked. Edward J. Kelly, the leader, and Mayor of Chicago, had surrendered his party leadership to Jacob M. Arvey, a shrewd politician, and at the same time had acknowledged that his chances of reelection were slim by refusing to be a candidate.

Arvey, aware that the machine could survive only by surrender, persuaded Martin H. Kennelly, a businessman and civic leader, to accept the Democratic nomination. The success of this maneuver was demonstrated in the election by an overwhelming majority of Kennelly, who carried into office a number of lesser Democratic city candidates.

The machine failed to provide a large enough cushion, however, to counteract the heavy Republican vote in Cook County, where Kennelly's name was not listed.

1700 Plums Lost

IN losing the majority of elections in the county, thousands of lucrative jobs held for 15 years by Democrats were handed over to Republicans. It has been estimated, for example, that the president of the Cook County Board of Supervisors has at least 1700 political plums to hand out. This year the president is a Republican and the job holders are Republicans.

The Chicago machine, more formally known as the Cook County Democratic Central Committee, is a continuing organization as permanent as Tammany Hall in New York. The only difference between the two groups is that the Chicago machine derives its name from its current leader—the Nash machine, the Kelly-Nash machine, the Kelly machine, etc.

The big question being studied by local politicians is, "Can the former Kelly machine, lacking the many jobs it once had and torn by internal dissension, recapture Chicago and Cook County and deliver enough votes to offset the downstate Republican majority?"

The need for a strong machine vote in Chicago, as shown by the results of the last mayoralty campaign, is further illustrated by the 1944 presidential election. Then Thomas E. Dewey carried downstate Illinois by more than 200,000 over President Roosevelt. The latter received 340,000 margin in Cook County, thus taking the State by 140,165 votes.

Arvey Stepping Down

ARVEY, present machine leader, has announced he will not seek reelection, so a group of ward committeemen are engaged in a battle to take over. Kelly has just about dropped out of the local picture, although he remains as national committeeman from Illinois and does have some Federal patronage at his disposal.

The new political group, now appealing to the courts for status as an established political party, took form at a special election in November when it offered a full slate of candidates in Cook County for some 20 judicial posts. Surprisingly enough, these candidates were accorded a hearty reception at the polls with the top candidate getting 44 per cent of the total vote.

In that election the third party, now known as the Progressive Citizens of Illinois, got 116,000 straight party votes. Leaders contend that this is the accurate estimate of their base strength. If so, and if only these 116,000 persons vote for Wallace for President, as expected, it would virtually assure the return of Illinois to the Republican column.

Running against Governor Green is Adlai Stevenson, wartime assistant to the late Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

So far, Stevenson has ignored local issues in his campaign, concentrating instead on foreign policy and praising the Marshall Plan. For his part, Governor Green has held to a discussion of local matters, except for several statements finding fault with the Marshall Plan.

Both Tribune Boys

SENATOR Brooks, who like Governor Green, has the full blessing of the Chicago Tribune, is basing his entire campaign on the theory that the people of Illinois have returned to their prewar isolationism. Douglas is gambling on the reverse and is pledging full support of the Marshall Plan.

This promise, incidentally, has cost him the support of the Progressive Party. Rather than indorse Douglas and possibly bring about the defeat of Senator Brooks, the Progressives announced they intended to offer a third candidate in this race.

In addition to selecting party candidates for State and local offices April 13, the voters will select delegates to the Republican National Convention and will have an opportunity to express a choice for the Presidency by voting in a preference primary.

The results of this contest will simply be an expression of sentiment in this State and will not be binding on the convention delegates. It is expected that the names of a half dozen candidates will be listed in this preferential primary.

Wallace Sickle Cleaving CIO

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

AS ONE of the curious by-products of Henry A. Wallace's dreary crusade, the battle within the CIO, which has long been simmering none too gently, is now in the process of boiling over. The signal for all-out, eye-gouging, shin-kicking warfare between the CIO's pro-Communist and anti-Communist wings is provided by the resignation of CIO Counsel Lee Pressman.

Pressman, who has been the friend at court of the CIO's "left wing," was the symbol of the facade of unity which CIO President Philip Murray has until recently been desperately struggling to maintain. While Pressman kept his post at national headquarters, public battle was avoided.

Murray has kept the CIO together by means of bailing wire, sticking plaster and a series of compromises. But the Pressman resignation is the culmination of a process which has been greatly accelerated in recent months. It means that the split in the CIO between the Communists and the great non-Communist majority is now unbridgeable. Thus there is serious speculation that the CIO may break in two even before the presidential elections next November.

Something Must Give

THE Wallace crusade (which, according to reports, Pressman now intends to join) has provided the immediate impetus for this final break. The Communists in the CIO have in the past been willing to go to considerable lengths to maintain their toehold in the American labor movement, even on occasion solemnly denouncing themselves in the interest of peace. But the Wallace campaign involves the foreign policy of the Soviet Union, and that is one area in which compromise by the Communists is not possible.

Thus when Murray some weeks ago spoke in support of the Marshall Plan on a State Department broadcast, he suddenly ceased to be "our great leader" in the pages of the Daily Worker. And when he attempted to swing the whole CIO away from Wallace, the leaders of the CIO's Communist-dominated unions for the first time publicly defied the CIO president.

The battle is now joined, and Pressman's departure is a signal that no quarter will be asked or granted. Moreover, Murray, a born compromiser but also capable of some very punishing in-fighting, has been forced out of his place above the battle and into the leadership of the CIO's non-Communist majority. The battle's outcome will depend on the lengths to which Murray is willing to go.

ALREADY, Murray has initiated an offensive on two fronts. First, he has cleaned the Communist influence entirely out of CIO national headquarters, and he is moving to do likewise on the lower echelons, particularly on the Industrial Union Councils in such cities as Cleveland, Los Angeles and New York. Second, he is starting the herculean labor of cleaning out the Political Action Committee, in which the ineffectual non-Communist Jack Kroll has been increasingly surrounded by party-liners. This will be a long and difficult task, especially since there are certain legal complications, but Murray is reported determined to go through with it.

The key question, however (and it is being anxiously asked among adherents of both sides of the struggle), is whether Murray will take the third, essential step. That step is to carry the fight into the Communist-dominated unions themselves, and especially the strategically placed United Electrical Workers, third biggest union in the CIO.

To unseat the Communist satraps in such unions as the electrical workers would be enormously difficult. Communist control of unions in which they have become thoroughly established is patterned precisely after that of such political bosses as Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, and it is equally effective. Yet there have been signs that this control is essentially brittle.

For example, when the New Jersey State CIO convention passed a resolution banning Communist officers, the delegates of the Communist-run locals walked out. But subsequently a rank and file meeting of the biggest local in New Jersey (the Camden local of the Electrical Workers) was called, and was very heavily attended. The meeting overwhelmingly rejected the action of its officers.

Full Weight Needed

YET such sporadic revolts against Communist rule are like unplanned uprisings in a conquered country. They are futile unless they are organized, directed and financed from the outside. Thus if Murray is ever really to win the battle which has now been joined, he will have to put the whole weight of the national CIO, and of his own prestige, behind a concerted, well-financed attack to break the Communist hold on such unions as the electrical workers. There is some reason to believe that he is now preparing to do just that.

For the CIO president, it is a difficult decision. It is also an important decision. For on its outcome will depend the character of the American labor movement for a long time to come.

Kirwan's Issues: Peace and Food

Democratic territory. Two Republican Presidents — Garfield and McKinley—once represented his district in Congress. Until Kirwan came to Congress, it had never elected a Democrat.

A Wallace Rival

ANOTHER explanation: Henry Wallace will enter third-party candidates in many a Northern congressional district. Kirwan can appeal to the liberals, has a Roosevelt record that even Wallace can't challenge.

The Youngstown Democrat plans a few variations on the usual direct-the-fight-from-headquarters congressional campaign.

Accompanied by Victor Hunt Harding, committee secretary, who generally does all of the cruising, Kirwan will enter each State, from Massachusetts west, as soon as party nominees are chosen.

He's already made up his mind about issues.

Listen:

"They're going to be peace and food—the two biggest things in life."

By peace, Kirwan means the No. 1 Democratic issue is going to be the Marshall Plan, its contribution to world peace and what the Republicans do to it and other international measures in Congress.

He also plans to light into the Republican record on national defense—charge the GOP with failure to support a military establishment adequate to preserve peace, from the Guam fortification test down. Only two Ohio Congressmen voted to fortify Guam. Kirwan was one of them.

Pocket or Paunch

LIKE peace, Kirwan's second issue—food—covers a lot of territory. He uses the word interchangeably with "stomachs," "bankroll" and "savings." And what he means all the time is that inflation is driving prices out of the average man's reach, cutting into his savings and making him take in his belt.

"When you touch a man's bankroll, you've made an enemy," says Kirwan. "During the war nearly everybody saved money. Now in peacetime they've used up their savings and can't make their salaries stretch. Who's to blame?"

For Democrats and Republicans alike, that's the jackpot question. The answer will determine the political complexion not only of the next national administration but probably of the next House and Senate.

Kirwan insists the country has already made up its mind.

"It's just the reverse of 1946," he says. "They don't blame the President any more. They blame the Republican Congress."

* * * *

AS a practical proposition, in a presidential year, as the Presidency goes so goes the House. The congressional and presidential campaigns of both parties are inseparably linked.

The Senate, with only a third of its membership up for election, isn't nearly so responsive to a national trend.

Whether the Presidency goes Democratic or Republican in November, the man in the White House is almost sure to have a House of his own party for two years at least. But this year there's a mathematical quirk that could give a Republican President a Democratic Senate.

Seats of 18 Republican Senators go on the election block in November. But only four Democrats, outside the Deep South, must stand for reelection, and at least three of them are in the "safe bet" category.

The purely statistical odds, therefore, would seem to be with Senate Democrats, whoever wins the Presidency. To tie the Senate politically, Democrats would have to take only 3 of the 18 Republican seats and hold their own. To take control they would have to win one additional seat.

Such a development might afford an interesting test of the Norris Amendment. That ended lame duck Congresses for all practical purposes but keeps a lame duck President in office two weeks after a new Congress moves in.

Assuming Democrats win the Senate, but lose the Presidency, political theorists are asking this question: What would happen if a defeated Democratic President, before he left office, flooded a Democratic Senate with nominations his Republican successor would normally make?

* * * *

PRESIDENT Truman's warning last week that the Nation faces economic rough going unless Congress acts to curb inflation was preceded by two little-advertised GOP intimations.

The Ways and Means Committee's Republican majority, in reporting the Knutson tax cuts to the House, "assumed" personal incomes would reach 212 billion dollars in the first half of this year, but would drop to 205 billions in the last half and decline further to 195 billion in the first half of 1949.

Said the GOP report: "This is not to be taken as a forecast of the most likely course of events, but rather as a cautious assumption well within the limits of reasonableness . . ."

Republican members of the House-Senate Legislative Budget Committee reported more baldly:

"This Nation is admittedly in grave danger of runaway inflation which, if historical precedents are any guide, might, if unchecked, result in serious economic upheavals."

There was just one important point of difference. The Republicans blamed excessive public spending. The President blamed Congress' failure to enact his inflation control program.

The Gallup Poll

ERP Recipients Suspect Motives

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

ALTHOUGH the people of England, France and Italy welcome the Marshall Plan and approve of it, there is a widespread suspicion, especially in France and England, that our chief motive in proposing the plan is to find markets to bolster our trade and stave off a depression.

This is revealed in a special public opinion survey conducted in the three nations which would be the principal recipients of aid under the Marshall Plan now being debated in Congress.

The survey was made simultaneously by three affiliates of the American Gallup Poll—the British Institute of Public Opinion, the French Institute of Public Opinion and DOXA, the Italian Institute of Public Opinion. The same questions were used in each country.

A survey of American opinion completed about the same time by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows that American conceptions of why our Government proposed the Marshall Plan are somewhat more lofty and idealistic than the conceptions held by the people of Britain, France and Italy.

The survey covered four questions. The first was:

Have you heard or read about the Marshall Plan?

The results in England, France and Italy show that the plan is better known there than it is here in the United States.

| | Have Heard | Have Not |
|---|---|---|
| England | 89% | 11% |
| France | 91 | 9 |
| Italy | 78 | 22 |
| U. S. A. | 71 | 29 |

The remaining questions were confined to those who had heard or read about the plan.

Do you favor or oppose the Plan?

| | Favor | Oppose | No opin. |
|---|---|---|---|
| England | 60% | 20% | 20% |
| France | 60 | 13 | 27 |
| Italy | 65 | 14 | 21 |

For what reason in your opinion did the United States propose the Marshall Plan?

| | Eng. | France | Italy |
|---|---|---|---|
| To help Europe, humanitarian | 24% | 23% | 35% |
| Wants markets, profits, bolstering Europe to stave off depression | 22 | 26 | 17 |
| To stop communism | 14 | 14 | 20 |
| To get more power, imperialism | 8 | 9 | 11 |
| For own safety, to promote peace | 3 | 1 | 9 |
| Other reasons | 3 | 6 | 9 |
| No opinion | 26 | 21 | 17 |

In the case of Italy the figures add to more than 100 per cent because some voters named more than one reason.

How Americans appraise our own Government's motives in proposing the Marshall Plan is indicated by how Americans voted recently in an institute poll on the question:

What is your understanding of the purpose of the Marshall Plan?

Conspicuously absent in public thinking is the idea that we propose to aid Europe to build up markets and stave off a postwar economic collapse.

| Vote in U. S. A. | |
|---|---|
| To help Europe | 56% |
| To curb communism | 8 |
| To foster better understanding with Europe | 2 |
| Other | 8 |
| No opinion | 26 |

The tri-nation poll abroad also probed the question of what reasons people think Russia has for opposing the Marshall Plan.

For what reason in your opinion does Russia oppose the Marshall Plan?

The vote follows:

| Poll in France | |
|---|---|
| To oppose U. S. A. | 25% |
| Because it goes against Russian plans to control Europe | 22 |
| Because it threatens communism | 10 |
| Because Russia is interested in keeping Europe miserable | 7 |
| For economic reasons | 5 |
| Other | 4 |
| No opinion | 27 |

| Poll in Italy | |
|---|---|
| Because it threatens communism, threatens Russia's expansion | 29% |
| Interferes with Russia's imperialistic plans | 26 |
| Russia fears improved living | 8 |
| Threatens her own safety | 7 |
| No opinion | 37 |

Some people in Italy gave more than one reason; hence the table adds to more than 100 per cent.

| Poll in England | |
|---|---|
| Fears America | 18% |
| Russia dislikes anti-Communist aim of the plan | 17 |
| Fears weakening her European position | 11 |
| Wants to dominate other countries | 10 |
| Fears a western bloc | 5 |
| Wants her own way | 7 |
| Others | 7 |
| No opinion | 25 |

No.1 Killer Is Still Eluding Heart Doctors

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—The medical war against the Nation's leading killer disease is speeding up with the advent of another "heart week."

The killer is heart and blood vessel troubles, which take the life of one of every three Americans. The rate is one death a minute.

The main kinds of heart diseases are rheumatic fever, high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. If their causes are found, means of prevention may follow.

Many important things already have been learned about fighting heart disease. Sulfa drugs help prevent recurrence of rheumatic fever, the heart weakener in many children. Surgery can correct some fundamental defects, as in "blue baby" operations. High blood pressure in selected cases can be lowered by operations on certain nerves. Penicillin has shown good results against a heart ailment caused by bacteria—subacute bacterial endocarditis. Before, it was nearly always fatal. Drugs that delay blood clotting can sometimes prevent deaths from clots that block arteries.

But the basic fact of what causes rheumatic fever, high blood pressure and what makes arteries grow hard are still largely unknown, Dr. Charles A. R. Connor, medical director of the American Heart Association, points out. The answers aren't likely to come quickly or easily.

During National Heart Week, starting tomorrow, the American Heart Association is launching a drive to spur further research, including a project on the effect of climate and environment.

'The Old Crowd' on Display

Whyte Gallery Welcomed Back

"The Magic Carpet," by Bernice Cross, currently on display at the Whyte Gallery

By Jane Watson Crane

DESPITE greatly reduced space, the Whyte Gallery's decision to resume its old practice of holding exhibitions evidently was most welcome. With Franz Bader in active charge, the Gallery intends to devote itself to the work of Washington artists. Two hundred people packed in for the opening exhibit, cheerfully inspecting paintings hung over bookshelves, and soon red sales stars appeared on several.

Seven artists were picked for this auspicious occasion. They represent what has now become "the old crowd," but not so venerable at that, for most of them first loomed on the local horizon ten or fifteen years ago. The "Seven" is not as arbitrary as it sounds, for new names will be added here as time and talent offers.

The real returnee in the group is Edward Rosenfeld, equally well known in Washington and in Baltimore, where he now resides. Rosenfeld has had shows here at the Phillips Gallery and with groups regularly. An established New York exhibitor, his one-man show there this fall was well received.

In the Whyte group, while Rosenfeld's smaller painting, "Baltimore Harbor" is more characteristic of his earlier smoky colors, the larger "The Circus" represents the lighter palette in which he has been painting lately. This was an opening day favorite, and with good reason.

Fantasy by Cross

BESIDE "The Circus" hangs "The Magic Carpet" by Bernice Cross, an ingeniously devised fantasy. With a busy teaching schedule this painter has been exhibiting infrequently, making her appearance here doubly welcome.

The invited artists responded by contributing fresh work to the show. Mitchell Jamieson has two striking landscapes, characteristic of his sound and thoughtful approach. He also has one reminder of the war scenes which he lived through and incidentally is still at work on, not for the Navy as formerly, but on a Guggenheim Fellowship.

Sarah Baker's crisp little oil "The New Look" points up the nineteenth-century character of the trim waist and flower-laden hat. "The New Look" in this instance reminds one of Degas' elegantly attired ladies.

John Gernand (note his landscape, "Field Near St. Faustin"), Robert Gates ("The Bathers"), and Prentiss Taylor complete the small group. Carefully picked, the paintings undeniably have an air of distinction. Some of the artists have turned out better ones on previous occasions, some not as good. For the most part they have neatly got over a difficult hurdle—offering work that is true to themselves and at the same time asks for a good spot on the wall of someone else's home.

Negro Work at Library

WITH the aid of Lois Jones of Howard University, Firman Wilson presents a well-organized exhibit of work by Negro artists of Washington at the Public Library. The print section is particularly good, including work by James L. Wells, Elizabeth Catlett, and Otto McLarrin, among others. Book illustrations are shown in a case to one side; photographs and biographical material concerning the artists add to the interest of the show. Among the water colors, two studies by one of the younger artists, Frank Nicholas, stand out. Oils, including work by James Porter, Lois Jones, Frank Alston, and John Farrar, contribute to a group that merits admiration and respect.

Greece and the Arts

BEFORE taking copies of her latest art portfolio to New York, Caresse Crosby gave an informal preview here. Her publishing venture, a solo enterprise, is unique. Strong in her faith that the arts persist, even under the most adverse and unlikely circumstances, she has set about to prove it. The sixth in her series and the third to originate in postwar Europe, her new portfolio is dedicated to young talent in Greece. She has reproduced paintings, sculptures, and drawings, together with photographs of modern architecture, art theater productions, samples of writing and other manifestations of the creative spirit.

Alexander Xydis contributes an article on contemporary Greek paintings, saying its two most notable features are "liveliness and individuality." Mrs. Crosby was instrumental in getting a show in Athens for Kapralos, a young sculptor, and helped to sell some of his work. He had been living and working in a rural retreat, with home-made clay and self-made tools. Bringing his plaques and statuettes back to the capital packed in straw on an oxcart, he is now engaged in rebuilding with his own hands a bombed building on the outskirts of the city as a place to work.

There are few with the courage and conviction to acknowledge new talent to the extent that Caresse Crosby has. Whether or not these talents stand up with the years, her slim portfolios are a remarkable living record of art's survival under the shadow of war and devastation.

Sketches of Curacao

OVER in Alexandria at Chequire House is a charming series of paintings and sketches of Curacao in the Netherlands West Indies by a young American woman, Scribner Ames. Hers is cool, spare painting that suggests rather than attempts to penetrate the atmosphere of the place. For that we respect her, for she has the wisdom to offer impressions, the surest ground for a visitor. The result is that her work far surpasses the usual report of the American painter-tourist in foreign parts.

La Tausca Art Comes Here Next Saturday

THE THIRD exhibition of the La Tausca Art Competition, circulated by the American Federation of Arts, is coming to the United Nations Club next Saturday. This is another of the industry-sponsored and financed shows of contemporary American art chosen by artists. A lively group, including work by some of this country's most distinguished artists, this promises to be an event of the season. At the opening, to which the public is invited, Hudson Walker, president of the federation, will speak. Margreeta Austin, art chairman, is in charge of arrangements for the United Nations Club.

Paintings by Luis Alberto Acuna of Colombia, winner of a Guggenheim Fellowship for Latin American artists, will be shown at the Pan American Union beginning tomorrow and continuing for two weeks.

Hermann Williams, director of the Corcoran, has announced the appointment of Omar Carrington to the faculty of the art school. Carrington's landscapes and still-lifes are well known in Washington, where he has exhibited for many years. He has been active in local art organizations. His entry in the Corcoran's latest annual exhibition, artists of Washington and vicinity, received first honorable mention.

New shows include paintings by James Porter, artist, writer and teacher, at the Barnet-Aden Gallery, 127 Randolph pl. nw., and lithographs by Picasso at the Phillips Gallery. The former opened yesterday, the latter starts today.

Next Sunday, the Arts Club will show water colors and pastels by the Mexican artist, Diego Rivera, and silk screen prints by members of the National Serigraph Society.

Episcopal Theological Seminary on Seminary Hill in Alexandria hopes to make an annual event of the local art exhibition inaugurated this weekend. Paintings, drawings and ceramics are included in a show for the benefit of the Parish House. It will be on view today from 2 to 8 p. m. in Aspinwall Hall.

Says Arthur Bliss Lane:

Stalin Merely Wants To Rule the World

By Sigrid Arne

AS AMERICAN Ambassador to Poland, Arthur Bliss Lane saw that nation's Communist-controlled government set up.

LANE

He believes "there will be no turning back on the part of Stalin . . . until he obtains world domination, or until he meets the effective resistance of a stronger power, the United States."

He thinks "Stalin will proceed on the policy, which was also that of Hitler, of seizing control, state by state." He names Italy and France as the next points of attack, in that order.

He states these beliefs in his book, "I Saw Poland Betrayed," to be published tomorrow (Bobbs-Merrill).

His book, together with one published last year, "Defeat in Victory," by Jan Ciechanowski, former Polish Ambassador to Washington, offers the English-reading an account of how a small Soviet core, with the aid of home-grown Communists, takes over a people of whom the majority are anti-Communist.

Both object to what they regard as British-American appeasement of Moscow through the Yalta Conference. Lane says too many secrets were kept from the American people. He writes that he ended his career in the State Department to tell what he knows in this book.

He thinks Poland has no chance for a government of its own for years to come, but that an "attempt to overthrow the present regime by force would be a grievous error." He says "it would give the Soviets an excuse to overrun Poland, and incorporate it in the Soviet Union."

Lane thinks the United States can take two steps: (1) Keep Poland's association with the West alive through humanitarian agencies and (2) refuse any government aid to the Soviet bloc until new elections have been held in the puppet states under supervision of the United Nations.

Here are some highlights of his book:

1. Stalin won Churchill's and Roosevelt's agreement to taking over eastern Poland in late 1943 at Tehran. That was not told the American public until the Yalta agreement in February, 1945.

Lane says even he was not told before he left for Warsaw. Both he and Ciechanowski detail circumstances which they say indicate that announcement of the Tehran agreement was held up in order to secure the Polish-American vote of 1944 for the Democratic Party.

2. Lane's troubles in Warsaw were mountainous. At first all American Embassy messages were relayed through Moscow. Lane says that of a hundred messages sent to Washington, 57 never got there.

The Polish secret police, led by Russians, threatened Polish employes of the embassy with death unless they informed on embassy activities. This happened at the French and British embassies, as well.

Lane was permitted to see only one out of hundreds of American citizens in Polish jails.

The Polish government tried to reduce the American Embassy staff through currency exchange rates. At one time it cost an American $485 a week for room and board.

3. Lane documents his claim that Moscow attempted to wipe out Polish leaders who might be more popular than the Communist committee which Moscow sent into Poland behind the Red armies. The committee included the current President of Poland, Boleslaw Bierut, a Communist since 1933.

He tells about General Bor's "home army" in Warsaw, which rose up on August 1, 1944, to throw the Germans out when the Russian army was within seven miles.

Lane writes that both Bor's radio and London radio picked up a Moscow call, signed by Molotov, for the Poles to rise. The Poles had only a week's supplies, but they answered the call.

The Russian army stopped dead. The Germans attacked, unopposed, until they had killed 250,000 Poles, and made Warsaw the most wrecked city of the war.

4. Lane has several stories of Stalin's cynical flouting of the major allies. He recalls Stalin's late 1944 moves to legalize the hand-picked Lublin Poles.

Roosevelt messaged Stalin asking that the decision be withheld until the Yalta Conference. Stalin requested that Washington and London recognize the Lublin Poles by sending diplomatic representatives. Roosevelt refused. Two days later, Stalin recognized the Lublin group as the provisional government.

Lane recalls the arrest of 16 Polish underground leaders who started for Moscow for discussions in 1945 under safe conduct agreements. He says he has learned since that they were subjected to weeks of third-degree treatment.

5. Against his pleas, the United States State Department approved 90 million dollars credits for the new Polish government. Lane wanted them withheld until the government had lived up to the Yalta agreement for free Polish elections. However, United States aid was shut off shortly by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes. Lane says that several times Democratic leaders in Poland urged that no American aid be given Poland under today's Communist government because it would appear to the Polish people that the United States had acquiesced in Moscow's control of Poland.

Gentle Novel Tells a Tale Of Mexico

STEP DOWN, ELDER BROTHER, by Josephina Niggli. (Rinehart; $3).

IN MONTEREY, MEXICO, the old and the new jostle each other: North American tourists by the thousands, long established creole families clinging to courtly tradition, and the mestizos, who try to force life into a different mold, or to retain it in its familiar and comfortable shape.

This conflict, which is the stuff of history, is the subject of this honest novel, where it is epitomized within the Vasquez de Anda family. Uncle Agapito is the oldest elder brother; Domingo, his nephew, his elder brother No. 2. Branching off are Banker Agapito' brothers Don Ducio and Don Rafael; and then Domingo's sisters, Sofia and Brunhilda, and his younger brother, Cardito.

Agapito knew what was best for them all, and when he pulled the strings he expected them to jump. Domingo rebeled at this domination, but more for the sake of Cardito, whose ambition was the law, than for himself.

To describe the elements of the plot is to deal with what matters least to the plotter. For Miss Niggli's true concern is the people and the scene. The book takes you to Mexico, and will make some of you want to stay.

A James Reissue

New Directions is planning to issue a reprint of "The Other House," a little known novel by Henry James. James wrote the book first as a play, then converted it into a novel. It is not included in his collected editions and has been out of print for more than 40 years.

The Magazine Rack

By Katharine Graham

MAGAZINES abound in dire predictions of things to come. Luckily for us, not all the contradictory ones at least can be realized. If we survive total extermination by the atom it seems the world faces another danger: starvation from over-population, according to C. Lester Walker in Harper's

The world today has 2¼ billion people, says Walker, and increasing by 20 million each year. In 1972 it will have half a billion more. Geographers figure 2½ acres per person to feed and clothe an individual adequately, but there are only 1.77 crop producing acres per person now, and even before the last war two-thirds of the people were undernourished all the time.

At the tail end of the magazine is an important piece by The Washington Post's education columnist, Fred M. Hechinger, "The Battle for German Youth."

"Week after week I tried to find the beginnings of German re-education in classrooms, in lecture halls, and among students, teachers and school administrators," writes Hechinger of his recent trip. "But almost everywhere I found failure—at worst outright reaction and subversive obstruction; at best, a blind groping and a return to something which had only led to failure before."

Lack of properly trained teachers, discouragement of the few well-equipped individuals by German authorities in our zone, plus the lack of textbooks, are reasons given by the author for failure. In the French zone, by contrast, all the old textbooks have been destroyed and replaced with excellent new ones.

THE Saturday Evening Post offers everything from the Junior League's new "get tough" policy to a prison train story. In between lie a profile of Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett, dubbed the "Bald Eagle of Foggy Bottom," and an account of an active 50-year-old man who was struck down by heart failure and how he lived to reorganize his life.

* * * *

"HOW Shall We Tell Our Young People the Truth About Sex?" asks Howard Whitman in Cosmopolitan. Some parents still fill their children with notions such as "the doctor brought you in a suitcase" or talk vaguely about "planting a seed in mommy's tummy," and others who want to tell their children the truth clearly and simply are unable to do so from shame or ignorance, Whitman claims.

"How many of us have been like the college woman who said to her doctor, 'How can a woman have as many degrees as I have and know so little about her own body?'" he adds. The price we've paid for ignorance, according to Whitman, varies from unhappy and broken homes to deviations such as homosexuality.

First principle as set forth by experts is to use clinical words and to use them without self-consciousness. The attitude of the parent is all-important, too, he says. "Attitudes, the psychologists tell us, are formed from birth to age 6, ideals develop from 6 to 12, and behavior patterns emerge from 12 to 18."

In this soberly and helpfully written article, Whitman gives specific questions usually asked at different ages and answers that might be given. Of course, he admits, there is no saying when a child will ask a given question. But the experts can tell you at what age to answer them—and that is exactly when they are asked.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the second instalment of the Stimson memoirs, the Ladies Home Journal contains an exclusive story by John Steinbeck on "Women and Children in the U. S. S. R.," with photographs by Robert Capa. Nothing terribly new or startling, but the text is pleasant and there are some handsome pictures.

John W. Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education, writing on the ABC's of public education, says that after a century and a half of increasingly better education "we are now in danger of going backward—not forward." We are spending less of our national income on education than either Great Britain or Russia, he shows.

CONCERN OVER the same problem is voiced by Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, in The American's "We Are Cheating Our Children." Ewing places the blame for the "appalling situation" squarely on lack of funds. To distribute education more fairly he advocates immediate Federal aid to the States according to their needs.

Alarming statistics are cited by Ewing to indicate the toll that inadequate funds are taking in the way of badly trained teachers or, in the case of rural schools, none at all for some 50,000 children. Stumbling block to passage of Federal aid is the dispute over funds for nonpublic schools, and this must be resolved quickly, Ewing says.

On another front and for the same reason—lack of funds—"We've scuttled our air defenses," according to Secretary of the Air Force W. Stuart Symington in the same magazine.

SOME 60,000 Navaho Indians are living in poverty, squalor, ignorance and starvation on the mesas of northern Arizona and New Mexico, declares Will Rogers, jr., in Look. It's the fault of Congress and their supposed guardian, the Indian Bureau, which ought to be reorganized, he charges.

Abe Had Divided Command Woes

dents since Lincoln. In spite of the new organization of the defense establishment, it is unhappily safe to assume that these administrative tangles are not at an end. The harrowing experience of the Civil War President with such trials makes even Pearl Harbor seem a shadow of the sixties.

Divided Command

IT IS JUST barely possible that the Civil War itself might have been avoided but for confused and divided military command. It was the strategy of President Lincoln and of Secretary of State Seward to avoid any overt act that might lead to force while the Government struggled to heal the breach with the seceding States.

Yet, the Administration felt the necessity of maintaining in the South a symbol of Federal authority. It was this consideration that gave importance to the maintenance of the garrison at Fort Sumter. It shocked the new President to discover that this fort would have to be reinforced and supplied or abandoned at an early date. He had hoped for a longer breathing spell. Then it was proposed that Fort Pickens, in Florida, might be a suitable symbol of Federal authority.

It was at once decided to reinforce Fort Pickens and to abandon Sumter if necessary. On March 12, 1861, General Scott sent a message to Captain Vosgdes, who had a small force aboard the Sabine in Pensacola Harbor, to land his company as a garrison for Fort Pickens.

On April 6, the Government got word that the naval officer commanding the Sabine refused to follow Army orders and put the troops ashore because he was under Navy Department instructions to respect a truce ordered by President Buchanan. This forced the Government to drop the strategy of abandoning Sumter and offsetting the evacuation by occupying Pickens. The troops were still aboard the Sabine when the supply of Sumter was attempted and the Civil War thereby started.

The orders of a Secretary of Defense might have obviated this conflict of instructions.

That it will not necessarily prevent all misunderstanding of the kind is suggested by another aspect of the Fort Sumter case. At one stage of planning, the Administration proposed to send to Fort Pickens the U. S. S. Powhatan under command of Lieut. David D. Porter. The ship left the Brooklyn Navy Yard under sealed presidential orders, secret from even the Secretary of Navy.

After it had left, President Lincoln learned that Secretary of the Navy Welles had planned to use the same ship as the flagship of the naval force prepared for the relief of Sumter. Thereupon Secretary Seward, on Lincoln's order, sent a fast tug to overtake the ship and give to Lieutenant Porter Seward's orders to return the Powhatan. Porter declined to act on the orders, asserting that he was on a mission dispatched by the President and could not accede to the wishes of the Secretary of State. He sailed on to Fort Pickens and the troops were thrown into the fort on April 16. Sumter had already been fired upon and the occupation of Pickens was without the great importance initially intended.

Durable Government

THE unchanging nature of such problems of government may inspire some discouraging reflection on the slow progress of human society; but it also furnishes comforting conjecture on the indestructibility of government capable of surviving the repetitions of error.

Presidential immortals, it is clear, not only deal well with the problems that arise in their administrations. Their immortality in part depends on how many of their problems are those that recur again and again to give to their judgments and decisions a strangely contemporaneous quality, generation after generation.

2000 'Wires' at Once

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—Western Union is spending some 60 million dollars for highly complex improvements designed to get more telegrams sent faster.

The program includes use of radio beams instead of wires, cross-country push-button switching systems and extension of the facsimile system that transmits messages in the sender's handwriting.

Besides speeding up telegrams, the mechanization will greatly expand the capacity of 98-year-old Western Union. Last year the company handled 225 million messages and furnished facilties to private users for millions more.

The other side of the picture, however, is that last year's business was down from the wartime peak. And Western Union, although a Government sanctioned monopoly, has keen competition from other forms of communication.

The 5-cent air mail stamp and the easing of the jam in long-distance telephone traffic both offer strong competition. Western Union received Federal permission for two 10 per cent rate increases in 1946—which it said were the first since 1919—that made it more expensive to use telegraph. In addition, the 25 per cent Federal excise tax imposed during the war still is in effect on telegraph and telephone traffic.

Western Union says that earnings of its employes have jumped 50 per cent in the past two years. The mechanization program is designed in part to offset the company's rising costs.

The radio beam is like the one used in carrying television programs over long distances. Radio relay towers are located on high points 30 to 50 miles apart. The ultra-short wave impulses are passed from tower to tower, horizon to horizon. A radio relay link can carry as many as 1000 messages in each direction simultaneously.

Why the Emigrants Headed Westward

One of the great migrations of all time was the Westward sweep of the American people who spilled out of the Eastern colonies in waves that carried to the Pacific.

Walter F. McCaleb in The Conquest of the West (Prentice, Hall, $3.75) delves into the economic and political pressures which sent emigrants across the mountains and plains at the risk of their lives.

Dr. McCaleb is well-qualified to write on the subject. His Ph. D. thesis was on the Aaron Burr conspiracy; he spent some years in magazine and newspaper work and now has retired from banking in Texas, his home State, to turn again to writing.

To the praise already heaped upon his book by leading critics and public figures comes this additional statement:

"The tense, dramatic story of how a daring generation of Americans drafted and ratified our Federal Constitution. It is the story of how they fought against what looked like hopeless odds to substitute government and law for the destructive anarchy of thirteen competing sovereign states. It is a moving and at times heartbreaking story; and it makes the reader proud to be an American and proud to belong to the human race. # Swank Ship Luncheon Toasts 'Eagle' Author

A SWANK literary luncheon was given aboard the S. S. DeGrasse in honor of F. van Wyck Mason.

Mason's new novel, "Eagle in the Sky," pays credit to Admiral De Grasse, who in whipping the British fleet off the Virginia Capes insured the American victory over Cornwallis at Yorktown.

The luncheon from hors d'oeuvres to fromages consisted of nine courses with six wines. Mason pointed out that fare aboard ship in the 1780s usually consisted of moldy peas, wormy biscuits and bad salt beef served on squares of dirty canvas without eating utensils.

Mason replied to toasts in his honor in glib French. Five of his 50 transatlantic crossings have been on the De Grasse.

It's Getting to Be a Habit

Publishing Gets 'Huckster' Treatment

By Sterling North

THE GILDED HEARSE. By Charles O. Gorham. Creative Age. 246 pp. $2.75.

WHAT Frederic Wakeman did for the advertising and radio business, Charles O. Gorham has attempted for book publishing.

GORHAM

During the 24 hours that Chamberlain was selling democracy down the river at Munich, Richard Styles Eliot was making similar opportunistic decisions in his personal and professional life in New York.

I hope readers of this novel will realize that not all New York publishers are the alcoholics, phony intellectuals and social climbers so bitterly described in this sizzling satire. But that a goodly sprinkling of slick and conscienceless characters do exist, particularly in the more commercialized houses.

Book publishing, Gorham knows from experience in at least two publishing firms, is fast becoming ruthless big business. And bright young men as unscrupulous as Eliot have a very good chance to climb.

Gorham shows Eliot as a self-made young man who has come up from poverty by way of Columbia and a reportorial job on the old Globe. Eliot is the sort of fourflushing young punk who calls his wife "pig Irish" while attempting to climb into bed with anything in the Social Register. Despite his well-padded expense account, it is difficult to see how Eliot manages all this on a mere $100 a week (raised to $130 on this eventful day). I would think that even in 1938 this would have taken more like $25,000 a year.

Gorham's attitude toward the book publishing business is interesting. Through his often transparent mouthpiece he says: "The really insulting thing about the business . . . was the pretense with which it was larded. If you were selling soap or machine tools or whisky . . . you didn't have to insist with a kind of lickspittle energy that you were a patron of the arts, a benefactor of humanity, a general practitioner of culture . . . You just sold your soap . . . and spent the money. But these people . . . behaved like Renaissance patrons."

It must be said to the author's credit that he does paint at least one old-fashioned, incorruptible editor (more or less of the Max Perkins variety) accurately and lovingly. This talented protagonist, however, is on his way out.

Gorham proves in several ways that he knows the seamy side of manufacturing literary merchandise. He loads his own manuscript with intimate and fairly vulgar bedroom scenes; keeps most of his characters drunk throughout the novel, and manages to use most of the now well established Hemingway vocabulary. The writing is irregular.

After the first World War we had the "debunkers." Following the second World War, we have the boys who administer the "Huckster" treatment. It must be admitted, however, that the new crop of cynical young men are also self-critical, a long step forward.

DONALD OF CHINA. By Earl Albert Selle. Harper. 374 pp. $3.50.

ADVISER to the Manchus, to Sun Yat Sen, to the young marshal and to the Chiangs, the mysterious Donald of China was without question the most powerful foreigner who ever stepped in to make Chinese history.

How an Australian newspaperman who did not even talk Chinese directed revolution after revolution, dictated state papers, manipulated foreign ambassadors, fought the Japs, the Communists and reactionary war lords and maintained his personal integrity throughout the entire process is the astonishing substance of this book.

It is unfortunate that William Henry Donald of Melbourne was never willing to write his own memoirs. But it is a stroke of good fortune that Earl Albert Selle found Donald in a naval hospital in Honolulu shortly before his death and induced him to tell his fabulous story.

Selle readily forgives Donald for scooping the world on the whereabouts of the Russian fleet in the Russo-Japanese war; thus inadvertently letting his lifelong enemies the Japs learn where they could waylay and destroy it.

SELLE

But being a Donald enthusiast, I still think perhaps he has made Dr. Sun seem an even less effectual man than he was, while building the almost mythological greatness of Donald into gigantic proportions.

Did Donald, for instance, actually run a locomotive right up to the walls of Nanking, and later personally train the seige guns against the walls of that town? Selle certainly believes every romantic detail of that story.

Did Donald direct the revolution while Dr. Sun waited complacently in California and Mexico? Did he write Sun's greatest speeches?

Did Donald personally compose the Chinese answer to Japan's Twenty-One Demands?

Much of this is verifiable history. Much checks with everything else we know about Donald. Some of it might be myth.

I wish the author had stated quite clearly how much of this was told him by Donald (as he lay dying of cancer, after being rescued from the Jap concentration camp where he spent the years from Pearl Harbor to the recapture of the Philippines).

I wish he had also indicated the sources of the rest of the material. There are sure to be other old China hands who heard it differently.

But here at least is one great source of information about a quiet Titan of history who for four decades fought and plotted and labored for a better China—a unified China without opium or "squeeze" or "face"—a China without Japanese or Russian influence.

THE CRY OF DOLORES. By Herbert Gorman. Rinehart. 443 pp. $3.50.

HISTORY TELLS US that when the cry of "liberty, equality and fraternity" finally reached Latin America, a member of the lower clergy, Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla of the town of Dolores, led an uprising which captured the rich city of Guanajuato. Hesitating too long, however, before marching on the capital of Mexico, the insurgents were defeated at Calderon in 1811, and the leaders were soon after executed.

Delving into this frustrated attempt to alleviate suffering, Herbert Gorman has reconstructed a tapestry of the place and time, utilizing both historic and fictitious characters.

The plot follows the humble life of Luz, a girl of the Lake Indians. Raped by a blue-eyed soldier of the viceroy in the 1790s, she flees by way of Valladolid to the sanctuary of the cura's house in Dolores. Here her equally blue-eyed son, Ciriaco, is born and in time becomes the trusted messenger of the cura's younger brother, Miguel Hidalgo, for whom Luz becomes the worshipful servant and housekeeper.

Only the Spanish in those days might grow grapes or operate a business large or small. Hidalgo risked his life in planting a communal vineyard and encouraging the Indians and Mestizos to establish tiny industries. When the revolution at last broke wide open, all the characters in the book are in one way or another endangered.

GORMAN

Herbert Gorman, who has proved in "The Wine of San Lorenzo" and other previous writing that he understands the Mexicans intimately, outdoes all previous efforts in making the reader feel and understand and sympathize with inhabitants of all tints south of the border, Indians, half-breeds, Creoles and Gachupines. Hidalgo is magnificently portrayed in all his deep humanity. Luz is warm, believable, pitiful and essentially dignified.

A rich, full-bodied novel by an author who improves like some good vintage with the passing years.

Books Trace Rise of Folger And Congressional Libraries

THE STORY UP TO NOW, THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS, 1800-1946. By David C. Mearns. Library of Congress, Publications Office. 226 pp. Free.

THE FOLGER SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL LIBRARY, a brief account. Folger Shakespeare Library. 20 pp. 50c. And other publications.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS began as a working tool for legislators, the Folger Shakespeare Library in the hobby of a businessman and his wife. One has become the national library, the other a specialized research center, each the greatest of its kind.

In "The Story Up to Now," David C. Mearns, director of the Library of Congress' reference department, traces the growth of the library from "seven hair trunks and case for maps" to its present millions of books and multiple duties.

"How absurd to squander away money for a parcel of books when every shilling of revenue is wanted for supporting our Government and paying our debts," wrote a Boston critic in 1790.

Subsequent "practical" critics of appropriations have repeated the statement, but now the needs for modern living—and warring—have begun to be appreciated. For every amphibious invasion maps had to be found; for every scientific investigator an up-to-date library is a necessity.

Mearns' book is a history rather than an apologia, guide or annual report; though his account is a revised and illustrated excerpt from the annual report for 1946.

THE FOLGER LIBRARY biography, also illustrated, is a graceful account of the origin, possessions and functions of a specialized institution for which Acting Director James G. McManaway deserves great credit in preparing.

It explains the usefulness of old books and gives an insight into such problems as establishing authentic texts.

FROM A FOLGER staff member, Edwin E. Willoughby, chief bibliographer, also comes a new book, "Fifty Printers' Marks." Handsomely published by the Book Arts Club, University of California Press (153 pp., $3.50), it reproduces the ornamental devices used by 50 early British and continental printers.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS will observe the 215th anniversary of the founding of Savannah and of Georgia with an exhibition opening next Saturday.

The exhibit will be in two parts, one of modern photographs displayed on the ground floor and one of historic books, pictures and documents, second floor.

A beautiful, inexpensive booklet will be published later containing the historical address given at the opening—in this instance by Senator Walter F. George—a list of the exhibits and a generous collection of well-reproduced pictures.

Booklets published so far include Florida (20c), Iowa (50c), Tennessee ($1), Texas (30c), and Utah (50c). They can be obtained from the superintendent of documents, Government Printing Office.

REILLY

HURD

AGNES SLIGH TURNBULL, author of the current best-seller, "The Bishop's Mantle," will be one of the guest speakers at the February book and author luncheon of The Washington Post. Michael F. Reilly, coauthor of "Reilly of The White House;" and Charles Hurd, whose "Washington Cavalcade" is of particular interest locally, will also speak.

The luncheon will be held Wednesday, February 18, at 1 p. m. in the Presidential room of the Hotel Statler. Tickets are on sale at book stores and book departments.

"The Bishop's Mantle" now ranks fifth nationally on the best-seller lists and has been particularly popular with lending library patrons in Washington.

Michael F. Reilly has been described as "the second most photographed man in the world." For years, almost every picture of President Roosevelt showed Mike Reilly standing at the "Chief's" elbow. His book, "Reilly of the White House," which appeared in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post before being published recently in book form, tells of the exciting job of protecting a President in war time.

Charles Hurd's "Washington Cavalcade". is the second in the Society in America series, of which Amory's "The Proper Bostonians" was the first. Hurd's previous books are "The White House: A Biography," and "The Veterans' Program." He has been for many years on the Washington staff of The New York Times.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Great Snowball Builds Slowly

Organized America Backs ERP on Hill

By Ferdinand Kuhn Jr.

Post Reporter

WHEN a single piece of legislation wins the support of all the great labor, farm and veterans' organizations of America—that's news.

When the same legislation also gets the general backing of the major businessmen's groups, the applause of church groups, women's clubs, student organizations and racial and nationality groups, it becomes a phenomenon.

Such a phenomenon has been unfolding for the past month in congressional hearings on the Marshall Plan. Organized support has snowballed slowly, with little public attention, but by now a huge cross-section of the American people has gone on record in favor of the European Recovery Program.

Nothing quite like it has been seen in this jaded Capital since the great national organizations representing every walk of American life helped to push the United Nations Charter to triumphant ratification on Capitol Hill.

Organized support for the Marshall Plan has not been as widespread or as whole-hearted as for the Charter, but it has been impressive all the same.

Labor's 10 Million

ONE BY ONE the spokesmen of the so-called voluntary organizations, some of them numbering their members in the millions, have made pilgrimages to the hearings. One by one they have read their prepared statements, have answered the legislators' questions and have made it clear that their members want prompt enactment of a program big enough to do the job.

The CIO and the AFL, with a combined membership of more than 10 million, have vied with each other in supporting the program. They have cautioned Congress not to put crippling restrictions on the amount or the nature of American help to Europe.

Their chief reservations have been that labor must be represented in managing the program, that the proposed transfer of 500 merchant ships to Europe be rejected, and that a stiff anti-inflation program be enacted here at home.

The National Grange, the Farmers Union and the Farm Bureau Federation have supported the plan in spite of the American farmer's need of fertilizer and farm machinery. The Farmers Union, claiming to represent a million and a quarter farm families, has complained that the ERP is too small and should be extended to Eastern Europe.

The American Legion, the Amvets and the A. V. C. have backed the program from the security standpoint, insisting also that national defense should be strengthened in what they regard as a time of peril.

Business Reservations

THE Nationl Association of Manufacturers, the Chamber of Commerce and the Committee for Economic Development have added the support of business to the chorus. The first two, however, have demanded "safeguards" which would change the character of the legislation.

Primarily they want to be sure that the ERP will be administered by hard-headed businessmen instead of by bureaucrats. They also want the United States to keep close control over any gifts or loans it makes available to Europe.

Support has also come from smaller and more specialized groups. The League of Women Voters, with its 550 earnest and nonpartisan chapters throughout the country, would like greater use of United Nations machinery in helping Europe recover. The American Association for the United Nations, as might be expected, takes a similar position.

The National Planning Association, whose field is public administration, insists on keeping full power for the President and the Executive Branch of the Government in carrying out the program.

So it goes, with overwhelming support in general and some differences in detail from the Federal Council of Churches, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the New York State Bar Association, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Y. M. C. A., the American Jewish Committee, the National Catholic Welfare Council and many others.

ALP Heads Opposition

THE only organized opposition during the hearings has come, first, from the American Labor Party of New York City, which clings to the Henry Wallace line, and second, from an "American Coalition" claiming to represent 85 patriotic, fraternal and civic societies, which regards the spending of further billions in Europe as wicked and dangerous.

Most of the statements submitted in the past month showed that their authors had done homework on the Marshall Plan. Technical details did not terrify them from pronouncing the most positive judgments on some of the most complicated and tentative aspects of the program.

Many favorable statements, for example, came out flatly for drawing a sharp line between free gifts and repayable loans—for sending food and fuel as free gifts, but expecting repayment for all industrial equipment and other "capital goods." Secretary Marshall himself did not dare to be dogmatic on this point, and said it would have to be left to the good judgment of the man who administers the program.

Gaps in Line-up

MEMBERS of Congress have learned to look closely between the lines of prepared testimony from the private organizations. They know that the so-called "voluntary associations" are a unique feature of the American scene. But they rightly ask themselves how widely representative a given list of organizations may be, and how truly their spokesmen are entitled to speak for their members.

Certainly there are big gaps in the list of organizations that have announced their support of the Marshall Plan. Nobody has spoken for the great service clubs—Rotary, Kiwanis, Elks and the rest—for the simple reason that these groups dislike to take positions on controversial political issues.

Nobody has come forward from national professional groups like the American Bar Association, the American Bankers Association, the Newspaper Guild or the National Education Association, representing the great body of American school teachers. One reason is that the Marshall Plan, unlike the U. N. Charter, evolved too quickly for such groups to debate it and pass resolutions on it at their annual conventions.

For Own Good

WITH all these qualifications, however, the support of the mass organizations is important and valid, and for two main reasons.

The first is that the groups most vocal in support of the Marshall Plan—the labor, farm and veterans' organizations—can claim membership based solely on self-interest. An American does not join such groups for sociability or fun. He usually joins a labor union to get better pay and working conditions, a farm group to advance his own interests as a farmer, a veterans' group to win greater benefits and security for himself.

One might expect humanitarian groups to be leading the procession, but the reverse is true. The hard core of ERP support comes, unmistakably, from the groups that find their own self-interest in European recovery.

The second fact making their testimony valid is that most of the farm, labor, veterans' and business groups and many others like the League of Women Voters, have debated the Marshall Plan in local and national meetings before taking their stand on Capitol Hill.

The CIO, for example, went through a floor fight on the issue at its Boston convention, after listening to Secretary Marshall. The American Legion indorsed the Marshall Plan after a strenuous floor fight at its New York convention.

The overwhelming support of so many national organizations has shown that there is greater and more thoughtful backing for the program than one would gather from the somewhat colorless public debate on it up to now. It suggests that the tide of public opinion, even in so-called isolationist areas, still runs strongly toward American cooperation with the rest of the world.

Rail Hobbyists Build 'Shrine'

ST LOUIS (U.P.).—The ditty, "Workin' on the Railroad," is no switchman's lament to a group of St. Louis hobbyists. They get out and labor on their own railroad every weekend—for fun.

On a 20-acre site in suburban Kirkwood, about 75 members of the St. Louis Railway Historical Society are building what they hope one day will be a national shrine to rail transportation, with a nod to the motorbus thrown in.

Their rolling stock at present consists of two locomotives of substantial age, a dozen obsolete street cars, a wrecker or two and a Fifth ave. double-decker bus from New York City.

Their main project now, besides needling railroad companies for more museum pieces, is that of laying 1000 feet of track. So, every Saturday and Sunday, the group's members pull on their engineer's caps, throw another lump of coal on the boiler and go to work.

There, business executives rub elbows with office boys as they lay track, dig tunnels and generally rearrange the things they have been putting in order since May, 1946, when the club was organized.

As young as the group is, it has interested another 25 persons from coast to coast who correspond with local members to swap ideas.

The museum is on the site of the first railroad tunnel west of the Mississippi River. Club members are planning to rejuvenate the 410-foot bore, made in 1851, and make it part of the museum's main line.

The ladies' auxiliary of the society, not always against its will, is brought along to do any chores possible. But for the most part the women lean toward the niceties of railroading, such as dining car china. They collect it and use it in their homes, at the drop of a sturdy teacup.

Inflation Helps a Poor Relation

68-Year Supply of Shale Oil Steeps Rockies

By Ben Funk

RIFLE, Colo. 7 (AP).—America's concern over petroleum resources is teaming with postwar inflation to bring shale oil into the commercial picture for the first time.

Oil shale abounds in the mountainous West. The problem has been to get out the oil and make it pay in competition with much cheaper higher grade petroleum. Extraction methods were costly.

Now research in the Bureau of Mines demonstration plant on a mountainside seven miles west of here indicates that the shale oil can be produced for $2 to $2.50 a barrel. That places it for the first time right alongside petroleum, which has had a 50 per cent price hike since the war.

At nearby Grand Junction, a 35-year-old chemist, H. D. Broyn, has obtained a patent on an oil shale production process that he claims will yield high gravity crude for "less than $2 a barrel."

But don't expect shale oil to jump right out and compete in a free market with big brother petroleum. It remains inferior to petroleum in just about every respect.

Plenty Of It

THE future of shale oil depends upon several imponderables. For example, the discovery of another East Texas oil field or a number of smaller fields would remove the need of an immediate petroleum substitute.

On the other hand, a war would bring it into immediate large-scale production. When it comes to quantity the petroleum industry can't hold a candle to the mountains of shale oil ready to be tapped in the West.

The Green River oil shale formation of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming alone is estimated by Government engineers to contain 78 billion barrels of oil. That is four times more than the petroleum industry has produced since Ed Drake drilled the first well at Titusville, Pa., back in 1859.

Shale oil produced so far at the Rifle plant is low grade stuff with a 21 gravity rating. This compares with 35 gravity in western Colorado's Rangely field and 39 gravity in the Oklahoma City field. However, it yields about the same by-products as petroleum—and a few more.

Production of shale oil began in Scotland a hundred years ago. Its development in foreign countries was speeded during World War II, when it helped to fuel the armies and navies of Germany and Japan.

There are mountains of rich oil shale in the West, but for many years oil-wealthy America turned up its nose at them. Mechanized war woke the United State to the realization that its petroleum resources were not unlimited. Experts warned that a new source of fuel would be essential in another emergency.

So Bureau of Mines specialists appropriated all that the Germans and Japanese had learned of shale oil production and began to go on from there.

Wide World Photos

Most of the Nation's 92 billion barrels of recoverable shale oil are sealed in cliffs like these, near Rifle, Colo.

CONGRESS appropriated 5 million dollars to develop the know-how to get oil from shale and coal in big qualities. The Government estimates that our coal deposits can supply us with solid and liquid fuels for at least a thousand years. It figures shale will yield enough oil to maintain the present rate of petroleum production at least 68 years.

After surveying a score of possible sites, the Bureau of Mines chose Anvil Point, a cliff 8200 feet high, for its shale mine. In the Colorado River valley, 9500 feet away and 3000 feet below, a plant-scale refinery is under construction.

The richest shale usually is found near the top of high escarpments. It crops out in long lines of bold cliffs.

The Government isn't aiming at commercial oil production at the Rifle plant. Instead, engineers will experiment to find the best and cheapest ways to produce the oil. Their findings will be passed on to private industry.

The Bureau of Mines expects to develop the blueprints for a successful industry that could be launched into immediate big-scale production whenever necessary.

E. D. Gardner, chief of the Bureau of Mines oil shale division, says the Government isn't in competition with private researchers like Brown.

"If his process will do what he claims," Gardner said, "we will be happy to help him develop it."

15 Gallons a Ton

CORE drilling at the Government mine indicates the oil shale beds are 500 feet thick and contain an average of 15 gallons of oil to the ton. That's about 300 million barrels of oil to the square mile.

Shale storage bins and retorts at the Bureau of Mines plant near Rifle, Colo.

The Rifle installation, while only a demonstration unit, is one of the biggest industries in Colorado. It is divided into two sections—mining and processing. Goal of the mining section is to get out the shale for 50 cents a ton.

Standard ore reduction methods are used to crush the shale into chunks about four inches in diameter. Forty tons of shale are placed in a retort and ignited. As the fire burns downwards the vapors are drawn off and condensed. Rich shale has a coking tendency and the retorts are hinged at the bottom to drop the entire load of spent shale after cooking.

When the refinery is completed in about six months, engineers will be able to demonstrate every step of production from mining to oil refining.

Army Inoculates, Navy Doesn't

Belvoir, Quantico Test Flu Vaccine

By Frank Carey

VACCINATED Army engineers at Fort Belvoir, Va., and unvaccinated Marines at Quantico, just a few miles away, are test subjects this winter in an Army-Navy influenza study.

A new flu vaccine containing a strain of virus not present in the vaccine used by the Army a year ago, has been given to all of the Army's 900,000 troops throughout the world.

The Navy has not adopted a policy of universal vaccination. Only a few Navy persons stationed in universities throughout the country have received the vaccine, on a voluntary basis. The Navy permitted it because those universities had decided to make a trial of the vaccine.

The Navy's present policy, says Capt. Otto Burton, chief of preventive medicine for the Navy, is based on a recommendation of a subcommittee of the National Research Council.

Last November, in response to a Navy query, the NRC subcommittee on infectious diseases wrote:

"In view of the uncertain status of influenza vaccine and in view of the temporary disability occasioned by this (vaccination) procedure in about 3 per cent of recipients, the subcommittee . . . recommends that the Navy not at present attempt a universal program."

Little Flu Yet

BECAUSE Fort Belvoir and Quantico are so close, the two services decided to use the situation as a possible means of appraising the value of the vaccine.

A close watch will be kept by the influenza commission of the Army's epidemiological board, a civilian group. If flu should occur, studies will be made identify the strain of virus causing the disease. These findings will be checked against the virus content of the vaccine.

So far this winter there has been very little flu in either the Army or the Navy. In December the Army in this country had 98 cases tentatively described as influenza but presumed to include some severe colds. The Navy reported 16 cases in this country for December. However, statistics for both services show that last winter a rise occurred in January, February and March.

Asked what the Navy would do about the vaccine in case of a flu epidemic, Captain Burton said:

"It would depend upon what strain of virus was identified as the cause. If it were one against which we had reason to believe the vaccine was effective—and if the outbreak were knocking us out—we might then consider using the vaccine."

Third Strain Found

DURING the war Army researchers developed a vaccine against the then known strains of influenza "A" and influenza "B." Those are the two commonest forms. Either type can cause an epidemic. Usually each type occurs separately, but there is always the possibility that simultaneous outbreaks could occur.

Since a vaccine that might be effective against "A" flu would not be effective against "B," the Army incorporated both kinds of virus in its vaccine.

In the epidemic of 1943—when the "A" type occurred—the vaccine was employed with encouraging results. Again, in the "B" type epidemic of 1945 there was further encouragement. As a result, the vaccine came into general use.

But in the epidemic of last winter a hitherto unrecognized strain of type "A" virus was isolated during an outbreak at Fort Monmouth, N. J. The vaccine in use then, of course, did not contain this new strain.

Therefore for protection against this new strain, the Army ordered it incorporated in all vaccine for this year's immunization program.

Demobilization Halted One Attempt to Reform Retirement Procedure

manently incapacitated to be entitled to lifetime retirement, it was necessary to disapprove the first board and order a subsequent board six months or a year later.

Determination that a disability was in line of duty was also difficulty to make in many cases. To be in line of duty the disease must have originated while the officer was in active Federal service or, if the officer had been taken on active duty with a defect, it must have been aggravated during his service.

In many cases of arthritis, for example, sound medical opinion indicated that the disease must have had its inception many years before to have reached the stage found at discharge, even though no evidence of the disease was discovered at the time of entry into active service. Some officers concealed the fact that they had a disability before coming to active duty.

Determination of line of duty for the regular officer, on the other hand, was not difficult. Complete clinical records, including the annual physical examinations, were available on them.

Income for Life

ADDING to the difficulties of applying retirement procedures to the determination of disability was the motivation of the officer. Regular Army retirement in peacetime was usually resisted by the officer because it meant loss of a career. For the temporary officer, at the end of a war, however, there was nothing to lose and a great deal to gain if the existence of a disability, unfitting him for military service, could be established. Once established it was irrevocable and the emoluments were considerable. If the officer had a disability and that fact was not established, he would never be able later to get the benefits to which he was entitled by law.

Two laws passed during the emergency added to this motivation and affected regulars as well as nonregulars. The first was the act of June 29, 1943, known as Public Law 101. This provided that an officer retired for disability incurred or determined while serving in a higher temporary rank, would be retired in that higher rank. It also provided that retired officers called to active duty, who suffered a 30 per cent aggravation of a previous disability, would be retired in any higher temporary rank held by them.

This law was necessitated by the act of April 3, 1939. By 1943, Regular, Reserve and National Guard officers were practically all serving in temporary grades one, two or three grades higher than their permanent rank. AUS officers, however, had only one grade, the last one to which they had been promoted. Thus, prior to passage of Public Law 101, a regimental commander in his forties with 17 years' service, if retired for physical disability, would go out on his permanent rank of captain, whereas his battalion commander of three or four years' service and 25 or 26 years old would be retired as a lieutenant colonel.

The other law was the Revenue Act of 1942, which contained a provision that pensions should not be taxable. The Treasury Department ruled that retirement pay received because of physical disability was to be considered as a pension. The War Department did not request this ruling.

Reforms Blocked

THE difficulty of using retirement procedures for determination of rights to disability compensation has long been a matter of concern to the Department of the Army. On October 17, 1944, the Surgeon General, in a letter to the Assistant Chief of Staff for Personnel, discussed at some length the problems resulting from using retirement laws to fix compensation. His letter was referred to a committee which had already been established to study retirement legislation and policies. That committee, after an exhaustive study of the whole problem, recommended that:

a. Permanent incapacity for active military service incident to the service or incurred in line of duty, be retained as the criterion for granting retirement for disability or eligibility to receive retirement pay.

b. The amount of retired or retirement pay for disability be changed from a fixed percentage of pay to a varying percentage reflecting both the degree of disability for civilian pursuits and length of service.

c. Provision be made for periodical review of the extent to which they remain disabled for civilian pursuits, in order that the amount of such payments may be adjusted to the changing degree of their disabilities.

The end of the European war and the hysteria of demobilization effectively stopped action. It was decided that it would be impossible to change the system during demobilization.

Meanwhile another board, composed of high-ranking regulars and nonregulars, on December 31, 1945, forwarded recommendations essentially the same as those made by the previous board. However, by this time pressure on behalf of individuals had risen to a clamor.

In response to articles in the press and letters from members of Congress, the Secretary of War asked Mr. Tracy Voorhees to investigate and make a report concerning criticism of disability retirements. The report was made in a memorandum dated February 15, 1946.

Mr. Voorhees stated that "as to disability retirements, there were two questions: first, the fairness of the Army's administration of the statutory provisions; second, whether the existing (legal) provisions are themselves equitable."

As to the first question, he stated: "I am personally thoroughly satisfied as to the complete integrity of the administration as at present conducted in the War Department by the Surgeon General." As to the second question (the provisions of the law themselves), he said, "I believe that these embody essential inequities which are the cause of the existing criticisms, which entail serious danger of further criticism of the War Department and which tend to cause a strong motivation toward abuses."

Reservists' Complaints

LATER in 1946 the Director of Personnel and Administration established an ad hoc committee composed of one regular line officer, one reserve line officer, one AUS line officer, one National Guard officer, one regular medical officer and one reserve medical officer, to take up the subject, "Disability Compensation for members of the Reserve Components." This was occasioned by resolutions passed by the Reserve Officers Association and the National Guard Association alleging discrimination against nonregular officers in the application of retirement laws.

The committee made an exhaustive examination and reported in part, with respect to the resolution of the Reserve Officers Association:

a. No evidence was found and none presented by the Reserve Officers Association that would indicate flagrant violation of law by the retiring boards and the Surgeon General's office. No instance was found of departure from law.

b. Many officers, not members of the Regular Army, have been considered for disability retirement and found ineligible, which resulted in a large group of controversial cases, but adequate protection and right of appeal existed in law for this group of officers.

c. There was no basis for the frequently voiced criticism that willful discrimination against civilian component officers was practiced by the Regular Army Officers Corps. The committee pointed out that from 1942-1946, 95 per cent of the reviewing officers in the Surgeon General's Office were members of the reserve components and that a major percentage of all officers affiliated with Army retiring boards, either as members, medical witnesses or as counsel, were of the reserve components.

Pardonable Mistakes

MISTAKES in the administration of the physical disability retirement law were made. As a member of the Secretary of War's Personnel Board in 1946, I reviewed many hundreds of retiring board cases and have seen the mistakes.

Some retiring boards were careless; some individuals feigned illness and disabilities which did not exist or were minor in character, some concealed partinent information concerning existence of disabilities prior to entrance into active service. But when the entire problem is considered, including the vast number of cases, the haste of demobilization and, above all, the difficulties arising from trying to apply retirement proceedings, drawn up to cover the mandatory separations of regular officers, to the determination of the rights to disability compensation for tens of thousands of temporary officers, the conclusion must inevitably be made that the over-all job was well done.

There has been, in recent months, a flood of statements in the press and over the radio. I have made a list of the more common of these on which I wish to comment briefly.

These statements fall generally into two broad categories: first, that retirement was some kind of a racket for regular officers; second that nonregulars were discriminated against.

It has been said that the Department of the Army is trying to cover up something; that nothing was done about an investigation until the Meyers case.

Actually the department has never concealed the fact that it did not like the retirement situation. I have already recounted the investigations made since 1944. Demobilization and almost constant pressure to force a more liberal administration of the retirement law hindered the presentation of remedial legislation.

It has been alleged that there is indication of fraud on the part of some of the Army's retired disabled officers.

In order to have fraud in a retirement case it is necessary for the following to have taken place:

The officer must allege a defect which does not exist or conceal the fact that the disability existed prior to entrance into service. Some officers attempted the latter. Maybe some succeeded, although vigilance in the Surgeon General's office prevented most cases. In addition there must have been connivance by the ward doctors, the members of the disposition board, medical witnesses before the retiring board and medical officers of the retiring board.

It is impossible to say that no fraud took place in any of the 30,000 retirements accomplished during demobilization. However, if there was fraud to any extent the American medical profession stands guilty. The medical officers who were ward doctors, the disposition board members, the medical witnesses and retiring board members and the reviewers in the Surgeon General's Office were in practically every case civilian doctors serving under a reserve commission. I do not believe the medical profession is fraudulent.

Another statement made is that regular officers pass on all aspects of retirement, including the medical examination.

During the period 1943-1946, when the bulk of retirements took place, practically no regular officers had anything to do with granting retirement. Ninety-five per cent of the officers involved were nonregulars. No one can grant retirement except a retiring board. The Secretary of the Army or his representatives can disapprove a retiring board, but under the law no one can retire an officer unless a retiring board has so recommended.

It has been stated that the proportion of commissioned officers retired for disability is higher than the proportion of enlisted men.

The statement is true, but the connotation that this was the fault of the War Department is wrong. The law prescribed that no enlisted man with less than 20 years' service could be retired for physical disability. The number of men with more than 20 years' service was infinitesimal. Congress prescribed that all men disabled should be certified to the Veterans' Administration. Over a million and a half have been so certified and are drawing disability benefits, in many cases higher than would be payable to them under retirement.

It is claimed that the proportion of regular officers retired for disability is higher than the proportion of nonregular officers.

This is another statement which is true but the connotation of which is completely erroneous. These facts must be considered:

Most retirements are for diseases of deterioration. These are more prevalent among older men. The average age of the regular officer retired for disability was 53 years. The average length of his service was 28 years. The average age of the nonregular receiving retirement pay is 35 years and his average length of service is 2½ years.

Furthermore, the disability must have occurred as an incident of the service. The regulars entered the Army years ago as youths. Until 1941 each of them had an annual physical examination. Any disease or disability they had was an incident of the service, unless caused by indulgence, in which case the officer was wholly retired and removed entirely from the Army.

The older nonregular had the same disabilities, but in thousands of cases the disabilities had their inception years before entry into active service and were not an incident of or result of service and therefore they could not be retired.

It has been pointed out that many retiring board proceedings recommending retirement for reserve officers were disapproved by the Surgeon General, whereas few regulars were turned down.

Again we are faced by a true statement with a completely wrong implication. Hundreds of retiring board proceedings of nonregulars were turned down by the Secretary of War's Personnel Board acting for the Secretary upon recommendation of the Surgeon General. If these had not been refused there would be in excess of 60,000 officers drawing retirement pay.

The proceedings were disapproved on these grounds: no evidence to support findings; because disabilities were not permanent; because definite evidence showed the disability to have existed prior to entry into service. The correctness of the Surgeon General's recommendations can be estimated from the fact that only 2400 officers have appealed to the Disability Board of Review under Public Law No. 302 and less than 700 reversals have been made.

The cause for many turn-downs lay in the procedure adopted. In any case of doubt, the nonregular was placed before a retiring board in order to get a definite legal decision. He had to be separated.

Therefore, the number of disapprovals in retiring board cases of regulars was far less proportionately than in the case of nonregulars.

The higher the rank the greater the proportion of regular officers retired for disability.

This is still another case of a true statement but an incorrect implication. I have already partially answered this. The causes for disability retirement were largely diseases of deterioration. These occur among old men, not the young. They do not occur in proportion to numbers in each grade but in proportion to age. A factor, apparently not realized, was the existence of the World War I hump. When the war began almost a third of the regular officers were veterans of World War I and in their late forties and fifties.

Officers were promoted to high rank just prior to being retired for disability.

This was not true of the regular. The average age of general officers of the Regular Army retired for physical disability since 1940 was 57; average length of service, 33 years; average length of time in grade prior to retirement, 4½ years. General officers of the National Guard, Reserve and AUS receiving retirement pay averaged 56 years old and their average length of time in grade prior to retirement was three years and seven months.

In conclusion, the Department of the Army welcomes this investigation. In justice to the retired regular officers and nonregular officers receiving retirement pay, we are anxious that the whole story be heard. We make no claim that no mistakes were made but we do insist that there was no racket in retirement and that the laws were administered fairly and equitably.

Despite the announcement that the Nats' Chattanooga farm team sold Pitcher Bill Kennedy to Atlanta for $15,000, the deal has not been consummated yet. Kennedy, who won 20 games at Chattanooga and is pining for another chance in the majors, has written Baseball Commissioner Chandler, claiming to own documents in which President Joe Engel of Chattanooga promised him his outright release . . . If he is upheld by Chandler he will be declared a free agent and can pocket any purchase price he attracts . . . If Hank Greenberg joins the Cleveland Indians, it will not be merely as a first baseman, but as a heavy stockholder in the club.

8 Florida Dog Tracks Closed as Owners Strike

Miami, Fla., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Eight greyhound racing tracks now operating in Florida were closed tonight after a strike was called by the Greyhound Owners Benevolent Association against the American Greyhound Track Operators Association.

The dispute arose from a demand of the owners that operators agree to hold out 2 per cent of all purses for payment to GOBA as dues in the association.

Czechs Win Title

London, Feb. 7 (AP).—Czechoslovakia won the men's team title in the world table tennis championships at Wembley tonight, defeating France, five matches to two, in the finals

Caps Coast To 86-64 Win Over Providence

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Phe Providence Steamrollers won a moral victory over the Washington Capitols at Uline Arena last night—they held a team to fewer than 100 points.

Even though they lost, 86-64, the Rhode Islanders must have felt good about the defeat after New York and Baltimore both had hit the century mark against them in their last two outings.

Caps Lead at Half, 40-23

Lackadaisically, yet methodically, the Caps toyed with the Rollers in the first half and owned a 40-23 lead when recess came.

Washington regulars Bob Feerick, John Mahnken, Fred Scolari and Johnny Norlander played only long enough to keep warm.

Jack Tingle and Dick O'Keefe, two Washington reserves who haven't seen action since the last Providence encounter, played most of the period and both broke into the scoring column.

The Rollers were trying to make a game of it, but they just didn't have it. Their two best bets, Kenny Sailors and Ernie Calverley, delighted the sparse gathering with their speed and fancy dribbling, but neither could score consistently enough to overhaul Washington.

The Caps vaulted into a 21-7 first quarter lead when the reserves took over and even the subs had a free field against the inept visitors.

NYU Wins, 54-53, Over Temple

Philadelphia, Feb. 7 (AP).—New York University extended its winning streak to 15 straight tonight, but only by the grace of a referee's whistle in the final nine seconds, as it edged Temple, 55 to 54, before a standing room only crowd of 11,403 at Convention Hall.

Miss Doreen Wins on Coast

Acadia, Calif., Feb. 7 (AP).—Charles S. Howard's Miss Doreen won the $50,000 Santa Margarita Handicap over nine rival mares and and fillies before 50,000 at Santa Anita park today.

William G. Helis' Elpis wes second, far back, and the Mill River Stable's Miss Grillo ran third in the mile and one-sixteenth feature.

Time for the race was 1:46 on a muddy track.

It was Howard's first major stakes victory since 1946.

Miss Doreen, with Jockey Johnny Longden aboard, paid $9.50, $3.90 and $2.60; Elpis $2.80 and $2.20, and Miss Grillo $2.60.

Two entries, Good Excuse and Blue Proof, were declared out of the running, and 10 went to the post.

Socialite Mrs. M. E. (Liz) Whitney's Red Stamp grabbed the pace at the start and held it until the turn for home. Miss Doreen, never far back, quickly took charge and won with ease.

Ben Steiner Moves To Milwaukee

Second Baseman Ben Steiner, who began his baseball career at Central High School here, was sold yesterday to the Milwaukee Club of the American Association by the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association.

Since he left Central, Steiner has served hitches with the Boston Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers and the Louisville Colonels of the American Association.

Suggs, Hopkins Play Devany, Lindsay for

Hollywood, Fla., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The teams of Louise Suggs of Atlanta, Ga., and Jean Hopkins of Cleveland, Ohio, and Pat Devany and Marjorie Lindsay of Rollins College, will clash in the finals of the Women's International Four-Ball Golf Tournament here tomorrow.

Misses Suggs and Hopkins entered the finals today by defaulting Mary Agnes Hall of Menominee, Mich., and Carol Diringer of Tiffin, Ohio, 3 and 2. Miss Devany of Grosse Ile, Mich., and Miss Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., trounced two Miamians, Mrs. George Wilcox and Evelyn Odom, 5 and 4.

Army Wins Meet

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 7 (AP).—The Army track and field team, with eight first places, collected 78 points to overwhelm Harvard and Princeton in a triangular meet on the dirt track of the academy field house today.

Harvard, with five first places, got 37 points, while Princeton, frozen out of the win column, totaled 22.

Terps Run All Over W&L, 64-38

The University of Maryland handed Washington and Lee a 64-38 licking at College Park last ngiht.

Tony Crescenze and Bill Edwards were the top pointmakers for the Terps with 17 and 15 markers, respectively. Washington and Lee's Fred Vinson paced the losers with 10 points.

Maryland took an early lead, increased it to 11 points at halftime and coasted in. The win avenged a loss to the Generals last night by George Washington.

Terps Lead at Half

At the half the Terps were leading, 28-17 over the Generals. The Terps suffered a bad case of poor passing during the earlier portion of the game but seemed to settle down in the last five minutes.

The University of Maryland J. V. basketball team downed Montgomery Junior College, 52-25, in the preliminary.

Yanks Trade Mello for Pritko

Boston, Feb. 7 (AP).—In a straight player swap the Boston Yanks today traded Fullback Jim Mello, former Notre Dame player, to the Los Angeles Rams for Steve Pritko, a strong defensive end.

Pritko formerly played at Villanova under Clipper Smith, present coach of the Boston National Football League club.

The Yanks, looking for defensive strength, traded Mello because they have three other fullbacks, Bill Paschal, former New York Giants halfback, Rudy Rombilo and Frank Muelheuser, newcomer from Colgate.

Gil Dodds' 4:08.1 Mile Defeats Slow Field

Boston, Feb. 7 (AP).—With nobody to push him, Gil Dodds missed out by 1.3 seconds while trying to shatter Glenn Cunningham's 1500-meter indoor record as he retired the Hunter Mile Trophy with a 4:08.1 performance in the Boston A. A. track games tonight at the Boston Garden.

He finished ahead of John Twomey of the Illinois A. C., who was clocked in 4:18.7.

Villanova's George Guida led all the way while Herby McKenley, world record holder at 300 and 440 yards, was placing last in the five-man Hollis "600" field.

The Villanova flyer was clocked in 1:13 flat while leading Royce Crimmin of Brown, to the tape by 5 yards.

Charlie Slade of Seton Hall Prep, was third and Tufts' Ed Palmieri finished ahead of the highly favored McKenley, who was bumped off the track by a rival as the small field was sent away.

McKenley made a terrific effort to regain his lost ground during the final lap. He pulled up to third and then wilted badly.

As usual, the great Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace dominated the bulky Hillman 45-yard high hurdles field. Dillard had a yard to spare on Ed Dugger of Dayton, Ohio, when he snapped the worsted in the meet-equaling time of 5.6 seconds. Yale's George Cook captured the show position.

Another favorite was humbled in the Lapham "1000," which New York University's Reggie Pearman captured by 2 feet from Dave Smith of Georgetown University, as last year's winner, Joe Nowicki of the New York A. C., wound up fifth in the six-man field.

St. John's, Gonzaga Play

St. John's and Gonzaga continue their series of schoolboy basketball double-headers 2:30 today at the Armory.

The Johnnies, who have lost but one decision in 15 outings, will oppose a Townson High five which last season took the Baltimore County championship. This season the Townson crew has dropped two games bust still figures to give the locals a rough afternoon.

One of Townson's defeats was to strong Mount Saint Joseph of Baltimore, to which St. John dropped a one-point overtime decision recently.

Gonzaga, whose record this season has been rather mediocre, will open the twin bill against Calvert Hall of Baltimore. Hall has shown little punch in its Baltimore games this season and the locals are rated a slight favorite.

All-Stars Win, 59-56

Scholastic All-Stars defeated National Training School officers, 59-56, last night at NTS. Bob Kleinknecht was high for the All-Stars with 19 points.

N. C. State Drubs Hoyas

Special to The Washington Post

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 7.—North Carolina State's tournament-hungry Wolfpack ripped a fading Georgetown team, 87-46, before a crowd of approximately 6500 persons here tonight.

Three of the victors rolled up a total of 57 points before the Hoyas managed to put forth its only sustained scoring drive late in the final minutes.

Tom McComas had 20, Paul Dickwy, 18, and Bart Bartels 19 for State.

Only Tom O'Keefe was able to dent the shifty State defense. He netted 12 points, 10 of them coming in the last six minutes of play.

Staunton Defeats Valley Forge, 45-41

Staunton, Va., Feb. 7.—Staunton Military Academy made foul shots pay off here tonight to whip Valley Forge Military Academy of Wayne, Pa., 45-41. Both clubs made 17 field goals but Staunton added 10 fouls in 20 attempts. The visitors tallied five in 15 tries.

Bobo Doesn't Appeal to Veeck

Cleveland, Feb. 7 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians today removed themselves from the list of prospective bidders for Bobo Newsom, the "Gulliver" of major league baseballers.

Tribe President Bill Veeck said he had considered the possibility of making an offer for the well-traveled pitcher, released yesterday by the New York Yankees. Veeck dismissed the idea, however, after Indians manager, Lou Boudreau declared:

"Bobo will lose more than he'll win this season."

GW, Hoyas, Terps Play On Same Bill

Three local schools will supply 75 per cent of the talent this Wednesday night in the first college basketball doubleheader ever held at the Armory.

George Washington and Maryland engage in a neighborhood scrap and Georgetown meets Penn State in the bargain bill.

Athletic authorities at GW and Georgetown are staging the two games for the price of one as an experiment. If they draw well, the schools again will line up an attractive card next season.

Their ambitious doubleheader schedule for this year was called off when someone made it a point to count the fire exits at the huge Armory.

Fire Marshal Steps In

Before the season opened, the colleges thought they would be able to accommodate more than 8500. When the fire marshal blew his whistle, crowd capacity was limited to 4800. This caused Rome Schwagel of Georgetown, and Max Farrington of GW, to cancel their joint program.

Now that the jurisdictional squabble at the Armory has been settled, chances are the larger crowd figure will be permitted next year.

GW-Terps Hold Interest

Local interest is centered on the GW-Maryland battle. Although stunned by W. & L. Friday night, the Colonials still have lost only 3 of 13 Southern Conference games.

Maryland, with an in and out 7-8 record, recently has been playing its best ball of the season. Coach Flucie Stewart's Terrapins dropped close ones to both Army and Navy but handed South Carolina a surprising 68-54 setback and trounced VMI.

The Terps have an added incentive to beat GW, they're fighting to grab a Southern Conference playoff berth.

Georgetown, after meeting two of the best teams in the country in Holy Cross and North Carolina State, hopes to get back in the victory column against Penn State.

AHA Ignored As Hockey Recognition Is Restored

By Ted Smits

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 7 (AP).—Arguments and snow failed to stop the Americans today as they pulled into second place in the winter Olympic games with a championship in the four-man bobsled race.

It was the United States' No. 2 team, piloted by Francis Tyler of Lake Placid, N. Y., that streaked four times down the mile of sheer ice in the total time of 5 minutes 20.1 seconds.

The United States team, guided by James Bickford of Saranac Lake, N. Y., was third.

Biggest feat of the day, however, was the somersault taken by the International Olympic Committee which restored hockey to Olympic program, but added the United States Amateur Hockey Association team would not be awarded diplomas of competition.

TEAM STANDINGS

1. Sweden 79
2. United States 73¼
3. Switzerland 73
4. Norway 69½
5. Austria 51
6. Finland 49
7. France 39
8. Italy 25
9. Belgium 18
10. Canada 14¼
11. Great Britain 13
12. Hungary 10
13. Holland 6
14. Czechoslovakia 5

(Fourteen nations have failed to score.)

The Swiss had insisted all along that hockey was a part of the Olympics even though the IOC ruled it out in the squabble over United States representation.

Competition Ends Today

In addition to Tyler's championship, other title decided were:

Figure skating by pairs—Won by McIheline Lannoy and Pierre Baugniet of Belgium. Yvonne Sherman and Robert Swenning of New York were fourth, and the Kennedy children, Karol and Peter, of Seattle, Wash., were sixth.

Ski jumping—Won by Peter Hugsted of Norway. Gordon Wren of Winter Park, Colo., took fifth place—the first time an American male ever scored a point in an Olympic ski event.

With only the hockey championships to be settled—Czechoslovakia is the leader, followed by Canada, Switzerland and the United States — the Associated Press scorecard, based on basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the six places, shows:

Sweden 79 points, United States 73¼, Switzerland 73, Norway 69½, Austria 51, Finland 49, France 39, Italy 25, Belgium 18, Canada 14¼, Great Britain 13, Hungary 10, Holland 6, Czechoslovakia 5. Only 14 of the 28 competing nations have scored in the competition that ends tomorrow.

United States' Best Showing

The victory in the bobsledding gave the American team its third Olympic championship. Dick Button of Englewood, N. J., won one in men's figure skating and Mrs. Gretchen Fraser of Vancouver, Wash., triumphed in the women's ski slalom.

Overall, this is the strongest showing the United States ever has made in the winter Olympics. The Americans won at Lake Placid, N. Y., in 1932, but it was a hollow victory because the depression and travel distances cut sharply into European entries.

Snow fell thickly all day, causing delays and anguish. Hockey teams sometimes lost the puck. Figure

Bing and Bob 'On Road to D.C.' For Celebrities Golf May 16

BOB HOPE and Bing Crosby will be here, and the second annual National Celebrities golf tournament again will be held at the Columbia Golf and Country Club May 16, a Sunday.

Hope was in town yesterday for the annual Radio Correspondents Association party and told The Washington Post, sponsor of the tournament, that he definitely will participate.

"I'll be there even if it means a special plane trip from the West Coast," Bob said.

Previous commitments prevented Hope from playing in the inaugural tournament last May.

Crosby, a central figure in the 1947 tournament, has been playing golf this winter with Del Webb, one of the owners of the New York Yankees.

Webb, also an entrant in last spring's tournament, told The Washington Post from Phoenix, Ariz., that he and Crosby again will compete.

Other celebrities who played in the 1947 tournament will be back, including Babe Didrikson, who added the British women's title to her long list of victories shortly after her appearance here.

This year's field also will include many new faces from among national figures.

Last year's tournament attracted Nation-wide attention to Attorney General Tom Clark's program to bring more boys and girls into sports and recreation, primary purpose of the event.

Officials of the Columbia club have generously approved the use of their course a second time.

Tatum Adds Athletic Director Duties to Football Coaching

Jim Tatum will be director of athletics in addition to head football coach at the University of Maryland, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president, announced yesterday.

The director's post has been filled by Walter Driskill since he came here last year with Tatum. Driskill also has doubled as assistant football coach.

Dr. Byrd said the change was being made because of an expanded athletic program at the university. The president reported it "became apparent that the work load had become too heavy for the top assistant football coach to double as athletic director."

Byrd said it had been decided that Driskill would either have to devote full time to the director's job and employ another football assistant or hire a business manager of athletics. Driskill elected to continue to coach, Byrd reported.

At the same time, Byrd announced the appointment of William W. Cobey as business manager of athletics. Cobey has been university cashier since 1931.

He also disclosed that a department of intercollegiate athletics will be established at Maryland at the start of the next fiscal year. Athletics now are under the college of military science, physical education and recreation.

Colts Sign Pair

Baltimore, Feb. 7 (AP).—Two more players, Robert (Stormy) Pfohl, former Purdue back, and Reid Lennan, who played guard with the Los Angeles Dons last year, were signed by the Baltimore Colts today.

3 Men Find Sure Way to Beat Races

Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 7 (AP).—Officials of the Las Vegas club are wondering if three men who won $11,000 from the bookmaker at the club have discovered a sure-fire system for beating horse races.

Police Chief Robert Malburg said the trio entered the club yesterday and bet on a 44½ to 1 shot in the seventh race at Fair Grounds track, New Orleans. The club was having trouble with its racing wire but the wire was repaired and flashed information that the horse, Atomic City, was the winner. The men collected $11,000 and departed.

A bank official had informed police earlier that he saw a man cutting wires on a telephone pole behind the phone company.

Malmburg said investigation revealed that the only wire cut was one of 1200 and the one carrying race information to the Las Vegas club.

Two men were held for questioning in the case. One, Malmburg said, is an ex-convict and an electrician.

The police chief theorized that the bettors had heard the result of the race in another gambling club before making the wager.

Czarobski Gets $25,000

Chicago, Feb. 7 (AP).—Zygmont "Ziggy" Czarobski, Notre Dame tackle, today signed a two-year contract to play professional football with the Chicago Rockets of the all-American Conference for a reported $25.000.

The Notre Dame line star was originally drafted by the Los Angeles Dons of the A-A, and the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League. The Cardinals bid as high as $16.000 for two years for his signature.

Hockey Star Lost

Chicago, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The Chicago Blackhawks hockey team has lost the services of Defenseman Bob Goldham for the remainder of the season, it was announced today. Goldham suffered a broken forearm in Thursday night's game with Montreal.

Vern Stephens, Sr., Umpire

Los Angles, Feb. 7 (AP).—Vernon Stephens, sr., father of the Boston Red Sox infielder and a former scout, today signed a contract to umpire in the Sunset League this season. President Les Powers said six arbiters have been signed by the loop.

Can't Win, Coach Resigns

Albion, Mich., Feb. 7 (AP).—Coach Dean L. Rockwell, whose Albion College football team did not win a game last year, resigned today.

President W. W. Whitehouse said Rockwell's action would be effective at the end of the current school year. No successor will be named for several weeks, college officials said.

Worsham Has 68 for Total of 135

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Slammin' Sammy Snead, the reticent man from Virginia, ripped Brackenridge Park's soggy 3-plus miles for a 6-under-par 65 today to grab the lead by a stroke at the halfway mark of the $10,000 Texas Open.

The Slammer romped in for a 36-hole total of 131 as the field was cut to the low 60 scorers and ties for tomorrow's 36-hold finals.

Snead staved off a great round by Dick Metz, the former Texan now from Arkansas City, Kans., who came within a stroke of the competitive course record over the 6400-yard layout. Metz rolled home with a 63 to make his 36-hole 132.

Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., set the record at 62 in last year's Texas Open.

Within shooting distance of the leaders were Jim Ferrier, the burly San Francisco pro; Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn.; Bobby Locke, Johannesburg, South Africa; Al Smith, little-known pro from Winston-Salem, N. C., and Norman Von Nida of Sydney, Australia, one of yesterday's leaders. Each had 134.

Also up near the top was National Champion Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., who added a second-round 68 to his first round of 67 for a two-day total of 135, four strokes behind Snead.

Ferrier, who was tied with Von Nida, Eric Monti of Santa Monica, Calif., and Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., at the end of yesterday's first round, each drew a 65, slipped to a 69 today. Monti fell out of the top 20 by registering a 73. Laffoon took a 72 to skid to a tie for eighteenth place.

The leaders:

Collegian Sets Shot-Put Mark

East Lansing, Mich., Feb. 7 (AP). Charles Fonville, powerful University of Michigan weight star, tossed the 16-pound shot 56 feet 6¼ inches in the Michigan State relays here tonight, almost six inches beyond the American College record set by Georgetown's Al Blozis in the 1940 NCAA meet at Minneapolis.

Blozis' mark was 56 feet ½-inch. Fonville's heave, coming on his second try of the big indoor meet which attracted more than 300 athletes from 22 schools, was 63/4 inches short of the recognized world record set by Jack Torrance of Louisiana State University at Oslo, Sweden, in 1934.

It was the best competitive toss in the career of Michigan's 194-pound Negro ace, who won the NCAA championship last June at 54 feet 10⅞ inches.

Relays officials claimed Fonville's feat the best indoor performance in history for a shot putter. Blozis, who was killed in the war, registered 56 feet 4½ inches indoors in the National AAU meet in 1941.

Skins Caught Off Balance By Foldberg

The Washington Redskins have been caught with their contacts down.

Up to their necks in announcing receipt of signed contracts from most of the 1947 Tribesmen, the 'Skins yesterday learned that Army End Hank Foldberg, their third draft choice last year, had resigned from the academy, reportedly to play professional football.

The Redskins have not contacted the big Texan since last July, although his collegiate eligibility ended in 1947.

Yesterday General Manager Dick McCann and Head Coach Turk Edwards were trying to reach him at West Point and Dallas to tell him, in effect, if you want to play football, see us.

It can be presumed that the Brooklyn Dodgers, who hold All-American Conference draft rights on the stellar flankman, either already have or are trying to reach him, too.

Next to Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis, Foldberg was considered one of the standouts of the Army juggernaut that rolled over everything for three years.

In announcing his resignation, the academy said that in his request to resign, Foldberg said "he desired to assist in alleviating family financial difficulties."

Should Foldberg join the pro ranks, he would become the second member of Army's great wartime squad to go into the "play for pay ranks" as George (Barney) Poole, who played the flank opposite Foldberg, is expected to sign with the New York Giants upon his graduation from the University of Mississippi.

Both Blanchard and Davis attempted to secure leaves of absences upon their graduation from West Point in order to play professional football, but their applications were denied.

Later, Davis asked to be permitted to resign in order to accept a pro football offer, but the Army department turned him down.

Skins' Home Games

The Los Angeles Rams, who have won four games in a row from the Washington Redskins, will play here next fall for the first time.

This was disclosed yesterday as the Redskins announced their home schedule for 1948.

The Redskins have dropped one championship game to the Rams (they were the Cleveland Rams then), as well as three exhibition games. This will be their first meeting in a regular National Football League game.

The Redskins' 1948 home games:
September 26—Pittsburgh Steelers.
October 3—New York Giants.
October 17—Philadelphia Eagles.
October 31—Boston Yanks.
November 14—Detroit Lions.
December 5—Los Angeles Rams.

Navy Wrestling Team Routs Columbia, 33-5, for 42d in Row

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7 (AP).—Columbia's big Hank O'Shaughnessy preserved his undefeated record in intercollegiate competition, but Navy's standout wrestling team trounced the Lions, 33 to 5. The victory was Navy's forty second straight for a dual meet.

O'Shaughnessy's key lock pin of heavyweight, Newbold Smith, was the visitors' only triumph in the eightbouts. It was a significant one, however, as this was the first loss for Smith in a dual meet.

Chuck Hathaway won Navy's fastest victory in the 165-pound class. He pinned Ken O'Shaughnessy in 1 minute and 15 seconds with a body scissors.

Middie Natators Lose

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7 (AP).—Ted Norris of Harvard set a Navy pool record today in the 440-yard freestyle as his swimming teammates defeated the Midides, 50 to 25.

Norris, a junior, swam the distance in 4 minutes 54.5 seconds, bettering the pool mark by .9 seconds.

The best showing of the midshipmen was by Bill Kanakanui, who won the 50-yard freestyle in 23.5 seconds. He took also the 100-yard freestyle in 55.3 seconds.

Stuyvesant Defeats Fishburne, 44 to 34

Warrenton, Va., Feb. 7.—Stuyvesant School won, 44-34, over Fishburne Military Academy here today on the Stuyvesant court, Johnny Copp contributed 19 points to lead the winners to their seventh win in 11 games.

Bullis Loses To Army's Plebes, 46-44

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Bullis' Little Admirals fell short of overcoming a seven-point halftime deficit in bowing, 46-44, to the Army Plebes here today.

Dick Goelzer took individual scoring honors with 19 points and Teammate Bill Cannon dropped in 15. High scorer for the Plebes was Reeve with 12.

Episcopal Hard Pressed

Bailey Dixon and Johnny Garland sank two field goals each in an overtime period to give Episcopal a 34-28 decision over St. Christopher's of Richmond (Va.) at the winner's court yesterday.

A see-saw regulation battle saw Episcopal's Henry Schacht drop in a foul toss to knot the count at 24-all 15 seconds before the final gun. Schacht and Kippy Kimbrough led the winners with 10 points each.

U.S. Wins Bobsled Title

skaters wobbled and fell. Ski jumpers slowed down. Only bobsledders rocketed down their icy course oblivious to the elements.

Never before, perhaps has a team wavered so close between winning a championship and just sitting on the sidelines.

Last night it was touch and go whether Tyler's sled would compete.

What happened was this: the second heat of the bobsled was interrupted yesterday when the track caved in due to a leaky pipe. Tyler had already made a fast second run.

Bob-sledding authorities ordered the entire heat cancelled and re-run. Tyler said "no," emphatically. Then he declared if the heat was cancelled, he would not lead off in re-running it unless four or five pilot sleds were sent down to smooth out the course.

Donna Fox and coach of the American bobsled squad, stepped in to mediate—and Tyler made the first run of the day.

Tyler weighs 202 pounds. Back of him was a hefty team. Pat Martin, No. 2 man, from Massena, N. Y., weighs 260. From Schenectady, N. Y. came Edward Rimkus, 225. At brake was William De Amico of Lake Placid, N. Y. at 210. He also was chosen for the 1940 team.

As the round-robin hockey tournament drew to its close Czechoslovakia knocked off the strong Swiss team, 7-1, the American team defeated Great Britain, 4-3, by virtue of a penalty shot—only one called so far at St. Moritz; Canada crushed Austria, 12-0, and Sweden swamped Italy, 23-0.

Stahley Gloomy But Says GW 'Will Be Better'

Skip Will Remain On Despite Reports

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

SKIP STAHLEY already is exercising a football coach's prerogative. Although it's even too early for George Washington's spring practice, Stahley said yesterday he can't be anything but pessimistic about the coming season.

He isn't just kidding. The Colonials, who won only one game last year, face a more difficult schedule with just about the same material.

All returns aren't in, but at the moment the most notable additions are Tailback Johnny Shullenbarger and Fullback Joe Stanislawczyk. The former won't be a stranger. After starring at Coolidge, Shullenbarger played at GW two years ago but ran into scholastic difficulties. He has reenrolled and wil be eligible next fall.

Stanislawczyk, 5-foot-8 210-pounder, was graduated from Potomac State Junior College, where he won Little All-America honors. The squatty line bucker is an Army veteran who was decorated with the Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

Although Stahley ostensibly hasn't much to cheer about, he's in much better spirits than he was last fall when he carried the weight of a seven-game losing streak.

At that time there was talk that he wouldn't stay for the last year of a three-year contract. Yesterday, Stahley said it was his intention to remain at GW.

"It would be a tough life if you couldn't look ahead to better things," Stahley said, "and I feel that we not only have to be better—we will be better.

"A good passer was our direst need last year. And I think Shullenbarger is a good one. When he was with us against Rutgers, he passed for more than 200 yards and Rutgers had a good club. I feel that if we had had Shully last season we would have beaten Georgetown."

The Colonials, hampered by poor athletic facilities, aren't in a good position to compete for talent with bigger Southern Conference schools. And now that conditions are more nearly normal, it's practically impossible to field fresh talent on short notice.

Tougher Slate in '48 With Same Material

Freshmen, unless they were in service before August 14, 1945, aren't eligible for varsity ball. Conference transfers can't play at all. About the only ones who can transfer and play immediately are graduates of junior colleges. In that category, the demand far exceeds the supply.

Stahley said he won't go through another horrible season like he had last year, but he probably will receive a strong argument from 10 strong opponents.

They include (with last year's score in parentheses, if played): Wake Forest (7-39); VPI (6-42); VMI (7-13); Virginia (13-33); Kansas; Maryland; Lafayette; The Citadel; Duke and Georgetown (0-0).

Levin Meets Rhode In Turner's Return Go

Former wrestling champion Dave Levin claims he will press charges—and several hundred pounds of brawn—against opponent Dutch Rhode when the two meet on the mat at Turner's Arena Tuesday night.

Levin is still sore about being hoodwinked last week by the crafty Rhode who escaped a licking by using the ancient three pats on the back trick to fool him. In a preliminary bout Don Lee will face Sandor Kovacs.

Our Prodigal Haight Comes Home—to Fish

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

PERHAPS YOU'VE HEARD about the fellow who wandered all over the world, finally knocked on the door of his old home and said, "Father, I've come home to die." His pater replied, "Don't lie, son. You came home to eat."

Haight

On my return from various excursions about the Nation, I've told the boss I came back to go to work when I knew darned well I came back to go fishing.

Just as there's no eating like homecooking, to me there's no fishing like home fishing in the salt waters of Chesapeake Bay or in the Potomac River.

In my time I've tried just about all Florida has to offer in fishing. Never had a yen to hook a sailfish, but I've been along at the "kill." I've struggled with kingfish, dolphin and such, out by the Gulfstream.

A day wrestling with Spanish mackerel along the Florida Keys was enough.

I tried the $3 deep sea cruise out of Miami on which customers, hundreds of them, fish by the whistle—honest, one blast starts the sport, two ends it. A person not seasick is looked upon as a pro.

FRIENDS TRIED to interest me in shark fishing but I passed, natch.

Bass fishing on the Shenandoah, wading around, fly casting, etc., didn't appeal to me.

My experience with mountain trout fishing came in Colorado. The hotel had a private, stocked lake where the speckled beauties—sort of house fish—were so numerous and hook-happy that they could have been caught on grandma's crochet needle.

On the West Coast, I went tarpon fishing—a great sport for men with weak minds, strong backs and big bankrolls.

I've heard all about the muskies, wall-eyed pike, giant cats, etc.

But when it comes to my No. 1 fish, I'll take Maryland's all-year gamester—the rockfish, known up the coast as striped bass. Nor am I alone in paying homage to this fighting fellow. O. H. P. Rodman thought enough of him to write a book—Striped Bass (A. S. Barnes and Co. $2).

When I refer to rockfish as a Marylander, persons from Jersey, New York and New England are likely to take exception, because the largest of the species—up to 60 pounds—have been taken in those waters.

CHESAPEAKE BAY and the lower Potomac, however, are home to the rockfish—his breeding ground and, for the most part, his stomping ground.

Rockfishing hereabouts is at its peak in late autumn when the big fellows school and attack their favorite food, the menhaddon.

There's no fishing sight quite like that of the feeding rockfish, coming up under the oversized minnows, slashing and grinding them as a cloud of sea gulls hover over the churned water, eager to snatch leftovers.

Trolling and chumming (tossing bait overboard at intervals to draw fish) are the chief methods of catching the stripers on the bay. The best artificial lures, in my book, are the Huntington Drone and the white bucktail.

Brother Rodman, apparently has centered his rockfishing up the coast for he tells of surfcasting and other methods virtually unknown to the bay sportsmen.

NEARBY WATERS are emptied of thousands of tons of the stripers each year, the majority by professional netters.

Efforts are now being made to stamp the striped bass as an exclusive sports fish, barred to netters.

Oddly enough, the East Coast which gave the West Coast the striper, now in being taught how to conserve him. California was first, by law, to take rockfish out of the commercial class. Not native to the Pacific, fewer than 500 were shipped and planted in the late 1800's. Since, many million tons have been handled commercially.

On the Atlantic Coast, antinetting began in Maine and spread south to New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut. A similar measure failed last year in the New Jersey Senate after passing the House.

When will Maryland, my Maryland, get in line?

Searle Paces Tars With 18 Points

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7 (AP).—Navy's fast-breaking basketball team won its sixth game of the season today defeating Princeton, 50 to 34, before more than 2500 spectators in Dahlgren Hall.

Navy derived quite a bit of satisfaction from the victory since Princeton had defeated two of the three teams, including Rutgers and Villanova, which trimmed Navy earlier in the season.

The game was scoreless for the first two and a half minutes. Then George Lawry, Princeton captain, hooked one into give the Tigers a 2-0 lead.

Navy Warms Up

Navy came back with shots by Bob Claitor and Chuck Sheehan to send the Middies ahead with five minutes gone.

Outside of three free throws by Lawry, Princeton was held scoreless for almost seven minutes after the Tigers' initial goal.

Bob Searle, Navy's ace scorer, went to work and paced a drive which put the Midshipmen ahead by 11 points, 20 to 9, five minutes before the half intermission. The third quarter started with Navy in front, 23-14.

With five minutes of the game remaining, Ronnie Andresen boosted Navy's margin to 47-26 and Coach Ben Carnevale began running in his reserves.

Navy capitalized on a fast break and floor-length passes to run away from the Tigers.

Searle was the big scoring man, collecting eight from the field and two from the charity line for an 18 total. Bernie Adams, Princeton center, was best for the Tigers with three goals and four fouls.

$800,000 GOAL

HE REACHES FOR IT—It's tough to reach the goal, but Timothy Stewart, age 18 months, of 5000 V st. nw., with a little help from his dad, Eugene, a veteran and alumnus of Georgetown, feels that he is doing his part to aid the alumni drive to raise $800,000 to build the McDonough memorial gymnasium on the Hoya campus. The drive starts February 9

25 Bouts Open AAU Tourney

Champions of the recent Golden Gloves competition head 25 bouts opening the Nineteenth Annual District AAU Boxing Tournament in Turner's Arena, 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Loyola Defeats Gallaudet Wrestlers

Baltimore, Feb. 7 (AP).—Loyola College won five of the seven bouts in trouncing Gallaudet 22½ to 7½ in a Mason-Dixon Conference wrestling match here today.

It was the second victory in three conference starts for Loyola.

Bowling . . .

THE KALORAMA bowling alleys conducts its most important tournament today—the seventeenth annual Dixie classic.

A four-game block at 2:30 and another five-gamer at 7:30 have lured top feminine duckpinners from Virginia, Maryland and the District. Defending champion is Lucille Young.

Ida Simmons has won five times and Lorraine Gulli four. Elizabeth (Toots) Barger of Baltime, Evelyn Nickel of King Pin, who has a 116.52 District major league average; Jessie Sacrey, Frances Johnson and Lucy Rose are other capable contenders.

A big Sunday schedule will be offered. Police and firemen clash at 2:15 at Lucky Strike in a special Mile o' Dimes benefit match, with Maj. Robert J. Barrett and Fire Chief Clement Murphy rolling the first balls. At Penn Recreation the annual Mile o' Dimes Handicap, won by Carl Boheme last year, will begin at 2 p. m.

One-ball tournaments are scheduled at the Rosslyn and Petworth alleys. At Rosslyn, Owen Loveday is offering a $200 first prize.

The Ice Palace will be the scene at 2 p. m. of a five-game all-star match between American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars teams, with the bowlers matched by averages.

Many local stars will vie at the Regent alleys in Baltimore in the Rupple-Vaeth Memorial tournament.

St. Martin Blues Win

St. Martin Blues won their second game of the second defeating Stfl Anthony Blues, 39-14, with Marina Murray and Mary Ann Jones leading the attack.

Fight Roundup

Murray Meets Haynes In 'Heavy' Heavy Bout

Hursey Faces Horne Instead of Kapilow

Smuggy Hursey, Washington's Jack-rabbit of a middleweight who was temporarily put out of business last September by Tommy Bell, swings back into action February 23 when he meets Sonny Horne in a 10-rounder at Uline Arena.

Smuggy's "comeback" against the clever Ohio boxing master is being promoted by the Liberty Athletic Club, benefactors to Hursey to the tune of over $50,000 in four outdor bouts last summer.

Kapilow Trounced

Danny Kapilow originally was slated to fight Hursey (for the fourth time), but the Brooklyn boy got a severe going over in his home town Tuesday night and was shelved in favor of Horne.

The Messrs. Goldie Ahearn and Al Weill, guiding genuises of the Liberty A. C., may have made a bad move in not going through with a busted-up Kapilow rather than bringing in an operator like Horne. Sonny showed here two years ago, against Aaron Perry, and it was the general opinion of some 7500 spectators who saw Horne win in a walk that Perry couldn't hit Horne with a fistful of tacks.

Horne's a Cutey

Hursey is no Perry, but the Smug showed against Bel lthat he doesn't belong in the same ring with a "cutey" like Horne. Horne is no puncher, but neither does he get punched often.

He's been in with most of the best in the 160-pound class and his record is better than average. Some of his victims last year include Pete Mead, Henry Chmiel, Jerry Fiorello, J. C. Wilkins and Freddie Wilson.

Hursey ran up a string of victories here last summer, listing Perry, Bee Bee Washington and Kapilow among them. In turn, he was held to a draw by Kapilow and then received a sound drubbing from Bell. He hasn't fought since then.

Bill Cowley, All-Time Great, Will Coach Lions

With four regulars injured and the most difficult week's schedule of the season ahead of them, Washington's Lions had one bit of encouraging news to think about.

Bill Cowley, former center of the bottom Bruins and an all-time hockey great, will arrive here Tuesday to help Coach Jack Riley in the team's direction.

Pittsburgh plays here on Tuesday and Friday, and play host to the Lions Saturday. The smooth-skating Hornets have dropped but 11 games this season, while winning 28 and tying 8.

419 Lbs. on Display At Turner's Arena

In quantity, anyway, Monday night's Turner's Arena fight patrons have no beef.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez is pitting 214-pound Lee Q. Murray against Johnny Haynes, a West Coast importation who scales a mere 205 pounds, in his feature, a scheduled 10-rounder.

If Marty Gallagher is the third man in the ring, over 635 pounds of flesh will be on display at the same time at a cost of only $3.90 per ringside seat.

From the standpoint of quality, Murray, who's listed among the top 10 heavyweight challengers, seems to have it all over his rival. From their records and vital statistics, the only basis of equality is in their height. Neither is apygmy. Both skyscrape over 6 feet 4 inches.

Murray has outpointed some of the better "name" fighters in the poor heavyweight class, including Jimmy Bivins and Curtis Sheppard. Lee has made one previous appearance in Washington three years ago when he dusted off Yance Henry.

With the heavyweight division crying for talent, Murray could be maneuvered into another top match without too much difficulty. A win over Haynes, a virtual unknown, won't enhance his chances of getting top billing in New York or another leading fight center, but a loss most certainly would put a crimp in those plans.

Haynes, a former Lane College football player, has confined his activities to the West Coast where he won over such non-stalwarts as Al Ware, K. O. Hooker, Buddy Millard, Rusty Payne, Nolan Sharp and Washington's Walter Hafer. The latter, however, had stiffened Haynes previously, as has Perk Daniels and Pat Comisky (twice).

It's the first of several heavyweight clashes Matchmaker Menendez has lined up and a good crowd is expected, even if only to see the concentration of such weight in a 20-foot area.

Two fives and a pair of fours are also on the card.

Terps Box At Michigan

The University of Maryland boxing team left yesterday for East Lansing, Mich., where it will start a busy week that includes a unique doubleheader.

After taking on Michigan State Monday, the Terrapin punchers will return to College Park to get ready for Clemson and American on the same show next Saturday. The regulars will go against Clemson and intra-mural winners will provide the opposition for American U.

Coach Heinie Miller's squad already holds a 4½-3½ victory over Michigan State in the Sugar Bowl. Monday's competition will be increased to 10 pouts, additions being in the 118 and 150-pound classes.

500 Attend Minnesotans' Party Here

By The Associated Press

Some 500 Minnesotans in the Nation's Capital turned out last night in honor of Harold E. Stassen and the State's congressional delegation.

Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl of Minnesota flew here to attend the affair, including an old-fashioned smorgasbord, was held in the terrace room of the National Airport. It was arranged by the Minnesota State Society of Washington.

Stassen, Minnesota's presidential candidate and former Governor, and members of Congress from the State formed a reception line to greet the guests.

In addition to the American and Minnesota State flags, national emblems of Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Finland decorated the ballroom to carry out the Scandinavian theme.

Diplomats Are Present

Invited guests included Ambassador and Mrs. Henrik de Kauffmann of Denmark, Ambassador and Mrs. Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne of Norway, Dr. K. T. Jutila, Minister of Finland, and his wife; Thor Thors, Minister of Iceland, and Mrs. Thors, and Alexis de Aminoff, Counselor of the Swedish Legation, and Mrs. Aminoff.

Delicacies of the smorgasbord, contributed and flown in a special plane by the George A. Hormel Co. of Austin, Minn., included:

Canapes, chicken salad, assorted cold cuts, dry sausage and franks, inlagd sill (pickled herring), fish platters, including eel; assorted cheeses, potato salad, cold slaw, bruna boner a la Mexicana (brown baked beans with Mexican sauce), pickles, stuffed celery hearts, buttered rolls, petite fours, and coffee.

Miss Elaine Mary Campbell of Minneapolis, who as "Miss Minnesota" was the runner-up at the last Miss America pageant at Atlantic City, was the guest singer.

On display before being taken to the Smithsonian Institution where it will be put on exhibition was the Kensington rune stone, brought by plane from Alexandria, Minn.

A Smithsonian official said the stone is possibly authentic and will be given further study.

The date of 1362 A. D. is inscribed on the stone along with a brief account of how part of a group of early Vikings were slain by Indians roaming territory that is now part of Minnesota.

Last night's affair is one of a half-dozen dinner parties scheduled over the winter season by the Minnesota State Society.

UNCLE SAM SAYS

How would you like to write a check for $2,498.94 to yourself dated New Year's Day 1958? You can do exactly that by signing your name any time in January to an authorization form at your bank which will permit them to take $18.75 a month from the funds you have on deposit and buy one $25 Savings Bond for you every month for the next 10 years. The Payroll Savings Plan—which is the partial payment way to buy Savings Bonds where you work—is equally powerful in producing a sizable nestegg out of regular savings.

COLONIAL MANSION
APPROACHED BY LOVELY HORSESHOE DRIVEWAY

Through formal gardens of oak, pine, magnolia and holly trees, situated on approx. 2 acres in Arlington County this fine old home is entered through a large central hall. On the left is a 17x20 living room with huge stone fireplace and 17x20 dining room with beamed ceiling. On the right is the library, with beamed ceiling, den, kitchen and pantry. Passing through the hall you will ascend a large open staircase flanked by Grecian columns. On the 2d floor are 6 bedrooms and 2 baths. On the 3d floor are servants' quarters of 2 bedrooms, living room, dining room and kitchen. Full basement with oil heat and bath. There are porches both up and downstairs. An informal garden with fish pond and lovely oaks on the rear. With minimum restoration this old home could become the show place of the county. We recommend it to the discriminating type of clientele. Any sensible financial arrangement can be arranged.

WHY DO THE PEOPLE PREFER CHAMBERS?

W. W. CHAMBERS, Sr.

There are so many good reasons why more people prefer Chambers to other undertakers. To put it briefly, some prefer the dignity and beauty of our funerals. So many know they will not be overcharged. Yes, our low prices is another factor. That is why you will prefer Chambers, when the inevitable occurs.

W. W. CHAMBERS, Jr.

In Memoriam

CASSELL, MANNIE. On February 8, 1947, one year ago today.

You who have been so true and just
Giving your strong heart to our trust.
Husband who held me all these years,
There is no hopelessness in tears!
Parted, ah yes—but for a while
Until we share our Master's smile.
LOVING WIFE, KATIE.

CASSELL, MANNIE. On February 8, 1947, one year ago today.

I have only your memory, dear father,
To remember my whole life through;
But the sweetness will linger forever
As I treasure the image of you.
Daughters, Catherine and Marie. Sons, Howard, Daniel and Andrew.

Waldorf Fashion Show Dresses

Come to The Hecht Co.

Every One Less Than 25.00

Thousands of women read eagerly of the exciting fashion show recently held in New York's gilded Waldorf-Astoria. Reason: It featured good fashions, good quality . . . in Spring's newest dresses for less than 25.00! Fashion-aware women liked that idea. They liked it a lot. So The Hecht Co. brought a collection of them home to Washington and Silver Spring. You'll want them first for fashion and quality; second for their never-rock-the-budget-boat price!

Admiral's Missing Pants Snarl Protocol at Bermuda Dinner

Governor's Wife Sews Tiny Pair As 'Rib' to Doyle

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

BERMUDA—Official protocol is pretty precise in Bermuda. Anyone invited to Government House is supposed to arrive punctually five minutes before the Governor General makes his grand entry. The commander of our naval forces in Bermuda, Admiral "Artie" Doyle, found himself in quite a protocol pickle. All set to step into his dress uniform before an official dinner, the trousers were mysteriously missing. The Filipino houseboy had gone for the evening, no one knew where he'd put the admiral's pants. An old pair was resuscitated but the Doyles arrived three quarters of an hour late. Instead of being put out, Lady Leatham, the Governor's wife, was highly entertained. A few days later, the admiral received a small box from Government House. In it was a miniature pair of black evening pants, silk lined, correctly striped, stitched by her ladyship's needle. Now Admiral Doyle keeps them on his desk ready for any emergency.

Flowers Bloom in Elephant Tusks

DUNCAN McMARTIN, one of the wealthiest Canadians extant, is having quite a time disposing of the trophies he collects on big game expeditions. He's given the Midocean Club an outsize moosehead while Pan American's Bill Burton was gifted recently with an office table made from a hunt trophy. McMartin's stepfather, Jerry Hilborn, one of Bermuda's most noted green thumbs, grows giant carnations and has raised some of his most sensational specimens in elephant tusks, hollowed out and filled with soil.

Meanwhile, over in Riddell's Bay, the million-dollar mansion which belonged to Duncan's sister, Melba, is still empty. Melba died last winter.

The Canadian gold mine heiress, who nonchalantly used to wear at El Morocco a huge hunk of the Jonkeer diamond hung from a slim platinum chain, sunk a fortune in the extraordinary house which features a circular bar. Nevertheless, there are no takers at the million-dollar asking price.

SPITHEAD, where Eugene O'Neill wrote so many of his plays, almost fell apart during the war, now has been completely rejuvenated, painted pink and sold for approximately $150,000.

NEWEST ARRIVAL out at the Midocean Club is Archie Compston, who taught golf to King George VI, the Duke of Windsor, beat Walter Hagen. Now's he holed in permanently to instruct Bermudians.

ODDEST POSTWAR ARRIVAL was an elderly English lady who stepped off a trans-Atlantic plane, asked to be driven to an unfamiliar hotel. After considerable cross examination, the taxi driver discovered she'd mistaken Bermuda for Bahamas, bought a ticket to the wrong island. She was put back on the plane, and as far as anyone knows arrived safely in Nassau.

MOST APPEALING ornithological note concerns a one legged heron who blew in minus a mate, and refusing to budge, fishes the clock around on the bridge separating the British and American bases.

AUTOMOBILES weren't allowed in prewar Bermuda, and acquiring a driver's license today is hedged purposely with difficulties. No less than four special tests have to be passed successfully. Recently a prominent tavern owner who has bought an elaborate miniature car took no less than 600 lessons from a police officer. Though the lessons cost the equivalent of four dollars apiece he failed the ultimate test. His car is still in the garage.

Talbot Brothers Entertain

BEST Bermuda entertainers are the Talbot brothers—count 'em—four, plus a cousin. As busboys working around the Midocean Club they were discovered by Ford Johnson, taken up by Vincent Astor. Since then they've been imported twice to "the States" for private parties.

One plays a mouth organ and guitar simultaneously, another bows a bass fiddle made from an orange crate autographed by Bing Crosby and other cinemadazzlers. Eddy Duchin accompanied them when he hit Bermuda on his honeymoon.

They sing practically anything, have authored calypsos, their hit is a take off on the island's leading merchants, Trimmingham and Trott, sung to the tune of Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Sheean.

LIFE goes on much as in prewar times under Bermuda's balmy sun where this winter's British-American colony is enjoying freedom from ice, snow and shortages. Days are spent informally on the islands, but dinner time brings many a festive gathering. Dining together here are Mrs. Thompson Biddle of New York, who is having a turn of earring trouble, Lord Sack-Ville from London and Mrs. Michael Henderson of Bermuda. Mrs. Thompson Biddle is the former wife of Tony Biddle, who was American Ambassador to many European countries during the war years

Bermuda News Bureau Photos

REAR ADMIRAL AUSTIN K. DOYLE, USN, and Mrs. Doyle pause for a word with Dr. Charles Wainwright, left. The Doyles arrived in Bermuda last August from Washington for their Navy assignment on the island and are quartered in a pink and white house, the former home of the late Freddie McCormick

PICTURED over the coffee cups are Leon Fox, who is mayor of St. George's, one of the islands of the Bermuda chain, and Mrs. David Huxley of Washington. Though the islands seem little changed from prewar times to this winter's visitors most of them came by air rather than by the ships that used to anchor at Hamilton. A number of the ships were lost to submarines during the war, others are expected to be back in service soon

Diplomatic Circling

By Elizabeth Maguire

FAREWELLS and Southern vacations prevailed last week in diplomatic news. Wining and dining was on a small scale, and few visitors created fetes or furore.

The largest party was the brilliant farewell at the Egyptian Embassy for the retiring Ambassador and Mme. Hassan, given on the eve of their departure.

This week the Ambassador of Cuba, Guillermo Belt will be honored at a reception at the Syrian Embassy on Friday, and the following day the Pakistan Embassy will hold a reception for their Foreign Minister, Sir Mohamed Zafrulla Khan.

Among those saying farewell to Washington are the Third Secretary of the Australian Embassy and Mrs. H. Neil Truscott, a popular young couple who have been here for four years. In a special ceremony on Wednesday Ambassador Makin presented Mr. Truscott with two paintings on behalf of the embassy staff.

THE Danish Counselor and Mme. Bertelsen are also leaving town—to spend five weeks in Jamaica. And the Ambassador of Czechoslovakia, Juraj Slavik, is leaving this week as "Ambassador in special mission" to attend the inauguration of the new President of Venezuela, Romulo Gallegos. On his return the Ambassador will join Mme. Slavik and his son George on a skiing vacation in the Laurentians of Canada. George Slavik has just graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School, one of the highest in his class.

With their six children, the Military Attache of the Siamese Embassy and Mme. Kunjara will soon return to their country. The Kunjaras have been in Washington almost seven years.

Those returning to Washington include the Portuguese Ambassador, Pedro Theotonio Pereira, who will arrive in a day or two. Already in town are Colonel Prior-Palmer and his bride, who crossed on the Queen Mary, arriving in New York a few days ago. The Minister of Uruguay, Jose A. Mora, has gone home on a sad mission, to attend the funeral of his mother.

The Minister of Australia, Alfred Stirling, and his sister, Miss Dorothy Stirling, attended a re-

Dancing Class Ends Little Season Series

By Marie McNair

THE Dancing Class or "Three Dances" as they used to be known, ended its little season last night at the Sulgrave Club with the gayest, and largest gathering it has known this year. New Yorkers, tired of the snow, tired of looking at their own faces, came down to be guests for the weekend and to add a filip of variety to our own Washington scene.

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Averell Harriman had with them last night Mrs. Harriman's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Lord of New York. Mr. Lord must leave tonight for home but Mrs. Lord will linger a few days and will attend the Congressional reception at the White House Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins is happy to have a visit from her daughter Sunny—Mrs. Alexander Cochrane Forbes of Boston—and it was in her honor that she entertained at dinner for 22 of her friends, all of them going later to the Sulgrave.

The Duer McLanahans gave a dinner too, for Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Husted of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Noble of Groton,

Mrs. Carlos Romulo Is Tea Hostess

Mrs. Carlos Romulo, wife of the Philippine Ambassador to the U. N., was hostess at tea time yesterday to 40 friends. Her assistants who poured were Senora de Belt, wife of the Ambassador of Cuba; Mrs. Narcise Ramos, wife of the Philippine Minister; Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, Mrs. Robert Taft, Mrs. Harold Burton and Mrs. Clifford Davis.

Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, was among the guests, as was Mrs. Charles Malik, wife of the Lebanese Minister.

The Service Set

By Norma Foust

WASHINGTON service society spent most of its time this week giving and attending the flurry of parties for out-of-town visitors.

Some of the visitors came for Suzanne Slinghuff's and Franklin Holcomb's wedding last Tuesday afternoon or for Jeanne Hoover's and Lieut. Col. James Franklin Mears' wedding yesterday evening. Some are just passing through, and some just visiting.

In the last category are Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George W. Mundy's weekend guests: her brother, Col. James B. Buck, who is stationed with the Fourteenth Air Force at Orlando, Fla., and Brig. Gen. W. M. Morgan who flew here from his headquarters at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

The Mundy's entertained at a large cocktail party yesterday evening at the Army-Navy Club.

In town for Jeanne Hoover's wedding and reception yesterday were Rear Adm. L. B. Richardson (ret.), and Mrs. Richardson of New York. The Richardsons, stationed in Washington through most of the war, have been the house guests of Capt. and Mrs. John Lockwood Pratt and were honored by their host and hostess at a cocktail party Friday.

At a small dinner party last night Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter F. Boone entertained in honor of the popular Richardsons.

Lady Reading To Be Visitor

The Marchioness of Reading, whose husband, the late Lord Reading, was one-time British Ambassador to the United States, will arrive in Washington on Tuesday.

She is spending the weekend with Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt at Hyde Park and has been the guest of Mrs. Ogden Mills, widow of the late Secretary of the Treasury.

Lady Reading is founder of Britain's Women's Voluntary Services organized during the war.

The visitor will be guest of honor at a reception on Thursday to be given by the Women's National Press Club.

Club Women Enter Political Arena

By Genevieve Reynolds

THE Nation's feminine clubdom has stepped out of its traditional passive role of culture study groups into the political arena. Whenever a bit of legislation appears on the congressional agenda now affecting women's interest, there you'll find the clubgoers testifying pro and con.

And how much attention do the lawmakers pay to the resolutions they pass and the testimony they offer? Judging from a back-handed compliment given them this week, one might say plenty. One Representative complained that every time he tried to reduce taxes, end rationing, the women's clubs started resoluting and flooding Congress with telegrams.

No less than 20 organizations sent representatives to the Hill last week to testify in favor of the Auchincloss-Ball bill for District home rule.

Some 15 groups, including the League of Repatriated Greek-American Women, turned out to indorse Bill H. R. 5137 which would equalize immigration privileges between American men and women. The immigration law now permits alien wives of American husbands to enter the country nonquota, but does not grant the same privilege to alien husbands of American wives. Feminine supporters of the bill contend they are just as capable as men of choosing a spouse. But mostly they are concerned with obtaining equal citizenship privileges.

This week Capitol Hill again will be the sitting and talking ground of local and national feminine clubbers. Come Tuesday, you'll find them arguing the pros and cons of Equal Rights or protective legislation. And while majority of the organizations send their legislative chairmen to represent them at hearings, quite a few have paid lobbyists for the job.

WOMEN'S increasingly important role in the economy of the Nation will be the subject of a conference when representatives of some 30 clubs, trade unions and professional groups gather in Washington February 17-19. The conclave has been called by Miss Frieda S. Miller, director of the Women's Bureau.

"This conference will not yield a 1948 declaration of women's rights," explained Miss Miller. "Women have gone too far and achieved too much to make that kind of action necessary or appropriate.

"It will try instead to 'clarify' the status of working women," she continued, "and evaluate the progress women have made since the Woman's Rights Convention in Seneca Falls, N. Y., in 1848.

Meantime, three Washington leaders are participating in a conclave entitled "The American Woman in 1948," which opened Friday at Russell Sage College in Troy, N. Y. These featured speakers include Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, executive director of the women's division, Women's Democratic National Committee and Miss Frieda S. Miller, Miss Dorothy Stratton, former director of the Spars, and now associated with the International Monetary Funds, will serve as moderator.

Sorority President Will Be Honored

Dr. May V. Seagoe, national president of Pi Lambda Theta, honorary fraternity for women in education, will be honored by the society's Alpha Theta Chapter at a dinner at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow at Grace Dodge Hotel.

Dr. Seagoe, associate professor of education at the University of California at Los Angeles, will discuss the annual convention of the American Association of School and Administrators scheduled for February 21-26 in Atlantic City.

Miss Hoover Is Bride Of Lieut. Col. Jas. Mears

Hessler

MRS. JAMES FRANKLIN MEARS . . . the former Jeanne Hoover

MISS Jeanne Patricia Hoover, the daughter of Vice Admiral and Mrs. John Howard Hoover of Washington, was married yesterday to Lieut. Col. James Franklin Mears, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harrison of Varnville, S. C. The afternoon wedding took place at 5:30 in the Naval Chapel at Nebraska and Massachusetts aves. The Rev. Henry D. Collins officiated and a reception followed at 2 Scott Circle.

Admiral Hoover gave his daughter in marriage. She was gowned in ivory satin, fashioned with off-shoulder neckline of lace, pointed sleeves and lace peplum. Her finger-tip veil of illusion fell from a crown of starched lace trimmed with seed pearls, and she carried a sheaf of lilies.

Mrs. L. W. Cabot, matron of honor, was costumed in American beauty moire, and carried a cascade bouquet of white sweet peas and red roses. The maid of honor, Miss Jacqueline Hoover, was similarly attired, as were the other attendants, Miss Betty Jane Hamilton and Miss Dorothy Groesbeck.

J. Q. Peoples of Glastonbury, Conn., acted as best man, and the ushers were Lieut. (j. g.) W. H. Hoover, Lieut. Col. W. H. Earle, Lieut. Col. Harry Robb and Col. R. R. Gideon, all of the U. S. Air Force.

The granddaughter of the late Mrs. George Richard Smith of Washington, Mrs. Mears attended Georgetown Visitation Junior College. Her husband attended the Citadel.

After a wedding trip to Nassau, Colonel and Mrs. Mears will make their home in Washington.

Miss Bevans Weds Feb. 23

Maj. Gen. James M. Bevans USAF, and Mrs. Bevans of Wright Field, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marilyn to Capt. Edward S. Ott, jr., son of Brig. Gen. Edward S. Ott, USA ret., and Mrs. Ott of Union Plantation, Plaquemine, La.

Miss Bevans attended Edgewood Park Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., and Chevy Chase Junior College in Washington.

Captain Ott was graduated from the United States Military Academy in June, 1943, and served for 30 months in the European theater. He is now an instructor at the Military Academy.

The wedding will take place February 23 at the Base Chapel at Wright Field, Ohio.

Reception Follows Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schlosberg entertained yesterday at a reception following the Bar Mitzvah of their son, Jack Schlosberg, jr. The ceremony took place at 9:30 a. m. at Adas Israel Synagogue.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Entertain Friends

Back from Philadelphia after an absence of five years, Mr. and Mrs. J. Christian Holmes entertained yesterday at a cocktail party. Around 100 friends dropped by their new home at 1911 R st. between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Goebert of Philadelphia, house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, attended the party, and Mrs. Frederick Lancet assisted the hostess. The house was decorated with white spring flowers and lilacs and tulips.

Dancing Class Ends Season

Conn. For those who can go back a few years, they'll remember Mrs. Husted as Helen McLanahan, one of the prettiest debutantes Washington ever had, and Louise her pretty sister, now Mrs. Noble.

Asked to meet the visitors at dinner were Mr. and Mrs. John L. Newbold, Mr. and Mrs. James Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hagner and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reed.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair Childs and Col. and Mrs. David Barry were others who had dinner parties before the dance. Weekend guests of the Barrys are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Farrelly, wartime residents of Washington who now are back in Bernardsville, N. J.

A ONE woman travel bureau is Mrs. Morgan Bradford, just back from a four months tour of Africa, and already making plans to spend the summer in Sweden.

Anything—well, almost anything—you'd like to know about that vast continent of jungles and modern cities, this world traveler can tell you. She lived in a four-room hotel, near Nyeri, built around a huge tree and open to the skies. She heard the beasts' mighty roar from the surrounding jungle as they filed down to the salt lick close by. She was struck by the beauty of Dar es Salaam—"haven of peace"—with its crescent harbor ringed with tall trees and the towers and spires of churches at water's edge.

Preparing to spend a lonely night in a tiny inn at Maranga, with nobody but Germans for company, she was thrilled to hear a mission bell in the distance, to learn that the sound came from an American Lutheran Mission not far away. She met Dr. and Mrs. Allen, heads of the mission, and when they learned that she used to sing at St. Thomas Church here, they called together a native choir of 700 boys. Their swahili dialect was translated into English, and in turn Mrs. Morgan sang Negro spirituals to them with a translator at hand.

Lourenco Marques, with its mosaic sidewalks, combines the ancient with the modern in its impressive marble cathedral shadowing its continental sidewalk cafes. Beira in Portuguese East Africa means sand, heat and the monsoon, although it's a great port and the gateway to southern Rhodesia.

In "Travel and Trade," Mrs. Morgan has written an article on her travels through that little traveled country. She tells of seeing Rhodes' tomb in the mountains at Matapos, a simple bronze plate marked by boulders at a site called the "world's view." She writes of the red sails against the sunset in the old Arab harbor at Bombasa, the modern ships that sail into Bombasa's new harbor, Kilindini.

THERE WAS no time to say goodby for Admiral James H. Foskett who reported for duty in Philadelphia last Monday.

Although it meant leaving home and fireside here, President Truman's former Naval Aide received a choice assignment when he was made Commander of the Twelfth Cruiser Division of the Atlantic Fleet with duty in the Mediterranean Sea.

Like the true Navy wife that she is, Mrs. Foskett will keep the home fires burning while her husband is away.

"We have kids and dogs," she reminded me, "two things, I suppose no Navy family should have." Because Margaret, who's 16, and Mary, aged 13, are in the middle of a school term, Mrs. Foskett will stay here until June. Then she hopes to pick up her two daughters; Friskett, the Daschund, and Zazu, the French poodle and descend on her mother, Mrs. John Kemp Kane, in Newport.

Friskett, incidentally, got his name from the Navy's nickname for the Fosketts. Zazu, very much the dandy, came straight from France with Admiral Foskett a few years ago.

Admiral Foskett expects to spend most weekends with his family for the next month or two that he'll be in Philadelphia. After that, quien sabe?

Fashion Show, Luncheon to Aid Clinics at Garfield Hospital

Sixty six years ago, as a memorial to President Garfield, Garfield Memorial Hospital was established and its founders invited prominent women from all the State and Territories to form an auxiliary society, incorporated as the Ladies' Aid to the hospital. Mrs. William T. Windom, wife of Senator Windom of Minnesota, was its first president. Mrs. Grover Cleveland accepted membership and through the years the roster listed the names of Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, Mrs. William McKinley, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Warren G. Harding and others prominent in official and social life.

The Ladies' Aid made its debut at a tea party in the Capitol, consent having been obtained from both Houses of the Congress. The dome was lighted, the rotunda decorated with flags and flowers, and the Marine Band played for dancing. Nearly $5000 was raised, the money used to equip a small house on the hospital grounds accommodating only five beds.

In 1894, despite prejudice and opposition, the first obstetrical ward was established. Four years later the first training school for nurses in the District was organized. The medical staff of the hospital had at first objected to "officious women" in the hospital, but a year after the school opened their competent services during a severe typhoid epidemic won the approval of the doctors and further proved to them that such a school was indispensable. Graduates of this school were the first to offer their services in the Spanish-American War. In World Wars I and II Garfield nurses performed outstanding service.

The free dispensary was established in 1912 and has since been an outstanding project in the program of the Ladies' Aid. Last year two new clinics were established, one of these the Garfield Cancer Prevention Clinic. The response has been so overwhelming, the list of applicants so long, that to extend this budget and to prevent the tragic refusal to excess patients, the Ladies' Aid is sponsoring a fashion show and luncheon in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel on Monday, February 23, to be presented by the Washington fashion group.

Mrs. Frederick F. B. Siddons is now president of the organization, Mrs. Andrew Parker, chairman of the benefit. Reservations may be made through Mrs. John Price Wetherill 3d.

LaMotte—Shryock

In St. Margaret's Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon Miss Anne Elisabeth Shyrock, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Thomas Jacob Shryock, jr., of Rockville, Md., became the bride of Louis Howell LaMotte 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Howell LaMotte, jr., of Washington. Canon George Monks officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown with a wide bertha of rose point lace. A headdress of white satin and lace held her full-length veil and she carried gardenias and stephanotis. Mrs. Joseph E. Krylow, jr., of Philadelphia, Pa., matron of honor, and Miss Varney W. Twaddell, also of Philadelphia, maid of honor, were gowned in American Beauty taffeta and carried mixed flowers. The bridesmaids, Misses Martha Claflin, Emily Renwick, Mary McSweeney and Noel LaMotte, wore robin's-egg blue taffeta and carried yellow roses.

After the wedding reception at Carlton Hotel, the newlyweds left for their honeymoon in Bermuda.

McIntyre—Beck

Miss Katharine Elizabeth Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Christian Beck, jr., was married yesterday to Raymond Keith McIntyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart McIntyre. The Rev. Charles T. Warner performed the ceremony at St. Alban's Church at 4 o'clock.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown with a bodice of lace. Her finger-tip veil was held by a tiara of seed pearls, and she carried her great-grandmother's prayer book covered with white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Walter H. Magruder was matron of honor for her cousin, and was gowned in Alice blue taffeta with a matching half hat of tulle. She carried spring flowers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ann McIntyre, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Elizabeth Halvosa, cousin of the bride. They wore rose taffeta gowns with matching tulle half hats

John Trevor McIntyre served as best man for his brother and the ushers were Paul Tarver, Henry E. Wixow, Walter H. Magruder and Dr. Richard Tiller.

Following a reception at the home of the bride, the couple left for a motor trip in the South. They will reside in East Orange, N. J.

DeButts—Powers

Miss Cynthia Powers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lennie Powers of this city, became the bride of Pichard Welby De Butts, son of Mrs Samuel DeButts, at 2 p. m. yesterday at Ryland Methodist Church, the Rev. C. Lewis Robson officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attired in white satin and a finger-tip veil of illusion. Miss Jacqueline Powers was maid of honor, wearing blue velvet. Stephen Smith was best man and Ford B. Marshall, jr., and Earl Thompson were ushers.

Mislaid Trousers Delay Bermuda's Grand Entry

If the Talbot brothers concentrated they could clean up a tidy sum but prefer to go fishing.

The Americans Are Entrenched

EXCEPT for the necessarily smaller than pre-war rush of tourists, the American element in Bermuda is remarkably unobtrusive. Our air forces are billeted at Kindley Field at the St. Davis end of the island, our Navy down Somerset way. About 700 officers and sailors work at the base built on the artificial joining of Morgan and Tuckers Island, the latter spit of land where effervescent Mrs. Arthur Wooley-Hart used to hold court. Her once delightful house, shorn of surrounding trees and identifying landmarks, huddles forlorn amid a welter of utilitarian military buildings and has been transformed into an enlisted men's club.

Out at Midocean, the so-called fashionable end of Bermuda, only a handful of Americans are holding forth. The Ford Johnstons, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Curtis, occasionally Dr. and Mrs. Irving Pardee, Mrs. Stettinius, former sister-in-law of Ed Stettinius, and our American Consul and Mrs. Clay Merrill. Far away from the maddening rush of American tourists, the Merrills live in a super de luxe Italian palazzo which our Government bought from the Weir family.

The Hunt Country in Miniature

THOUGH Bermuda is only 19 miles square, it boasts a modified version of a hunt plus a recently reopened race track, parimutuel and all, at Shelly Bay. So far they've had four meetings. Thirty thoroughbreds were imported from the United States. There's flat and sulky racing with 11 races on a full day, seven on a half. The horses are selected differently for various races, and it is quite exciting. The hunt is called a paper chase but it's really 3½ hours of good riding, the master and whip previously picking the route. They meet twice monthly, finish up at a different inn or home for tea laced with drinks.

Miss Lianne Hopkins Engaged To Marry Clement E. Conger

Mr. and Mrs. John Jay Hopkins of Washington, formerly of New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lianne Hopkins, to Clement E. Conger of Alexandria and Washington, son of Mrs. Clement E. Conger and the late Dr. Conger of Harrisonburg, Va.

An alumna of the Brearley School in New York City, Miss Hopkins attended Radcliffe College and graduated from George Washington University. She is a member of the Junior League and served as a nurses' aide during the war.

Mr. Conger is executive officer to the Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas. During the war he served as a major in the Army of the United States, on duty with the United States and British Combined Chiefs of Staff.

Service Set Has Flurry of Parties for Visitors

for Suzanne and Frank Holcomb's wedding.

The Hunts gave a dinner party Friday for their guest. Capt. and Mrs. John B. Farrior of Paris Island, S. C., also made their trip to Washington especially for the Holcomb-Slinghuft nuptials.

BRIG. GEN. AND MRS. PATRICK W. TIMBERLAKE have had as their guests since Thursday Col. and Mrs. E. T. Williams and their daughters, Beverly and Lynn. Colonel and Mrs. Williams are en route from Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex., to Berlin, Germany.

The Timberlakes entertained at a dinner at their Bolling Field quarters Thursday evening for their house guests. The small party was attended by mutual friends from San Antonio.

And on Friday, Mrs. Robert Dulaney gave a luncheon at the Army-Navy Club for Mrs. Williams and other one-time Texans now stationed in the Capital.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Douglas L. Weart, now stationed in Cincinnati, Ohio, left the Capital yesterday after a visit with their daughter and son-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Oscar Ogren.

The Wearts were guests of honor at a cocktail party given Friday evening at the Walter Reed Officer's Club by the Ogrens.

Mrs. Morton L. Deyo has been in Washington for the past few weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Rosse at their home on Kalorama rd.

The main purpose of her trip down from Boston where her husband, Rear Admiral Deyo, is Commandant of the First Naval District, is to visit her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Garnet, who were married last November.

Mrs. Deyo will stay here for at least another week as the guest of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Leigh Noyes while Admiral Deyo enjoys a quail hunting excursion in the South. The admiral was in town just long enough to share honors with his wife at Mr. and Mrs. Rosse's cocktail party Thursday, and during her stay Mrs. Deyo has been entertained at a round of smaller parties given by her Navy friends here.

Wedding Bells Ring

Miss Margaret Ann Pierce became the bride of Douglas Malcolm McAvity in St. Mary's Chapel of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul at 4 yesterday afternoon. The daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Edward Harris Pierce of Alexandria, Va., was given in marriage by her father. Her husband is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McAvity of Rothesay, New Brunswick, Canada. Canon Crawford W. Browr officiated.

The bride wore candlelight satin made with off-the-shoulder neckline, tight bodice and long full skirt. She wore the lace cap of her paternal great-grandmother with her veil of illusion, and carried white roses, freesia and lilies of the valley.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. William Conant Quinby, who wore light green taffetta with a wreath of freesia and brandywine roses for her hair matching her bouquet.

The bridesmaids, who were dressed like the matron of honor, were Miss Emily Luce Pierce and Miss Louise Priscilla Pierce, sisters of the bride. Dorothy Conant Harris of Alexandria was flower girl.

John Malcolm McAvity of Rothesay, N. B., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were William Conant Quinby of Cleveland, Ohio, Peter Malcolm McAvity of St. Louis, Miss., another brother of the bridegroom, John Sayer Taylor of Rothesay, and John Sherman Shaw of New York.

A reception was held in the Washington Hotel after which the couple left for Bermuda. They will reside in New York.

The bride was graduated from Shipley School, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and attended Sweet Briar College. The bridegroom attended Phillips Academy and Princeton University and served in the Canadian Air Force during the war. He is the grandson of the late Sir Douglas Hazen and Lady Hazen of St. John, New Brunswick.

Haase—Gillette

Miss Camilla Bunker Gillette and Robert Taylor Haase were married yesterday afternoon in the First Baptist Church, the Rev. R. Edward Dowdy officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Clifford Gillette of Washington and the late Mr. Gillette. Mr. Haase is the son of Mrs. Elmer Joseph Haase of Owensboro, Ky., and the late Mr. Haase.

Given in marriage by her brother, Charles Clifford Gillette, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with a venetian lace color. Her finger-tip veil was held by a seed pearl tiara and she carried a white orchid with lilies of the valley and freesia. Miss Priscilla Gillette, wearing a yellow brocade gown with matching mitts and carrying talisman roses and acacia, was her sister's maid of honor. The bridesmaids, Miss Sara M. Gillette, another sister of the bride, and Mrs. Leslie Phillips of Worcester, Mass., a sister of the bridegroom, wore aqua brocade and carried bouquets similar to the maid of honor's.

Jo Brice Wilmeth served as best man and ushers were Joseph B. Bunker, jr., and Otto Rauchschwalbe. A reception followed at Willard Hotel. The newlyweds will be at home in Washington after their honeymoon in Mexico and Havana. Mrs. Haase attended Pennsylvania State College, Columbia University and was graduated from Florida State University. She was discharged from active duty as a Navy nurse the first of this year.

Tilghman—Jarman

Brentwood, home of her parents in Princess Anne, Md., was the scene of the wedding of Miss Martha Frances Jarman and Merrill William Tilghman at 4 p. m. yesterday. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Hammond Jarman of Princess Anne and of Waterville, N. Y. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Charles Tilghman of Almodington, Princess Anne, Md., and of Washington.

The Rev. Eugene P. Stout officiated. The bride, escorted by her father, wore the ivory satin wedding gown that had been worn originally by her paternal grandmother. It is made with a yoke of Duchess lace, puffed sleeves of the lace, and a bustle skirt. Her veil of tulle fell from a tiara of the same lace

Miss Catherine Holloway Tilghman, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor wearing turquoise blue faille and carrying pink roses and lilies with which she wore a matching headpiece. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Duval Jarman and Miss Mary Penelope Jarman, wore turquoise faille dresses.

Charles T. Tilghman was best man for his brother and Elliot Johnstone Dent, jr., of Washington and Tilghman McCabe of Salisbury, Md., were ushers.

Rowzee—Schellberg

Miss Virginia Lee Schellberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schellberg of Silver Spring, Md., yesterday became the bride of Albert G. Rowzee, jr., the ceremony taking place in the auditorium of St. Michael's School in Silver Spring. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Rowzee, also of Silver Spring. The Rev. Francis X. Lannon of St. Michael's Church officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin brocade fashioned with a bustle and full circular train, and a bertha of lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a beaded Juliet cap.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Estelle V. Besuden, sister of the bridegroom, who wore a melon colored velvet gown made with full skirt with net insertions. Miss Betty Jane Clark was maid of honor, wearing a similar gown in powder blue, and bridesmaids included Miss Barbara Leonard and Miss Betty Baker in orchid and aqua velvet gowns and matching ostrich plumes in their hair. Little Karen Shoemaker, flower girl, was dressed in a long full pink velvet gown

Serving as best man was James Adamson and ushers included Robert Lang, William Hosselbarth and Leroy Roytt, all of Silver Spring.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride attended the Academy of the Holy Name in Silver Spring. Mr. Rowzee served 20 months in the Navy and is now with the Department of Agriculture.

Belasco—Tonon

Miss Agnes Romona Tonon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ceasar Tonon of Washington, became the bride of John Francis Belasco, son of Mrs. James Lyons of Hyattsville, Md., at 6 p. m., yesterday at St. Dominic's Catholic Church.

The Rev. John B. Conlon officiated and Samuel Gannett, stepbrother of the bride, gave her in marriage. Mrs. Belasco wore white taffeta with a scalloped neckline. Her veil of tulle was held by a coronet trimmed in seed pearls. She carried white roses.

Mrs. James Kinsey was matron of honor, wearing moire taffeta in rose-lilac shade and carrying Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. Samuel Gannett and Miss Mary Fanning, cousin of the bridegroom, were attendants, wearing rose-violet brocade with Johanna Hill roses.

MRS. JOHN F. BELASCO
. . . former Miss Tonon

James Kinsey was best man and the ushers were Howell Tonon, the bride's brother, and Edward Fanning.

A reception was held in the parish hall after which the couple left for New York. They will reside in Washington.

Fletcher—Wilson

Miss Mary Anne Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Wilson of Washington, was married last evening in the chapel at Bolling Field to William Clarence Fletcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fletcher, also of Washington. Chaplain Wright performed the ceremony.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her brother, William S. Wilson. Her gown was of ice blue satin, her ice blue finger-tip veil falling from a pearl crown, and she carried white orchids and roses. Mrs. Edwin E. McNeil, matron of honor, wore gold satin and carried Brandywine roses. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Rozier, Thornton, Mrs. George B. Davis and Miss Helen O'Dell, were costumed in rose satin and carried Briarcliff roses. George Fletcher was his brother's best man and ushers included Lieut. Edwin E. McNeil, David Hudson, Robert Halpin and Hagen Kennedy.

The newlyweds will make their home in Washington after their wedding trip to Philadelphia, Pa.; the Poconos Mountains and New York City.

Your Questions on Homemaking

We are planning to redecorate our home and remodel two bathrooms. I am particularly interested in attractive but practical color schemes for the baths and kitchen. Fixtures in bath will be white. Other than tile (too expensive), what is the best finish for bath walls—tile board and plaster—or what? I really would like to obtain some cuts, booklets or such showing baths and kitchens in color for suggestions, but don't know where or how, but would appreciate any information. Woodwork in first floor will be colonial green (I think) and rooms on second in various colors. Does this sound startling? How can baths and kitchen blend in, especially on first floor? I can settle everything but those baths and kitchen (including breakfast nook) and shall greatly appreciate any helpful information on them. M. M. L. JR.

One of the large paint companies puts out a color book especially for persons who wish to see many color suggestions before deciding which to use. I am told this book is too large for consumer distribution, but is available for inspection at large building supply stores or paint stores. Another source of such information is the illustrations in the home furnishing magazines.

Also, if you will write to the bathroom and kitchen fixture companies (get addresses from their advertisements in women's magazines) I am confident booklets in color with interesting color schemes will be forthcoming. Tile board, if applied correctly, makes a lovely wall surface and would be easier to care for in bath rooms than plastered painted walls, for instance. Tile board comes in white, ivory and pale blue, and chromium strips are available for the edges. It adds interest in decorating to use different colors in the various rooms, but they should be colors which blend as they contrast.

Since you are in the wonderful position of being able to redo the entire house at once, why don't you choose a master color scheme for the entire house? For instance, if you choose colonial green, which is a light olive green, for the woodwork downstairs, you could plan a color scheme of colonial green, wine with accents of pale yellow or gold. The walls could be done in pale colonial green and use wine and yellow or gold in the furniture coverings, rugs and drapes. Upstairs, use white woodwork and pick up one of the colors of the downstairs in each upstairs room for a predominating color. For instance, one bedroom could use rose, wine and beige gray, another yellow and a green which has some yellow in it or pale yellow and a small amount of blue purple. Keep in mind the exposure of the room. For north and west exposures, use warm colors, yellows, rose, wine. With the east and south exposures use the cooler colors. The baths and kitchens would be keyed in with the general plan. Grey and wine with black for accents would make a beautiful bath. For the kitchen, sunlight yellow with black for accent would be attractive.

TO MY VALENTINE: Pretty for a Valentine's Day party is this plain white cake dressed up with a heart made of frosting roses and sides of pink-tinted coconut. To tint coconut, spread it in a thin layer on white paper, sprinkle with a few drops of diluted vegetable coloring, and rub between the fingers to distribute color evenly

I have been cleaning my sterling flat silver, salt shakers, and odd pieces with a washing powder in hot water in an aluminum pan. The results have been fine, particularly for carved surfaces. However, I have heard that this method removes a fine surface of silver from the pieces and so in time would be injurious. I'd like to know if using a larger amount of the powder than is called for, for quicker action, is also harmful. If not, is this method substantially the same as the silver plate combinations sold now in stores. C. R. S.

The method for removing tarnish from silver which you are using is called the electrolytic method. With this method, it is important that not more than the recommended amounts of washing powder or salt and soda be used in the water. When using the washing powder which you suggested, one to two tablespoons to two gallons of water is the amount which should be used. If more is used and the silver is kept in contact longer than necessary to remove the tarnish, you might remove some silver.

How About Zoo as Location For Home Movie Shots

By Dorothy Draper

THERE is nothing quite as completely satisfying as an evening spent with delightful friends. The other night I dined in New York at the house of the Fairfiel Osborns, and I so enjoyed the warmth and informality, the genial challenge of good conversation, and the colorful setting for all this, that I thought you might like to hear about it.

Marjorie and Fair have that rare quality of being able to mix together people of varying and provocative interests and have everybody enjoy it. That is an art. And one worth putting into practice. Try it in your own group!

The whole evening was passed in one huge two-storied room that had once been a sculptor's studio, built out in the back of the house. It seemed filled with the soft enchantment of warm hospitality. Gayly bound books contrasted with the dark grey walls. Plain bright yellow chintz covered the comfortable upholstered chairs that were grouped for easy conversation around the large Franklin stove with its brightly burning coal fire. The whole room opened out into a lighted, tiny backyard garden with a brick wall and an overhanging tree.

AFTER dinner, Mr. Osborn, who is president of the New York Zoological Society, showed us some delightful colored movies. Two of them were especially interesting to me. One showed the grit of the tiny humming bird. Although he weighs only a penny, he can fly 500 miles without stopping. In relationship to weight that is a record in flying. The beautiful metallic-green bird with his ruby throat is a lesson to all of us in sheer perseverance. You don't have to be big and powerful to reach your goal. Remember the tiny humming bird the next time you feel like giving up!

The other picture showed how the small apes or gibbons train their babies from the day they are born to hang on tight while mother joyously swings from tree to tree for food or observation purposes. It made me wonder if we humans do not wait too long to start training our children in self-reliance.

The next time you are worried or bored with the constant confusion of the world, why not take a trip to the zoo, where the fascination of all living things is waiting without cost to be explored? This may open a whole new vista of color in your life. Take along a movie camera, make your own pictures and let this be a wonderful excuse for a movie party in your own home.

. . . Florida honeymoon

Miss Elizabeth Margaret Perenich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guido Perenich of Forest Hills, N. Y., and Washington, was married yesterday morning to John James Hassett, son of Mrs. James M. Hassett of Washington and the late Mr. Hassett. The ceremony took place in the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, the Rev. R. Paul Repetti officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory silk satin gown with a bodice of imported French gold brocade. A crown of appliqued brocade figures held her fingertip veil and she carried white roses. Miss Margaret Lucy Perenich, her sister's maid of honor, was gowned in moss green faille with a matching poke bonnet and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Raymond H. Hall, a sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Gloria A. Perenich, another sister of the bride. They wore fuchsia faille with matching bonnets and carried yellow roses. Best man was William B. Walsh, a cousin of the bridegroom. The ushers included John E. Windham and Raymond H. Hall.

On return from a Florida honeymoon, the newlyweds will reside in Washington. Mrs. Hassett attended Fordham University and her husband is a graduate of Georgetown University.

Jenks—Saum

The marriage of Miss Mary Elton Saum to Stuart C. Jenks took place yesterday afternoon in Christ Church, Alexandria, Va., the Rev. B. B. Comer Lile officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Earl Saum of Alexandria and the late Mr. Saum. Mr. Jenks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Jenks of Richmond, Va.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Erdmund T. Stulz. Her gown was of white slipper satin, an orange blossom coronet holding her lace veil, and she carried lilies of the valley, stephanotis and white orchids.

Mrs. Leonard S. Edmonds, gowned in white net and carrying white carnations and red rosebuds, was matron of honor for her sister. The bridesmaids, also wearing white net and carrying carnations and roses, were Miss Margaret Ann Emhardt of Alexandria, Miss Julio Andersen of Virginia Beach, Va.; Mrs. Stephen Harward of Raleigh, N. C., and Miss Gloria Brahany of Richmond.

T. E. Jenks, jr., was his brother's best man, and ushers were William Keller of Madison, N. J.; Harwood Dunston, jr., of Richmond, Lieut. A. S. C. Shaw, USMC, and Richard Stulz.

A reception followed at George Mason Hotel. After a Southern wedding trip the couple will be at home in Rocky Mount, N. C. Mrs. Jenks was graduated from Duke University where she was a member of Alpha Phi sorority. Also a graduate of Duke, her husband attended The Citadel in Charleston, S. C., and served three years as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Sacred Heart Church was the scene of the marriage yesterday afternoon of Miss Eda Olga Scoglio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Scoglio of Washington, to Henry J. Savage, son of Mrs. Mary E. Savage of Nashua, N. H., and the late Charles H. Savage. The Rev. R. Paul Repetti officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was costumed in white brocaded satin. She carried a white orchid on her prayer book. Maid of honor, Miss Carmen Madrid, wore pink satin and carried blue iris. Best man was Emmett McMahon and the ushers were Walter Ridgeway, Gus Gillespie and Robert Mausler.

Gilligan—Trapani

Miss Pearl Marie Trapani and Joseph MacDonald Gilligan, both of Washington, were married yesterday morning in Scranton, Pa. The Rev. Salvatore Florey performed the ceremony in St. Lucy's Church and a reception followed at Hotel Casey.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trapani of Scranton. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Thomas Gilligan of Greenport, Long Island, N. Y.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with seed pearls and ermine. A matching pillbox hat held her fingertip veil and she carried stephanotis and lilies of the valley on a white satin pouch. Mrs. Ira Manning of Elizabeth, N. J., matron of honor, wore rose faille

The bridesmaids, Misses Mary Gilligan of Long Island and Miss Doris Springer of Washington, were costumed in sky blue faille.

Miss Bonnie Lynne Manning served as flower girl. John Frances Gilligan of Columbia, Mo., was best man and ushers were John Hodgson and John Lebkicher, both of Washington.

On return from the honeymoon in Bermuda, the newlyweds will make their home in Washington.

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend massaging preparation helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exquisitely prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy . . . it helps keep the skin soft and pliable . . . thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin . . . for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use. Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Millions of bottles sold. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin emollient and lubricant. Do try it.

After Six Months' Courtship, Man Proposes And Gets Turned Down, But Girl Is Willing To Continue Friendship; He Asks Guidance

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 29 and Ellen is 22. Both of us are college graduates and I should say we have a lot in common. I have known her family for 20 years and am a devoted friend of her parents and brother.

Ellen and I have been going steady the past six months—two or three dates a week—and I am very much in love with her. Recently I asked her to marry me but she declined. She said she didn't love me enough and suggested (1) that we see each other less often, not more than once a week and (2) that I date other girls.

Now my question is whether to break completely or continue seeing her on a once-a-week basis. I would give anything in the world to win her love but maybe I haven't got what it takes. She isn't in love with anyone else and never has been, so far as I know.

Girl's Answer Was a Surprise

I MIGHT try giving her a grand rush, but I doubt that it would get me anywhere. Now that I've committed myself and been turned down, do you think it would help if I acted indifferent, played hard-to-get or broke off completely for about three months and then went back?

Maybe I scared her by trying to get serious; but for a long time she and her parents had led me on (or so I thought) by dropping hints about getting married, etc. However, I've never made any physical advances to her, and I wonder if this is where the trouble lies. But what about that sort of thing with a girl one really loves and respects?

If I were to drop her completely and she were to realize later that she loved me, would she let me know? How in the world can you make the girl of your choice fall in love with you? I would sincerely appreciate any advice. J. B.

Perseverance Worth Trying

DEAR J. B.: Surely you've heard the saying, "Faint heart ne'er won fair lady." And also how Jacob, who fathered the 12 tribes of Israel, labored 14 years as bondsman in the service of his hard-bargaining prospective father-in-law to win the hand of his true love Rachel.

Incidentally, it was my impression, until I started checking that Jacob devoted only seven years to working his way to marriage with Rachel. But I have the assurance of George Stimpson, erudite author of "A Book About the Bible," (published by Harper & Brothers), that Jacob was 14 years at the task; being obliged to marry Leah (the older sister) first, to clear the way to Rachel.

Small wonder, then, that Jacob's name is synonymous with heroic persistence in courtship. And when you consider his epic patience and steadfast spirit once his heart was fixed, doesn't your distrait reaction to a mild turndown after six months' dating seem rather unmanly?

Now for advice: It seems to me Ellen gives you a fighting chance to win her yet—even if she doesn't mean it that way—when she leaves the door open to one date a week at present. And the best way to improve that chance for all it's worth is to accept her terms without quibbling and do your best to become a comfortable habit and social fixture in her program.

Accept Her Terms Without Quibbling

PERSEVERANCE in the face of obstacles and discouragement is the archstone of success in any endeavor, including courtship; and if Ellen is the girl of your choice and not in love with anyone else, it would be gratuitously self-defeating to bow out temporarily, act indifferent or play hard-to-get at this point.

Expand your social program as she suggests, by giving other girls a whirl on other evenings, with little said about it, for the sake of manners and finesse, and when in her company be the soul of devotion, courtesy and consideration—but in a lighthearted impersonal way, with no mention of love or marriage.

At the end of a year, propose again, and if no luck, you may as well concede defeat; but by then it may not be so hard to take if you've formed friendships with other girls. About physical advances, a man in love is involuntarily obedient to a woman's "lead" in that respect, and if you've never made them to her, it doubtless means that instinct told you they would be unwelcome—thus I'm sure your restraint hasn't hurt your chances, such as they are. M. H.

Career Council Will Hear Talk On Evolution of Fashion

Sally Warren Steele, fashion lecturer, will speak before members of the Glamour Career Council on Tuesday, February 10, at 8 p. m. in the Red Room at Hotel 2400.

The title of Mrs. Steele's talk will be "Evolution and Definition of Fashion." She will present a story of how fashions are created and point out how today's styles are part of a never-ending cycle which changes women's silhouettes every 50 years and the details of their clothes every ten. At the end of her lecture Mrs. Steele will demonstrate how easily hats can be made by actually creating them before her audience.

Mrs. Steele is at present connected with the Magda Studio of Dress Design. For several years she was with the National Broadcasting Company in New York, where she was in charge of press relations for Hollywood screen and radio stars. She has also been a fashion writer for Fawcett Publications.

Each month Glamour Career Council meets at Hotel 2400 for a buffet supper and meeting to discuss the beauty and fashion problems of the working girl.

Zonta Club Plans Tour to Opera

Zonta Club of Washington will sponsor an all-expense opera tour to New York, Saturday, February 14. Members will entrain at 8 a. m. on the Baltimore & Ohio's National Limited and will arrive in New York in time for a matinee performance at the Metropolitan Opera House.

For further information contact members of the reservations committee—Mrs. Dorothy Scates, RA. 0839; Miss Etta Mai Russell, CO. 4548; Miss Esther C. M. Gude, AD. 3343; Miss Irene Neikirk, EX. 0770.

Call for Volunteers

AN emergency call for Red Cross volunteers to serve at the Veterans Administration in the next several months has developed as a result of the current tuberculosis X-ray survey. The Staff Aide Service of the District Chapter Red Cross is recruiting women volunteers to assist at the VA, where a large number of veterans are going daily for medical help as a result of their chest X-ray examinations.

The VA has asked the Red Cross to supply volunteers during the next six months at the rate of two a day. One need is for volunteers to type the veterans' records and otherwise handle paper work in connection with his application. These workers are needed from 1:30 or 2:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. daily. However, any volunteer typist who will help will be acceptable for any time she can give.

The other call is for morning volunteers to escort the patients to the doctor and then to other floors, as well as to carry the veterans' medical files. This type of volunteer is needed from 8:30 or 9 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. daily, and typing experience is not required.

Persons willing to volunteer for these emergency posts should telephone the Red Cross Staff Aide Service, at Republic 8300, extension 259, or extension 476.

Air Attache Named At British Embassy

Christopher Clarkson has been appointed Civil Air Attache at the British Embassy in Washington, and will take up his duties about the middle of March. Educated at Lancing College, Mr. Clarkson served with the Royal Air Force from 1924 through 1929. After 10 years in business he returned to the Royal Air Force in 1939, serving until 1945 in the Royal Air Force Reserve of Air Force Officers.

During the war he served in New York and Washington with the British Air Commission. In 1944 he was awarded the Air Force Cross for test and development flying in the United States.

He is a member of the Royal Air Force Club and the Royal Aero Club, London, and an associate fellow of the Royal Aeronautical Society. He is a member of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences and of the Wings Club, both of New York.

Tricks for the Teen-Agers

By Nancy Pepper

When the record seems endless; when you can think of at least a half dozen other things you'd rather be doing at that moment; when a cut-in would be as welcome as a phone call at 8:30 Friday night—it's time to change partners. And, according to a survey we've just made on this vital subject, any change would be an improvement when your partner is guilty of these corny crimes:

UPS AND DOWNS—You have plenty of 'em, when your partner uses the pump handle technique with his left arm and your right. By the time the dance is over you feel as if you'd been harnessed to a see-saw which might have been more fun.

DISAPPEARING ACT—Don't you love the boy who leaves you stranded in the middle of the dance floor when the record is over? You know the type—as soon as the dancing stops, he mumbles something and silently fades away—leaving you with what seems like six hands and six feet and a fervent hope that someone will rescue you or that the house will catch on fire.

JOLLY GOOD FELLOW—Does he have to be so sociable—with the other boys' partners—when he's dancing with you? He carefully steers you from one couple to another in order to exchange pleasantries with all the girls he's NOT dancing with. In order to attract his attention you might try falling flat on your face. We can't guarantee that it will help—but it can't make things much worse.

FLIGHTS OF FANCY—Then here's the Rugged Individualist who makes up his own steps as he goes along. The big trouble is that he forgets to take you into his confidence. He turns out to be the clumsiest thing on two feet. YOUR two feet, that is.

Well, Dance Ballerina, Dance! But don't say we didn't warn you.

Let's Face It

Parties will be disappointing,
Until with this you've coped:
They can never be as good
As in advance you'd hoped.

Trixie Teen Says—

Don't join the embittered ranks of Powder Room Refugees just because nobody asked you for the next dance. Hiding behind that "For-Girls-Only" door isn't going to get you anywhere but on the Outside, Looking In. Stand your ground firmly, chat with some other girls or with the chaperone—or busy yourself at the refreshment stand. Things are bound to pick up for you if you stay right there in the center of activity, but, once you take to the seclusion of the Powder Room, you're not only Out of Sight; You're Out of Mind.

Wise Guise

Clip this paragraph out for your own favorite Joe, and if he can take a hint, he'll come around next weekend looking like something out of Smart Magazine. It's about time we told the boys how you felt about their clothes, anyway. They certainly haven't stopped telling you ever since the "new look."

CORDUROY COMMOTION—By actual survey, we find that you High School Jills think every boy looks his best in a corduroy jacket. You're partial to the light tan jobs, worn with sharp slacks. You also like to date something in a three-quarter length corduroy coat. And, with his Letter Sweater, you think yellow corduroy slacks make him look as suave a Rory Calhoun.

BEAUX WITHOUT BOWS—The majority of teen-age girls vote against bow ties—but go all out for wild four-in-hand ties that light up the dark without benefit of electricity. On his tie you like one of those new clasps that looks as if it had pierced right through the fabric. In fact, you like them so much that you're begging, borrowing, or stealing them from him. Well, if at first you don't succeed when you ask for one—just Cry, Cry again!

U. S. Women Adopt Austrian Orphanage

Vienna.—American women in Vienna, dependents of members of the occupation forces in Austria, have "adopted" an entire orphanage and are backing an Austrian Youth Activities Hostel located in the American zone of the city.

The American Women's Service Club, headed by Mrs. Louis Zaveri of Minneapolis is working closely with the American Red Cross to furnish food and clothing to the 62 children of the Am Himmel Orphanage. The children range from 2 to 5 years of age.

Many of the children were picked up off the streets with no identification, others were left there by parents who either could not support them or didn't want to.

The service group also sponsors an Austrian Youth Activities House, a former schoolbuilding requisitioned by the United States Army.

"A Cold Winter Day—but my Post 'Room for Rent' ad brought me a tenant right away"

Washington's temperature dipped far below freezing January 15 and Mrs. Jane Fragale, 2825 28th Street N.W., was doubtful that her "Room for Rent" ad in The Washington Post would bring any prospective tenants to her door. But even cold weather failed to discourage those room-seeking Post readers. About six people called, some came out to see the room, and one spoke for it that first day. Says Mrs. Fragale: "I'd never advertised the room in any newspaper before, so I'm very pleasantly surprised. I'll certainly use The Post from now on."

Snow, rain, or shine, a Post "Room for Rent" ad delivers your message effectively to the kind of people you want for tenants. Good results bring Post "Rooms" advertisers back time and again—so frequently that last year Post "Rooms" ads increased in number 111% over the year before. No other Washington newspaper showed so great a percentage gain. Place your notice where so many get results—in The Washington Post. Call NAtional 4200 and ask for an ad taker.

Brides of The Winter

Miss Margaret Hannah Burdett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Robertson Burdett of Woodbridge, Va., became the bride of Henry Paul Hushelpeck, son of John Hushelpeck and the late Mrs. Hushelpeck of Duryea, Pa., yesterday. The ceremony took place at Malmesbury, the home in Takoma Park of the bride's aunts, Mrs. Jean B. Fraser and Miss Margaret Ewin Burdett. The Rev. Walter Norris of Church of the Nativity officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ivory moire taffeta with a wide bertha of Brussells lace. Her veil fell from a crown of braided taffeta and she carried a muff covered with gardenias and freesias.

Miss Ava Amanda Burdett attended her sister, wearing aqua moire taffeta with which she wore pink mitts and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Palmer DeFazio of Duryea, Pa., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Hushelpeck is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. LeBlond Burdett, who were residents of Takoma Park for the past 53 years.

Pitts—Poquette

Miss Elizabeth Grace Poquette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph James Poquette of Washington, became the bride on January 20 of Corpl. Carl Howard Pitts, USAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Pitts of Independence, Kans.

The ceremony took place in the Kearney Air Field Chapel, Kearney, Nebr., Chaplain R. Pace officiating.

The bride wore a powder blue suit and carried pink roses and blue delphinium. Miss Anna Faith Poquette, her sister's maid of honor, wore a navy blue suit and carried brandywine roses. Corpl. Roderick E. Morgan of Nashville, Tenn., served as best man. A small wedding supper followed at Fort Kearney Hotel.

Harrison—Davidson

Miss Roberta Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Davidson of Silver Spring, Md., was married on January 29 in St. Francis Xavier Church, Stillwater, Okla., to Robert L. Harrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Harrison of Goodnight, Okla.

The newlyweds will reside in Stillwater where both are students at Oklahoma Agriculture and Mechanical College.

Doar—Leffingwell

Miss Anne Murray Leffingwell, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. William Murray Leffingwell of Washington, and John Michael Doar were married at noon yesterday at St. Patrick's Church. The Rev. E. Robert Arthur performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families. A reception followed at the apartment of the bride's parents at Wardman Park.

In the absence of the bride's father, who is attached to the U. S. Embassy in London, the bride was given in marriage by her brother, William E. Leffingwell, 2d, and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Willard J. Leizear of Silver Spring, Md. Mrs. Doar wore a street costume of royal blue with matching hat and a corsage of white orchids.

Mr. Doar is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Doar of New Richmond, Wis. He had his brother, W. Thomas Doar, jr., of New Richmond, as his best man.

The bride was graduated from Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass., and Briarcliff Junior College at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y.

After a honeymoon at Sun Valley, Idaho, the couple will reside at Berkeley, Calif., where the bridegroom attends University of California.

Adams—MacLeod

Winn Studio.
MRS. HENRY P. HUSHELPECK
. . . has home wedding

The home of the bride's parents in Lynchburg, Va., was scene of the wedding yesterday of Miss Nancy MacLeod and William Duval Adams. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thornhill MacLeod and her husband is the son of Mrs. Martha Rivers Adams and the late William Duval Adams.

The Rev. Russell C. Stroup officiated and Mr. MacLeod gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a suit of dark blue gabardine with matching hat and a corsage of white camellias.

Ross—Irving

Mrs. Robert Page Irving of Washington announces the marriage of her daughter, Jane, to Arnold A. Ross of Miami, Fla., which took place on January 24 in the Miami Shores Community Church.

The Rev. Donald Douds performed the ceremony and a wedding breakfast followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Reinhardt in Coral Gables. The newlyweds will spend their honeymoon in Havana.

Dr. John Hill And Miss Snow To Be Married

Mrs. William A. Snow announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret Snow, to Dr. John H. Hill, son of Mrs. J. H. Hill of Charlottsville, Va. Miss Snow is the daughter of the late Col. W. A. Snow, and the granddaughter of the late Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William J. Snow and of Mrs. C. Leicester Payne.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the National Cathedral School and attended George Washington University. She served with the American Red Cross in the Pacific.

Dr. Hill was graduated from the University of Virginia Medical School and McGill University. During the war he served with the United States Navy with rank of lieutenant commander.

The wedding will take place in April.

Shefferman—Hollod

The marriage of Miss Adele Hollod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Hollod, to Sholom M. Shefferman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Shefferman, took place on December 21 at Hamilton Hotel. Rabbi Solomon Metz officiated.

The bride wore an aqua dress with silver accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Richard Scheffrin was matron of honor for her sister, and Myron Ashman served as best man. The newlyweds have returned from their New York honeymoon to live in Washington.

Washington and Lee's Costume Ball Recreates King's Court

By Nina Carter Tabb

Lexington, Va., was gay the past weekend, for the Washington and Lee University fancy dress ball, an annual affair that has become famous during the 42 years it has been held. The theme of the ball this year was the court under King Charles II, and every one was there except "Forever Amber."

King Charles II with his Queen Catherine of Branganza, led the ball. The merrymakers were led through an authentic Hampton Court ball in restyled Doremus gymnasium on the campus. The university's three-day midwinter dances which opened with the junior prom on Thursday evening were followed by the fancy ball on Friday evening.

Fred Lynch, Philadelphia designer and decorator, was engaged to transform the building into a replica of Hampton Court Palace, built by Cardinal Wolsey during the reign of Henry VIII. The costumes were in keeping with the seventeenth century styles. In addition to the royal figures there were armored palace guards, footmen, lackeys and other court retainers. Chronologically coincident with the events related in Kathleen Winsor's book "Forever Amber," the Hampton Court theme was developed through a research conducted by a special student historical commission. Ralph Davis Arvonia, student president of the 1948 fancy dress ball, assumed the leading role as Charles II in the pageantry. Portraying his Queen Catherine was Miss Jane Harp of Hillsville, a student at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg.

The Keydet polo team from Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., that went to Miami, Fla., last week to play a game of indoor polo with the University of Miami as a feature of the Orange Bowl Festival, lost the game played on Friday night with a score of 8-2, but in spite of that they had a good time.

Sen. Baldwin Speaks to Academy Club

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 7.— Senator Raymond Earl Baldwin of Connecticut, who spoke Tuesday afternoon to members of the Naval Academy Women's Club, proved one of the most interesting speakers of the year. The meeting took place in the lounge of the North Severn Officers' Club and was preceded by the usual luncheon for the guest of honor, Senator Baldwin.

During the afternoon's program, the club president, Mrs. Rollo N. Norgaard, presented a check for $500 to Dr. William J. French, county medical officer, which will be turned over to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. The money was raised by the drama group of the club, with Mrs. Leon F. Brown, chairman, which recently presented a play. A feature of the afternoon was the playing of several violin selections played by Miss Kathleen Asplin, who was accompanied by Mrs. Orval Polk. Miss Asplin is the executive director of the Girl Scouts of Anne Arundel County.

Miss Hargrave Marries

Miss Grace Whaley Hargrave, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William Walter Hargrave, Naval Academy, and Lieut. (j. g.) Harry Duffield Cox, USN, were married at 4:30 Saturday afternoon in the Main Chapel of the Naval Academy.

Following their wedding rehearsal last Friday afternoon, the superintendent of the Naval Academy, Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., and Mrs. Holloway entertained at cocktails at their quarters for the bride and bridegroom-elect, their families, wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Among those present were former Naval Academy residents, Capt. and Mrs. Sherman Clark, who are now living in Portsmouth, Va. They were the weekend guests of Capt. and Mrs. George P. Hunter.

Another wedding of much interest to Annapolis and naval society was that of Miss Kathryn Claire Koonce, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Paul Brogden Koonce of the Naval Experiment Station here, to Comdr. Kenneth Perry Hance, which took place on Saturday afternoon of last week at 3:30 p. m. in St. Andrew's Chapel, Naval Academy. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Carl A. Epping and the late Perry Hance of Tampa, Fla., and is currently serving as executive officer of the Naval Air Facility at North Severn.

The marriage was followed by a reception at the Officers' Town Club. Following their wedding trip, the Hances will be at home at Quarters S7, North Severn.

Wedding Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Bicker of Annapolis have announced the marriage of Mrs. Bicker's sister, Miss Jane Galvin Zeigler, and Dr. Walter Chaplin Vail of Baltimore. The ceremony was performed January 30 in the Bickers' apartment, with the Rev. Burrett E. McBee, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, officiating. The bride was a member of the faculty of the Annapolis High School last year and recently resigned her position as a teacher of social studies at the Alexis I. Dupont High School, Wilmington, Del.

Dr. Vail is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Vail of Cortland, N. Y. He is a graduate of Cornell University and Cornell Medical School, and during the late war served as a lieutenant commander in the Navy, spending four years in the South Pacific. He is now on the medical staff of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. They will occupy a house in Harundale.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther B. Gaines of Melrose, Mass., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to David Grant Winchell, son of Prof. and Mrs. Homer B. Winchell of Round Bay. Professor Winchell is attached to the department of languages at the Naval Academy.

Mr. Winchell Is Veteran

Mr. Winchell, following his graduation from Yale in 1946, received his commission as an ensign in the Naval Reserve. Until last June he served in the Pacific area and is now affiliated with the General Electric Co. in Pittsfield, Mass.

The hop held last Saturday evening for midshipmen of the first, second and third classes, took place in Dahlgren Hall, the Naval Academy Armory. Mrs. Harold Roise, wife of Lieut. Col. Roise, USMC, received. She was escorted by Midshipman Robert Neely. Mrs. H. Gates Sickle acted as hostess for the occasion.

Comdr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Enright and Joe, jr., have left the Naval Academy for Coronado, Calif. Commander Enright, who has been attached to the department of marine engineering, United States Naval Academy, for the past two years, is now to take over as staff operations officer for Submarine Squadron 3, with San Diego as a home port. En route to the West Coast, the Enrights will stop in Norfolk for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Robertson, and in Fargo, N. Dak., to visit Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Enright, parents of Commander Enright. Among the many farewell parties given for them was one with Comdr. and Mrs. Michael B. O'Connor and Comdr. and Mrs. Charles B. Jackson as hosts at the Bowyer Road quarters of the Jacksons.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Labrot of Holly Beach Farm, left January 29 for Nassau, where they will spend the remainder of the winter. En route, they will stop for several days at Palm Beach, Fla., where they will be the guests of Grover Loening. The Labrots have recently purchased a home in Nassau.

Mrs. Carroll Van Ness has left for an extended visit in Del Ray Beach, Fla.

One of District's Few Undeveloped Tracts

Building Boom Hits Woodland Area

By Conrad P. Harness

THE building boom is slowly making itself known in the beautiful woodland in the tip of the Northwest section of the District. The area is one of the few remaining large tracts of undisturbed natural woodland in the District.

The encroachment has been slow, but steady. Most projects are of the custom-built, higher-priced home variety. Land costs are hard on the pocketbook, but the setting is one of the District's most beautiful. Rock Creek Park is within a stone's throw.

Five large brick homes have just been completed at Oregon and Nebraska aves. in Northampton subdivision by Brown-Kessler Co., Inc. Five more will be ready for occupancy in early spring. The dwellings are definitely not low-cost housing—prices begin at $27,500 and go to $35,000.

For his money the buyer receives a two-story brick house with six or seven rooms, 2½ baths, full basement and attached garage. Lots range from 6000 square feet to ¾ of an acre.

DiGuilian homes are of concrete, stone, marble and tile. Very little lumber was used

Street scene of new brick homes in "Northampton" subdivision, at Oregon and Nebraska aves. nw.

Lumber Loses Out

HARRY L. KESSLER, architect-builder, said his firm owned 72 lots covering about three city blocks in the section. Some buy lots and arrange for construction of their own dwellings, he added. His firm must approve architectural plans, however. Some homes in the $50,000 bracket are planned by private owners.

Adjacent to "Northampton," at Moreland and Nebraska aves., is a unique five-home project which made extravagant use of marble and tile. Very little brick or lumber was used in the entire project.

The dwellings, built to order, are all concrete and stone, with steel joists. Even the studs are unconventional. They are of hollow tile. Terrazzo covers the entire floor areas except the kitchen and bathrooms, which are of tile, including the walls.

Roof is of Vermont slate. Windows are of aluminum. Stone used in the five homes, plus a retaining wall running the entire length of the project, is from the "Crab Orchard" quarries near Knoxville, Tenn.

Builder is Charles DiGiulian, president of Standard Arts Marble & Tile Co. The homes were built for occupancy by his family, relatives and business associates.

They have a 23-by-14 foot living room, large dining room, first-floor lavatory, vestibule, center-hall entrance plan and four bedrooms, two baths upstairs. A recreation room is in the basement. They will be fully completed by June 1, DiGiulian reported.

They will be a standing monument to the stone and tile business.

Tenth Year of Sales

PAUL STONE and Edward Caldwell are developing the 77-acre "Hawthorne" subdivision located between Oregon and Western aves., Beech and 32d sts. near Rock Creek Park. The area was opened up for sale in 1939. Half has been sold.

The tract has a lengthy historical pedigree, Caldwell pointed out. It is the last remains of a tract of thousands of acres covering portions of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties and the northwest section of the District given to John Marshall by the King of England.

Many local treasure hunters have dug in the Beech street area, hoping to find buried Indian treasure, believed to be hidden there. At least that's the reason given for small excavations in the section.

Scattered home construction is now under way. At least 50 families will build when weather permits, the developers declared. Nearly all homes are custom built with owners initiating construction with fixed fee or cost-plus contracts with different builders. The cost of the average home is around $25,000.

The Hawthorne tract is the largest single tract of land remaining to be developed in that area. The developers must approve all plans for proposed homes.

Land prices range from 35 cents to 40 cents per square foot, with a minimum of 60-foot frontages, with depths ranging from 90 to 160 feet generally. Lots are not laid out. The developers create a lot by survey for each individual sale.

Hopkins Residence Sold to O'Shaughnessy

The residence in which Harry Hopkins spent three of the war years has been sold to Elim O'Shaughnessy, State Department official, it was disclosed yesterday.

The residence, located at 3340 N. st. nw., was owned by Mrs. Harold Walker and daughter, Evelyn "Evie" Roberts. Hopkins rented the residence from the former owners. The sales transaction was handled by C. Newton Jeffress.

More Materials

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 7 (AP).—Scarce building materials are becoming more readily available and residential construction is proceeding at a rate of one million homes a year, the Middle Atlantic Lumbermen's Association has been advised.

Watson Malone 3d of Philadelphia, president, told the opening session of the group's fifty-sixth annual meeting, shortages still exist in nails, insulating material and quality lumber.

By Mass Production

$5000 Tag Is Aim of Builders

By Ralph Dighton

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7 (AP).—Home builders of Los Angeles—now a top city in home building activity—are striving to produce a postwar house at a prewar price of $5000.

One builder hopes to do it this year.

"You can't do it if you're just building 100 homes or so," says Spiro Ponty, champion of mass production in the housing field. "You must build them by the thousands."

By thousands is the rate at which Los Angeles builders now are producing. Over 40,000 dwellings were erected in nine months of last year, enough to house the entire population of Albany, N. Y., or El Paso, Tex.

Los Angeles estimates it will need at least 175,000 new homes by the end of this year. New residents are pouring into the county at an average rate of more than 17,500 per month.

Builder Ponty thinks mass production of $5000 homes would go far to fill that bill. His hope is to bring the present $7500 "minimum-cost" dwelling down to that figure.

Ponty feels that short cuts may turn the trick.

"You buy your lumber ready cut at the mill and have it shipped by the trainload," he says. "You unload it, not a stick at a time, but by the carload.

"Then you truck the carload to the site and start building houses. You're all set up, each man knows what to do. When you finish, you've no mess to clean up. All this saves labor and material."

Such methods, Ponty says, can build a house in seven days. He already is set up to produce 25 homes a day.

The new homes, which Ponty expects to start soon will have, for instance, "dry-wall" construction. Walls are not plastered, but covered with wall board and plywood attached direct to studding.

"It takes seven days," he says, "to plaster a home properly, allowing time for each coat to dry. In the same seven days or less we'll have the entire house completed."

Another shortcut is the use of packaged bathrooms and kitchens.

Actually, there won't be much difference, except in production methods, between the $5000 house—if it can be built—and the $7500 house of today. Building codes insure that. Both are "minimum houses," ranging from 500 to 900 square feet of floor space. They don't have much room, but comparatively they don't cost much, either.

D. C. Building Takes Spurt

Building operations in the District last month took a big spurt upward, with total valuations of proposed projects nearly three million dollars higher than January 1947.

January 1948 operations amounted to $5,541,570, of which $1,208,000 resulted from proposed additions to schools, according to the monthly building report of District Building Inspector's Office.

The January total was over one million dollars higher than December's figure of $4,348,109, the report disclosed.

Permits were issued last month for erection of 79 brick homes, 5 apartment buildings, 5 garages, 11 stores and one church.

Cooley Bros. to Take Bids on 11 Dwellings

Cooley Bros., builders, will shortly take sub-bids on 11 dwellings the firm plans to erect in the "Hillmead" section of Bethesda, Md. Schreier, Patterson & Worland are the architects.

The Weeder's Guide

By Kate Perkins

THE PERKINS family of three and cat, Toni, own a house (vintage 1942, six rooms) with grounds (half-acre) and a shining new mortgage (big).

SEED CATALOG

The ensuing articles will attempt to deal exclusively with problems and occasionally solutions having to do with the grounds. Sternly resisted will be impulses to take up, from time to time, such unrelated issues as (a) the mysterious leak which has already appeared somewhere near the chimney, (b) whether screens should be repaired and painted when taken down or before being put up, or (c) how to get a cleaning woman when one is a mile and a half from the railroad station.

Houses, in this day of eviction notices and great demand, are picked up in anything but a leisurely manner. We paid about double what we think the place is worth in normal times, whatever they are, but we think we are lucky not to be wintering in a snowbank. One buys in a hurry these days and starts looking the place over after one moves in. After all, a roof is a roof.

For more garden news and "how-to-do-it" stories, turn to pages 5 and 6.

Moving day was late in September. The previous owner of this shingled, insulated dream house had long since given up the battle against crab-grass and the lawn resembled a waving field of grain.

There had been informal flower beds marking the terrace in front, but they were pretty much swallowed up by weeds. Jack-o'lanterns had managed to survive—all over the lot, in fact—and so had some wild phlox. Towering over all this were some really magnificent groupings of golden rod.

With an explorer's zeal, I managed to uncover a laurel tree and a number of other shrubs which were being smothered by honeysuckle. The honeysuckle would, given another year of freedom, have smothered the house, too. A dandy, strong bittersweet vine was doing a fine job of chewing off a corner of a gutter and buckling a leader pipe.

Spirea by the front door needed nothing but trimming—so the door could close freely. A really marvelously-trained clematis vine climbed attractively over a fanshaped trellis on the west terrace—and was promptly cut back to the ground after a windstorm knocked over the trellis and mangled the vine.

Our predecessors hadn't cared about vegetables, so there apparently is no plot—unless the honeysuckle has covered up that too. The place is crawling with insignificant lilac trees that are scrawny and will have to come out. There's poison ivy all over the stone walls and we seriously suspect that the pretty little brook that abuts our property is polluted.

There are some good features too. The place was landscaped very well originally and with some care and thought will come back. So here we go, into three seasons of work, fun, mistakes and successes. Remember, when you say half-an-acre it sounds small. But when you're pushing a lawn mover it's bigger than the Sahara.

Seed catalogues are starting to arrive. With evidences of recent snowstorms still around in icy drifts, that means that some people still believe spring will really come again. Usually a seed catalogue in the mailbox is a signal for me to get out my garden chart and start planning. I'll do it this year, too, but there's more divining rod and crystal-ball gazing involved than usual.

The tricks of the weather have been particularly tough on the bird and animal families that winter with us. I can't do anything for hte deer, but the birds are going through five-pound packages of seed with supersonic speed. The butcher has been kind about supplying me with suet and the birds seem to like it. When I can't manage this, I spread some peanut butter on the top of a coffee can. Then I frighten the bluejays off to give the smaller birds first whack at it.

New Heating Items Debut At N. Y. Show

New York, Feb. 7.—Conventional coal, oil and gas furnaces face tough competition for the builder's dollar. New and exciting ways to produce heat are expected to set skyrocketing sales records beginning this year.

Heating devices displayed at the eighth annual International Heating and Ventilating Exposition, which ended Friday at Grand Central Palace, failed to dent the current cold spell, however.

Products which attracted considerable attention, and took the spotlight from conventional oil, gas and coal furnaces, included the revolutionary "heat pump," radiant baseboard panel heating systems and individual room temperature controls on warm air heating systems.

Large crowds witnessed demonstrations of the "heat pump," which cools or heats a home by drawing its heat from the earth. It is powered by electricity and works on the basic principle of large air-conditioning and refrigeration systems. It was shown by General Engineering and Manufacturing Co.

Prices for the "heat pump" were not quoted, but officials indicated the proposed selling price for a home installation would be only 50 to 75 per cent more than a conventional heating plant.

Coal furnace manufacturers said the wide fuel oil shortage has increased demand for their products. It was said some large industrial firms were installing both oil and coal furnace units to avoid expensive shutdowns if one or the other fuel should be unavailable.

Increased demands for information on radiant heating installations were evident. One popular demonstration concerned an exhibit showing how to bend steel pipe for radiant heating piping.

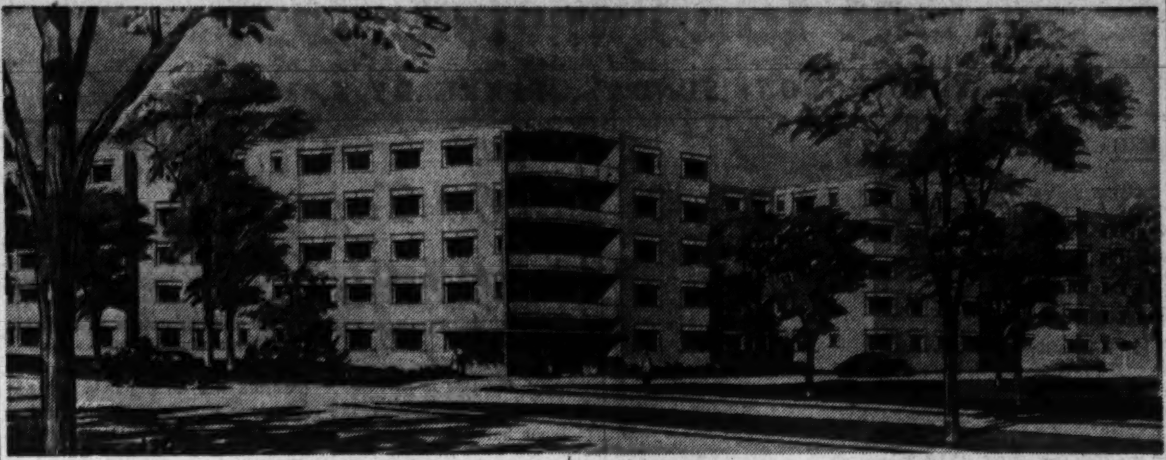
D.C.'s First FHA Elevator Apartment Debuts



Berla & Abel, Architects

Architect's conception of the proposed Lynwood Apartments to be built at 1330 Missouri ave. nw., by Morris Pollin & Son, Inc.

NEW apartments are in the news today. The District's first postwar elevator apartment building to be erected under FHA's emergency financing program was announced yesterday. All other apartments insured by FHA under its veterans' housing program have been two or three story walk-ups.

Construction is expected to begin next month on the 130-unit Lynwood Apartments at 1330 Missouri ave. nw., by Morris Pollin & Sons, Inc. It will be a five-story elevator building with apartments of 3½, 4½ and 5 rooms. Estimated construction cost was set at one million dollars by the builders.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Hunting Tower Apartments is contemplating three eight-story apartment buildings on Mount Vernon Memorial blvd. at Hunting Creek, Alexandria, Va., to be financed under the FHA program.

The project would cover 13½ acres and would be Alexandria's highest apartment building. The builders emphasized that plans have not yet fully materialized and no applications were being taken for the proposed rental units.

A Federal Housing Administration spokesman here said only "four or five" elevator-type apartments have been approved for FHA mortgage insurance in the United States, the rest being garden-type walk-ups.

Other good news on the rental housing front included these developments:

Kent Village, 809 units, will be built adjacent to the Prince Georges Country Club by Eugene B. Roberts. It will be a garden-type apartment development of two and three story structures containing apartments of 3½, 4, 4½ and 5 rooms. Construction is scheduled to begin within 30 to 60 days, according to the builders.

Developers of Kent Village plan to erect 1500 apartments on a 100-acre tract near the country club, of which the 809 units announced yesterday are the first four sections.

Roberts also plans to construct a million-dollar shopping center covering 14 acres facing on Landover rd. next to the country club entrance.

In the center of the commercial group will be a 6-acre park area, including a public swimming pool. Facilities for parking 700 cars will be included in the shopping center.

At hearings last year by the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission objected to the large number of apartments planned for the tract, claiming that the 5000 persons who would live there would create too dense a population for that area.

The commissioners overruled the objection in granting a residential C classification to the tract. Estimated population density will be 15 families per acre.

Three other projects have been approved for FHA mortgage insurance, the local FHA office has announced. They are:

Parkwood Apartments, 148 units, to be built on Leesburg pike at Glenn Carlin dr., Fairfax County, Va., by Jesse and Virginia D. Johnson.

Atlantic Gardens Apartments, 34 units, will be erected at 4th and Chesapeake sts. se., by Samuel J. Redman. Norma Court, 14 units, is planned for 28th and Q sts. se., by Clyde T. and G. N. Delp.

These new projects bring to 132 the total of veterans multi-family rental housing projects to be financed and built with FHA mortgage insurance, according to James A. Hewitt, director of the local office.

They will provide 13,239 new dwelling units financed with FHA-insured mortgages in excess of $101,346,000.

Builders Plan 114 Homes in Chevy Chase

A construction program geared to produce 114 two-story brick homes off Western ave. in Chevy Chase, Md., has been unveiled by Camalier and Crosby Construction Co.

The firm is taking sub-bids on the first 10 dwellings. Construction is expected to start next week.

"Plans are ready, we have ample men and materials," Peter Crosby said. "Our production schedule calls for us to break ground on the 114th house in 11months."

The house will sell for around $23,000 and will include 2½ baths, three bedrooms and den, or four bedrooms, full basement, a 22-foot living room, at least two cedar closets, gas heat with recessed radiators and an 8000 square foot lot.

Crosby declared the firm should be able to keep up scheduled production. Thirty-five homes are to get under way in two months. The builder estimated the firm would have 120 workers on its payroll during the peak building progress this summer. It now employs 40 building mechanics, he said.

The builders plan a 3-acre park and playground for use by residents. It is expected to be ready by March.

The development will be called "Chevy Chase Manor." It is the first building project undertaken by the firm. Charles A. Camalier, jr., was formerly associated with Karl Korby in construction of more than 1000 apartments in the Southeast.

Corrugations in Sides Strengthen Trash Cans

The deep corrugations on the sides of most galvanized steel garbage cans increase the strength of the can without increasing the weight of the steel used. Consequently, such containers are strong enough to undergo hard usage, yet light enough to be easily emptied.

Brick Production 5% Greater Than in 1946

Brick production in December was 15 per cent greater than in December, 1946, and the total 1947 output was 5 per cent greater than 1946, the Structural Clay Products Institute has reported.

Over five billion bricks were produced last year, the largest production since 1939.

Floor Plans Book Available

The brick industry has climbed on the bandwagon of the "industry-engineered home" program with a 28-page plan book showing six brick homes designed for construction along modular principles.

The plan book shows floor plans for a two-bedroom, one-story home, a two-bedroom, two-story home, 3-bedroom homes of one and two stories, and two homes with three bedrooms on the second floor and an additional bedroom or study on the first floor.

The "industry-engineered home" program has been adopted by large segments of the building industry and provides for standardized dimensions of basic materials. The program's backers predict lower building costs, greater structural perfection and faster construction made possible by standard sized materials to be kept available by building supply dealers.

Detailed working drawings for the brick homes are contained in the book, available to the public through building materials dealers and brick and tile manufacturers, according to the Structural Clay Products Institute, 1756 K st. nw.

Vets With Itchy Feet Are Boon To Movers

Veterans who acquired a habit of constant moving during the war have not shed their mobility with their uniforms, the American Society of Planning Officials reported recently.

Of the 11 million residents who have moved from their former homes to new localities since VJ-Day, the most highly mobile group comprises former GIs. Almost 12 per cent of all male veterans have moved one or more times as civilians since the war ended.

Occupationally, the most mobile group of migrants has been professional and semiprofessional workers followed by farm laborers and farm foremen.

Least mobile groups were farm owners, farm managers and service workers, except for domestics.

More women moved than men. In the year following VJ-Day, there were 5,700,000 female migrants (8.1 per cent of all females), compared to slightly more than five million male migrants (7.4 per cent of all males).

The leading reason for postwar migration has been to find or take new jobs. Six million people changed locations for this purpose. Another two million changed home towns simply to find adequate housing. Other reasons given for postwar moves were to attend school (especially to GIs) for the sake of health and for marriage.

Young people, veterans and others, moved more often than old. About one seventh of all United States residents in the 20-30-age group have moved at least once since the war. More than one fourth of all migrants were children under 14 who moved with their families.

Realty Round-Up

HOUSING IN THE NEWS: Browsing through our voluminous files concerning housing activities during the last 20 years, the following article of January 31, 1940, came to light: "New All-Time Construction Record Arouses Fears of Washington Housing Surplus," the heading read. The text stated: "Real estate leaders feel none too comfortable about the new all-time building record set in the Washington metropolitan area during 1939."

One of the city's outstanding real estate authorities predicted: "Present home construction here is running approximately 50 per cent ahead of actual demand. Pointing to increases in vacancies and the number of unsold new houses, it is mathematically impossible for the market to absorb such a volume."

In the same article, one of the city's best known realtors questioned the "wisdom of allowing home building activity to remain at high levels."

Just four years ago, Federal planners were scared stiff that builders would produce "an over supply of multiple family dwelling units in the Washington region after the return of normal postwar conditions," according to a clipping dated January, 1944.

An official of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission expressed the view that unless "the trend is checked or held within reasonable bounds, there will be an over supply on the real estate market when conditions return to normal. With this view commission members apparently were in accord."

There should be a moral to this somewhere.

Final tally of new homes completed last year has been announced. Bureau of Labor Statistics figures show 855,000 new houses started, 834,500 completed. On the basis of four persons to the average family, this means that some 3,238,000 Americans got new homes last year.

NAHB President Edward R. Carr remarked: "It's time some of the arm-chair critics of home building realized we are building more houses today than ever before."

Sumner T. Pike, member of the Atomic Energy Commission, will discuss peacetime uses of atomic energy in a speech tomorrow at 12:30 before the Washington Building Congress at the Mayflower Hotel.

Plans are being readied for the congress' forthcoming oyster roast at the Mayflower, February 27. Ray Sim is chairman of the oyster roast committee. Earl W. Shinn is in charge of entertainment.

Previews, Inc., has reported the sale of three times as many large private estates as in 1946, 82 per cent selling for $100,000 or more, with average price tags reading $152,000. Previews said 80 per cent of the properties sold at the owners' asking prices.

PERSONALS: Sam "Everything's Rosey in Real Estate" Rosey is letting his realty office run itself this week while he's enjoying a visit with his son, Jerry Ross, down from Broadway triumphs to appear in a dance concert Friday night at Lisner Auditorium with the Dance Playhouse Group. When discussing his son's stage successes, Rosey's face beams like a man who has just completed two $100,000 deals in one day. Jerry's last local appearance was a stint at the National with "Sing Out Sweet Land."

2 Projects Include Nearly 200 Homes

Two housing projects planned for the Southeast by Donal M. Chamberlin would provide nearly 200 semi-detached homes upon completion, it was learned yesterday.

A building permit application has been filed for the first 22 dwellings in a 100-home project in the 3300 and 3400 blocks of 22d st. se., by Chamberlin-Free Co.

The Chamberlin-Pessagne Construction Co. plans 90 to 100 dwellings on Elmira st. between Nichols ave. and S. Capitol st. se.

Homes will be two and three-bedroom bricks, estimated to sell for around $10,500.

Harold G. Free, associated with Chamberlin in the 22d st. project, has been with the Kennedy-Chamberlin Development Co. for the last 20 years.

New Panels Heat House From Ceiling

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—A new radiant heating panel that heats from the ceiling has been unveiled by the United States Rubber Co.

The panels are called Uskons and are heated by a conducive rubber resistance element.

"Rubber is normally an excellent insulator against electricity, but in these panels scientists have reversed its chemical nature, causing it to conduct electrical current," C. W. Higbee, a spokesman for the company, said.

He predicted that homes of the future would be heated more economically and effectively by electricity than by oil, gas or any similar fuel.

At a demonstration of an electrically heated house at Raritan, N. J., Higbee said the determining factor in heating depended on rate and climate.

The company estimates the cost of heating a well-insulated 8000-cubic-foot home 24 hours a day at 68 degrees for a full year at: Pittsburgh, $190; Buffalo, $247.50; New York, $252; Jacksonville, $39.30; Atlanta, $66.93; Memphis, $47; Denver, $291.60; Seattle, $220; San Francisco, $43; Bangor, Me., $170.20; San Diego, $61, and Chicago, $310.

Standard size of heating panels are 4 by 4 feet. They are ¼ inch thick and resemble interior building boards. They operate on 220 volts, and may be finished with paint, plastic, paper, or fabric.

Don't Paint Radiator Until It Has Cooled

A practical method of making radiators less conspicuous is to paint them the same color as the wall which is their background. If both the wall and the radiators are painted in light colors, heat radiation will be improved. Be sure that the radiator surface is free from rust, clean and dry before you start painting. Radiators must be cool before they are painted. Don't turn on the heat until the paint is dry.

What's New In Gadgets

TELE-REST

Tele-Rest is a new, easy-to-use telephone shoulder cradle that allows its user complete freedom of both hands at the telephone. It's a boon to newspapermen, secretaries, order clerks and other people who often use Mr. Bell's invention. And it's wonderful for the man who likes to wave his hands to emphasize a point.

It's made of lightweight cast aluminum with rubber shoulder grip. The manufacturer says it's unbreakable, fits any phone, can be used for either ear.

HYDA-KORD

Keeping stray lamp cords from under foot not only prevents accidents, but also improves the appearance of any room. The compact, inexpensive little gadget pictured above takes up slack cord by neatly winding it up on a spool inside.

Made of light-weight plastic in ivory or mahogany, it can be attached to the molding near a convenient outlet or placed directly on the floor. It will take up to 8 feet of cord.

That's Why So Many Barns Are Painted Red

Early in the last century, farmers recognized that natural earth pigments of the red iron oxide type were readily available and, when mixed with oil, made good, long-lasting paint. In more recent times, many farmers have used other colors of paint on barns, but the red barn continues to accent the landscape in large areas of rural America.

Painting Time

A professional painter, working alone, requires six to eight days to paint the average six-room house.

Portable Heaters Blow Hot, Cold

THIS YEAR'S crop of portable heaters produces no more heat than last year's. But they are apt to be more comforting to look at.

All heaters with the same wattage produce exactly the same amount of heat. The difference is in how the heat is distributed and in the appearance and size. The rise in popularity of the fan-heater combination is notable. Radiator types continue to be popular.

The round heater (right) might be considered this year's interpretation of the pot-bellied stove in that it is comforting to look at as well as a source of heat. Because it tilts up and down, quick adjustment depending on whether it is placed on the floor, on a table or on a wall bracket, is possible. Rubber protectors make it safe for polished table tops. This model functions as either a fan or a heater.

The bullet-shaped type is another design departure. This one is either a fan or a heater and can swing from side to side.

Another model that specializes in quick heat has radiant elements. A fan forces heat out into the room. The whole rests on the floor and is designed to direct heat rays up and out.

When selecting a portable heater it is wise to look for one with a protected heating element and bearing the label "UL," which means that it is approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories. A long cord is desirable if you plan to use the heater in several locations. Might as well select a size and style that will blend with room furnishings.

Your Garden In February

SECRETARY of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson has said: "By helping himself to meet increasing living costs, the home gardener will be helping his own community make a precious contribution to a hungry world."

Your garden checklist for February should include:

OUTDOORS: Finish pruning shrubs, fruit and other trees, but it's well to wait until heavy freezing is over before pruning grapes, roses and other vines and shrubs. Cuttings of flowering shrubs with buds may be forced indoors in water.

Drain and fill in ruts in driveways with gravel or cinders. Fill holes in lawn with top soil.

Look over all plantings carefully for scale insects, galls and insect nests.

Build or repair coldframes and hotbeds. As days grow longer and the sun stronger start some early seed plantings in coldframes or hotbeds outdoors.

Spade the vegetable garden as soon as the ground thaws and is dry enough to work without "puddling."

Watch for signs of spring: bulbs, buds, skunk cabbages and robins.

INDOORS: Sow seeds for planting later outdoors in flats, seed boxes or shallow pots. Hardy vegetables such as tomatoes, cabbage, etc., as well as annual flowers may be started now in this way.

Repot ferns and other house plants which are crowded or need rejuvenation. Use fresh, fertile soil mixed with sand and humus. Apply dry or liquid fertilizer but not in too heavy doses.

Kill white fly and other insects on house plants by spraying as soon as they appear with a nicotine solution.

Spray your house plants with a fine mist once a week (or wash in the kitchen sink); give them cool, fresh air at night (avoiding draughts and cooking gas), sunshine, and they will grow rapidly.

Freshen up your living room windows with some new house plants: cyclamen, African violet, geraniums, begonias or potted bulbs.

NIGHT WORK: Order your vegetable, flower seeds and plants at once if you haven't already done so. Some kinds may be short. Also get your orders in now for fertilizer, tools, insecticides and other garden supplies. Most items will be available but some shortages may develop.

Make a garden plan. This will save time and confusion later on. Make a landscape plan of your place, adding such new shrubs, evergreen, fruit and shade trees, berry bushes and vines as you may need to spruce up the place and make it a beautiful, all-year-round gardened home.

Test your old seed—don't take chances. An easy way to do this is to place a seed sample between wet blotting papers in a saucer or pan and keep in a warm spot. If they don't germinate 75% or better, use fresh seed.

Headlight for Tractor

With an increasing number of farmers operating tractors at night, a special sealed-beam headlight for the tractor has been developed. Its lens is designed to concentrate the light on the area immediately ahead of the machine.

Camp McAlester, War Prison, Sold

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 7.—Camp McAlester, Okla., which served as a prisoner-of-war camp during the war, has been sold by the Government to two local businessmen for $102,000, it was disclosed here today.

The camp consists of 156 acres and 290 buildings, most of which are of temporary construction. J. L. Stuckert, jr., and Shelby Owens, the purchasers, plan to remove the temporary structures to nearby cities for remodeling into housing.

The Public Building Administration was assigned by War Assets Administration to sell the property when it was declared surplus to Army needs.

VIERS MILL VILLAGE
TAKES PLEASURE IN ANNOUNCING THAT DUE TO THE OVERWHELMING RESPONSE OF THOUSANDS OF HOME-SEEKERS TO ITS FIRST OFFERING—

THE ENTIRE FIRST SECTION OF 135 HOMES ARE ALREADY SOLD

The second section of these attractive new bungalows is being offered this week-end. If you have not seen this popular development, you should do so now.

NO MONEY DOWN—VETERANS ONLY

VIERS MILL VILLAGE MEANS THIS TO YOU

$8700

To you—and all families desiring a home of their own without too great a cash outlay, or whose budgets permit only a modest monthly outlay for shelter—Viers Mill Village offers a unique opportunity to live better for less. Today's high prices have put most rental and sale property out of reach of many veterans, but through modern precision-production methods we have cut Viers Mill Village prices back to a sound level, far below other developments. Here is a planned community of low-cost, easily procurable homes, complete in every detail. Here you can have the wholesome happy environment your family needs, at far less outlay than you'd expect in these times.

TWO ECONOMICAL PURCHASE PLANS FOR VETERANS

Full approval by both FHA and Veterans Administration enables you to own your house easily and economically—and is your guarantee of sound construction and good value. Frequent FHA inspections are made during construction, and FHA supervision assures the highest standards of community planning and construction at all times.

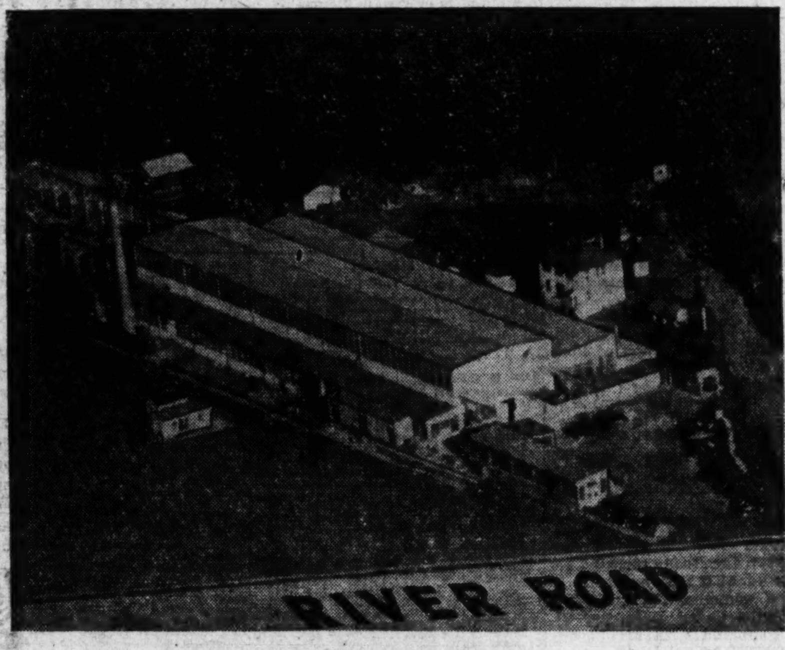
50,000 Sq. Ft. of Floor Area
WAREHOUSE OR MANUFACTURING USE



FOR SALE OR LEASE

This complete industrial plant, on RIVER ROAD, BETHESDA, MARYLAND, less than a mile from the D. C. line and 20 minutes from the center of the city, has more than seven acres of industrial land with 900 feet of PRIVATE RAILROAD SIDING off the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

The principal improvement is a ONE-STORY BUILDING of factory-type construction with a heavy duty re-inforced concrete floor, steel columns and steel beams; size 154'x326', containing 50,000 SQUARE FEET of floor area and OVER 1,000,000 CUBIC FEET; with ceiling heights up to 33'. This building is equipped with a heavy duty electric distribution system, overhead lighting, 10-tone overhead crane, and a stoker-fired steam heating system. The plant is serviced by municipal water and sewer. Gas service is available throughout the building.

Additional improvements include a one-story brick building equipped for laboratory use, a two-story frame office building, three metal storage buildings, and other miscellaneous sheds.

The plant is suitable for ANY MANUFACTURING OR WAREHOUSE USE. If a purchaser requires only a part of the area, tenants are available for the remaining space. The limited amount of industrial property in the rapidly developing Bethesda area insures continued capital appreciation of the undeveloped portion of the tract.

Power Cheaper Than Manure

Electric Hotbed Proves Low Cost Plant Starter

So small a quantity of heat is necessary to keep temperatures in a hotbed above the danger point in spring, it is usually less expensive to use electricity for this purpose than the traditional manure.

Advantages of electricity are numerous. With an inexpensive thermostat, the heat is turned on or off according to the need; and the plants growing in the hotbed get an even range of temperature, without the extremes which were common where manure was used.

Plants can be started earlier, and kept protected for a longer period, without danger of the heat source becoming exhausted before danger of frost outdoors is over.

An electric cable is the heater, but a number of lamps can be used if preferred.

A cold frame is constructed in the usual manner and is sunk in the ground a few inches. Soil is removed within it to an equal depth, and the cable is arranged on the bottom in loops, so that heat will be evenly distributed. The supply wire and cable are both connected to a thermostat, which can be set at the desired minimum temperature, so that as soon as the thermometer falls to that point, heat is turned on.

When temperature rises a few degrees above the minimum, heat is shut off.

The heating cable is usually covered with 4 to 6 inches of soil. It is a good idea to place a sheet of fine meshed poultry wire an inch above the cable, with soil between.

Another method is to grow plants in flats, which are placed on a grating just above the heating cable, which is not buried in soil and thus is always open to inspection. To improve insulation and reduce current consumption, the frame should be banked with cinders, which are covered with soil to within a few inches of the top.

THE GARDENER

Either electric cable, or lamps can be used to heat hot-bed

Uncle Wants 20 Million Home Gardens

TWENTY million freedom gardens is the goal set by the Government to help relieve the world food shortage and put a stop to the rise of food prices at home.

A good beginning is requisite for success. That calls for a planting plan which makes full use of the area selected and includes succession crops to replace those that have been harvested.

First consider tender crops such as tomatoes, peppers and eggplants, because they are the first ones to be started. Sow peppers and eggplants in mid-February so that they will be ready for setting into the garden about May 15, which is the right time in the vicinity of Washington. These require from eight to 10 weeks to grow into sturdy seedlings. Tomatoes require from six to eight weeks, and may therefore be sown indoors early in March.

The best germination temperature for these three is between 75 and 85 degrees. When the seedlings are two or three weeks old they should be transplanted to shallow boxes where they stand not less than two inches apart. After another two or three weeks they may be potted up individually.

Cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, Brussels sprouts and kohlrabi all need from four to six weeks to make strong seedlings. As they can be planted out about April 1 in the vicinity of Washington, sowings during the early part of March will be right. The best night temperature for these seedlings is between 45 and 50 degrees and the day temperature may run up to 75 degrees.

They should be transplanted to shallow boxes when about two weeks old. As they increase in size they must be hardened by being subjected gradually to lower temperatures so that they will not be shocked too severely when finally placed outdoors.

Peoples Drug Sales Decline 1.9% From '47

January sales of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., and subsidiaries totaled $3,518,657.32, a decrease of $67,395.04 and 1.9 per cent from the sales of January, 1947.

The company operated 136 stores last month compared with 134 in January last year.

MANAGER NAMED: The appointment by the Hudson Sales Corp. of a new zone manager for Washington, has been announced by N. K. Van Derzee, sales manager of the Hudson Motor Car Co.

Margetts

Claude Margetts, former zone manager at Atlanta, has been appointed District zone manager. Margetts, who has had many years experience with Hudson in the Southeast Division, joined the Hudson sales organization as a district manager in Atlanta, and later was promoted to zone manager there.

Claude C. Daley, jr., former regional manager at Charlotte, N. C., succeeds Margetts as zone manager at Atlanta.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Clifford Folger, Washington investment banker, has been elected a director of Burlington Mills Corporation . . . Adolph A. Hoehling, former Washington newspaperman has joined the publicity department of United Air Lines at its Chicago headquarters . . . George Reisinger of the firm of Wolford & Hayward, on Friday became the first former page of the New York Cotton Exchange to be elected to membership in that organization. He began working on the exchange in 1919 . . . Clark R. Gamble has been elected president of the Brown Shoe Co.

ODD LOTS: Washington members of the Society of Automotive Engineers will get the latest information on 1948 automobiles at their regular meeting Tuesday evening at the Broadmoor Hotel from Joseph Geschelin, Detroit editor of Automotive Industry . . . Prices of Eastman Kodak Co. represent an over-all increase of 16 per cent since August, 1939, Albert K. Chapman, general manager, reports . . . Commercial Solvents Corporation yesterday announced plans to spend two million dollars for new facilities at Terre Haute, Ind. . . . Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane discuss Dresser Industrial, Inc., in a current market letter . . . The Washington chapter of the American Institute of Banking will initiate a new course on bank bookkeeping starting Tuesday. Arthur Meade of Lincoln National Bank and Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, vice president of the Second National Bank, will conduct the course.

RECORD ASSETS: Resources and share balances of Eastern Building & Loan Association have reached a 59-year high, Secretary R. Edward Early reported recently at the shareholders' annual meeting. Assets now exceed 11 million dollars and savings balances top nine million. William N. Payne, jr., was reelected president and all other officers and directors also were renamed.

FOR MILADY: Nylons are due to be straightened out. That doesn't refer to seams but to an even more vexing problem—supply and demand. More nylon yarn will be available to women's hosiery makers in 1948 than during the past year, according to duPont company, which said that a second nylon plant at Martinsville, Va., should reach full production within a few months. Earl Constantine, president of National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, predicts supply and demand should be in balance some time this year.

BANK FIGURES: Highlights of Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond's weekly report on 18 member Washington banks:

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Cotton futures today closed strong, with advances of $1 to $2.10 a bale. Closing prices were at or near the day's best, with nearby positions the strongest.

The upward movement was generally ascribed to technical considerations, owing to recent setbacks.

Mill price fixing was evident, with New Orleans dealers also good buyers. Some of the demand for cotton futures was attributed to belief that export sales of United States cotton later this season to the Far East would be in larger volume than formerly anticipated.

Ship Owners Predict Dip in U.S. Freighters

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—A substantial reduction in the United States freighter fleet is forecast by the Association of American Ship Owners.

A projected decline in exports, combined with a steady increase in competing foreign flag tonnage is the basis of their estimate.

The shipping group says the freighter fleet "will probably approximate 13 million deadweight tons by the end of the year as compared with 17 million deadweight tons by the end of the year of 1947."

The drop will be even greater, the association adds in a report, if there are no additional transfers of Government vessels to foreign registry.

The association says, "Any additional transfers would represent a direct and commensurate cut in American flag employment."

More than 50 per cent of American flag freighter tonnage has been employed in the coal-grain program, the report says, "and it is here that we must expect the major decline in the demand for shipping services in 1948."

"High-Water Mark" Passed

The ship owners group points out that in 1947 the United States exported 10 million tons of grain, including flour expressed in grain equivalent, and 43 million tons of coal in ocean-going ships.

"While American coal and grain will remain in heavy demand in world markets," the survey says, "the high water mark for the coal-grain movement was probably reached in 1947.

"The recent reports concerning the probability of 15 million tons of export coal from Britain gave rise to an almost immediate lessening of European interest in American coal.

"The possible development of a large coal program in the Pacific and Indian Ocean areas could be a partial offset. But, even so, coal is likely to be the largest single commodity factor in the decline of our shipping employment."

"Lunacy a Few Years Ago"

The Association of American Ship Owners explains the Pacific and Indian coal development possibilities as follows:

"The Japanese coking coal program, which has already begun in a small way, will almost certainly be continued this year. Depending upon military developments, China might even become a small importer of coal, and Pakistan is attempting to sell the State Department on a program.

"Speculation on possible coal exports to these areas would have been considered economic lunacy a few years ago and, indeed, no shipping company should gamble on their immediate development. But, in the politcal choas that is Asia today, these programs are definitely within the area of ultimate possibility."

The report says that with the resumption of Philippine sugar exports and the return of the Netherlands Indies rubber estates to active operation, there will be plenty of Far Eastern return cargo south of the twentieth parallel.

"There may also be some new return programs, such as steel scrap," the survey says, "but these programs have not yet developed to a point where they can be included prominently in a realistic forecast."

Synthetic Gas Being Made By U. S. Firms

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—The day when your car will run on a tankful of synthetic gasoline may be closer than you think.

The Texas Co. says it is now making 5000 gallons of gasoline a day out of natural gas at two pilot plants in Montebello, Calif.

A commercial plant with a daily capacity of 7000 barrels will be in operation in early 1949 in Brownsville, Tex., the company says.

The hydrocol process of turning natural gas into synthetic gas is being made available to anyone anywhere on a license basis.

Stanolind Oil & Gas Co. also expects to have a commercial synthesis plant in operation in 1949 in Kansas with a 7000-barrel daily capacity. Both are entirely financed by private industry without Government support, Texas officials say.

Within 10 years, Texaco Director of Research L. C. Kemp predicts, 50 such plants may be operating to provide 350,000 barrels a day. This will be only 5 per cent of the estimated demand for seven million barrels a day by that time. Yet 5 per cent can make the difference between sufficient liquid fuel and a critical shortage.

Higher Investment Ratio

Kemp estimates that plant investment for synthetic gas now averages $3000 for each barrel of daily capacity. He estimates plant investment for making gasoline from crude oil at $2500 a barrel at present construction costs.

The Brownsville plant is being built by Carthage Hydrocol, Inc. The Texas Co. owns 38 per cent of the stock. Other stockholders are Chicago Corp., Forest Oil Corp., Lagloria Corp., Niagara Share Corp., Stone & Webster, Inc.; United Gas Corp., Western Natural Gas Corp., and Hydrocarbon Research, Inc.

Texas Company and Hydrocarbon Research jointly will license use of the hydrocol process. W. M. Stafford, president of Texaco Development Co., says several companies are now considering building plans.

Dr. W. E. Kuhn, manager of the technical research division of the Texas Company, emphasizes that while pilot plant construction is always expensive, the overall cost of building additional plants will come down. The Brownsville plant he says, will be profitably operated.

Investment Reduced

Research by the Texas Co., since the war has reduced investment costs in plants to one third of that under the process the Germans used in making synthetic gasoline, and operating costs to one fourth the German rate, Kemp says. The new process has little resemblance to the German, he adds.

Texas economists estimate that the hydrocol process will make 163 trillion feet of natural gas available for synthetic gasoline, or the equivalent of 16.3 billion barrels of crude oil. This would supply all the Nation's gasoline requirements for nine years at the 1946 consumption rate.

The Brownsville plant will use 280 million cubic feet of air and 90 million cubic feet of natural gas daily. It will extract 53 million cubic feet of oxygen from the air and introduce it at high pressure, along with methane, into the synthesis gas generator, into which the natural gas also flows.

The synthetic product will probably not be used "straight" in auto tanks. Instead, Kemp says, it will be "blended" with other gasolines to get an "optimum performance" commercial gasoline.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 7 (AP).—Grains showed some signs of stabilizing on the Board of Trade today after three sessions of plunging prices. Strength appeared in various futures of all grains, but was spotty and did not extend into the May contract of anything but oats.

In general, oats acted the best of all grains. This cereal had started to show signs of resisting the collapse yesterday. Corn, on the other hand, was the weakest grain. Soybeans continued in a demoralized state while all contracts offered were 8 cents lower and not attracting buyers.

At the close wheat was 9 cents lower to 4¼ higher, May 2.50@2.51¼; corn was 8 cents lower to 1 cent higher, May 2.15⅝; oats were 2¼ to 4⅛ higher, May 1.04@1.04½; lard ended 1.10 to 1.25 a hundred pounds higher, March 22.10.

The 9-cent loss in wheat was made by the inactive March contract. May also was lower, but all the new-crop months advanced. Traders pointed out that these contracts are selling at wide discounts and it was generally felt that the break had carried them close to the potential 1948 loan level.

Both May and July corn crashed the 8-cent daily limit again, making the fourth successive day of limit declines. Brokers said corn has been the weakest grain in the entire decline, and recalled that it was initial selling in this cereal which touched off the entire collapse. September corn was very weak, but the December delivery rallied a cent.

Since setting the all-time record high at 2.70¾ on January 16, the May corn contract has collapsed 55⅛ cents. Meanwhile the country continued to offer more corn on a to-arrive basis, bookings being placed at close to 500,000 bushels after 750,000 bushels yesterday.

Anticipating the Wage Arguments

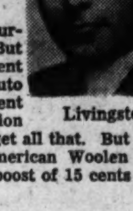
You don't need to shed tears about America's corporations, either large or small. They did pretty well for themselves last year. The annual reports prove that. Caterpillar Tractor, for instance, earned $5.29 a share, as against $3.25 in '46; United States Steel, $11.66, against $7.28; Mathieson Alkali, $3.34, against $2.25; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, $17.11, against $13.52; Johns-Manville, $3.23, against $2.01; Island Creek Coal, $8, against $3.72. To cap it all, the unprosperous and plaintive Pennsylvania Railroad managed to get out of the red. It netted $2,602,000, or 20 cents a share, as against a $10,850,000 deficit in 1946.



Livingston

All this isn't news to John L. Lewis, Philip Murray, Walter Reuther and other labor leaders. But it's ammunition. Once again, high profits present a shining target for wage demands. United Auto Workers' Reuther has already asked for a 30-cent package—15 cents for wages, 10 cents for a pension fund and 5 cents for medical benefits. He won't get all that. But he'll undoubtedly get something approaching the American Woolen Co.-Textile Workers of America agreement—a wage boost of 15 cents plus a 4-cent-an-hour insurance fund.

Phil Murray's Unloaded Gun

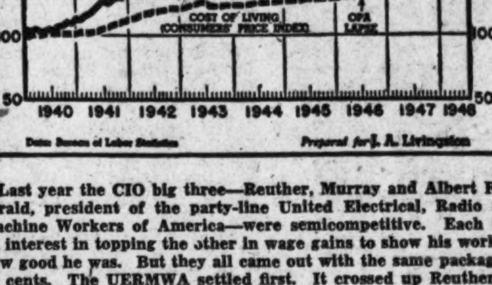
Reuther will probably carry the CIO ball this year. He'll be working not only for himself, but for Murray's United Steelworkers of America. Murray is bound by a two-year contract. He has a wage reopening clause in it, but it doesn't permit a strike. So, in effect, Murray must take what U. S. Steel grants. This fact will undoubtedly hang heavy over the wage policy committee of the United Steelworkers when it meets on February 18 to decide on negotiating strategy.

BACKGROUND FOR ROUND 3

In '46, prices rose faster than wages; last year, wages faster than prices. And now?



Data: Bureau of Labor Statistics — Prepared for J. A. Livingston

Last year the CIO big three—Reuther, Murray and Albert Fitzgerald, president of the party-line United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America—were semicompetitive. Each had an interest in topping the other in wage gains to show his workers how good he was. But they all came out with the same package—15 cents. The UERMWA settled first. It crossed up Reuther by making a deal with General Motors on electrical workers in G. M. plants. Then Reuther and Murray fell into line with General Motors and U. S. Steel.

Presumably this year Murray will try to hold Fitzgerald in line—always a hard thing to do—so as to strengthen Reuther's hands with General Motors and Chrysler. The more Reuther (or Fitzgerald) gets, the more Murray can plead for.

Murray will probably argue that he cannot take less than Reuther. He'll undoubtedly point to last year.. After Murray settled for 15 cents an hour, John L. Lewis, by striking, won a 31-cent-an-hour deal from Benjamin Fairless of U. S. Steel. And Lewis, once again, will be the unseen presence at steel conference table. Whatever Murray gets, Lewis will try to top it. And Murray knows it.

Labor's Argument

The cost-of-living argument, which has been the labor leader's stock in trade since VJ-Day, has lost its statistical potency. In '46, weekly wages lagged behind living costs. They rose 13 per cent as against 20 per cent. Last year it was the other way—12 per cent against 9 per cent. So union leaders can't argue that the organized worker lost ground last year (see chart).

For their best case, labor leaders have to go back to January, 1945, when wartime earnings were at a peak and price controls still kept down living costs. Since then, weekly earnings have risen only 10 per cent, whereas living costs have gone up 31 per cent. But that's a little ancient by now. And it invites the retort that the war raised the United States worker's living standard. Since September, 1939, weekly wages have gone up 119 per cent as against a 66 per cent rise in the cost of living.

Higher Efficiency in '48

All these figures have been well rehearsed by both sides. Corporations know how to dress down the argument that profits are at an all-time high. Business executives will argue that 1947 reports overstate real earning power. In the first place, about one dollar out of every four was a paper profit, due to inventory markup; in the second place, depreciation charges are not sufficient to cover wear and tear at current replacement prices. Result: Earning power is mortgaged by the requirements of doing business at a price level 18 per cent higher than last year. That's indicated by the steady increase in bank loans.

Labor has this counterargument. Businessmen have had two full reconversion years behind them—1946 and 1947. Production is going along more smoothly. Inventory pipelines have been filled. Workers know their jobs better. Foremen have been trained to postwar techniques. Less-productive help is being screened out. As a result, costs should gradually come down. The remarkable improvement in productivity in coal mining is a case in point. Output per worker in an eight-hour day is as high as it was last June in a nine-hour day. So union leaders will contend that increasing efficiency can permit a rise in pay without a rise in prices.

That argument makes more sense this year than when Reuther first pulled it right after VJ-Day. Then, corporations hadn't any idea how soon they'd get into production, how much their costs would be, how much goods they'd sell. They set prices to cover all contingencies. With two years of postwar experience behind them, they're better able to assume calculated risks.

Of course, if commodity prices take a header, all arguments would go by the boards. Businessmen would curtail production, inventories would be reduced, layoffs would occur and labor's bargaining power would be impaired. However, a two- or three-day flurry in wheat, corn and cotton, which are notoriously upsidownsy anyway, hardly constitutes a trend.

Stocks Rally On Buy Orders From Shorts

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—The stock market enjoyed a modest recovery shift today after the second sharpest week's tumble since last May.

The biggest commodity break in many years received the principal blame for the recent relapse in securities. There was the feeling that falling staples might mean that a business recession was in the offing. Persistent doubts regarding taxes, labor and international affairs, including unsettlement of European currencies, prompted selling from Monday on. Today's comeback was credited mainly to professional short covering and other bidding for a technical correction. Most customers still held aloof or trimmed accounts.

| WHAT STOCKS DID. | Sat. | Fri. |
|---|---|---|
| Advances | 390 | 379 |
| Declines | 132 | 389 |
| Unchanged | 178 | 240 |
| Total issues | 700 | 1008 |

Improvement in cotton and some grain futures helped prop sentiment in the short session although demand was notably timed. Transfers for the two hours totalled 330,000 shares against 290,000 a week ago. For the six sessions the aggregate was 5,126,100 shares compared with 4,574,640 last week, which was a minimum since the period ended last May 10.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .4 of a point at 62, first advance since last Saturday, but for the week was off 1.8 points.

On the day gainers of a point or so included Rock Island at 32¾ (at a 1947-48 high), Sperry 22⅞, International Paper 48, Gypsum 95¼, Douglas Aircraft 51½, Santa Fe 90 and Youngstown Sheet 70⅝. Elsewhere advances were mainly in fractions.

Bonds improved selectively.

Lumber Shipments

Lumber shipments of 400 mills reporting to the National Lumber Trade Barometer were 4.8 per cent above production for the week ending January 31, 1948. In the same week new orders of these mills were 6.5 per cent above production. Unfilled order files of the reporting mills amount to 59 per cent of stocks.

A PLAN FOR 1948
that will increase your chances for getting ahead
Advice from The WALL STREET JOURNAL
After every war, there is a period of adjustment, a period of fluctuation and rapid changes. In a situation of this kind, the man who is most likely to get ahead is the man who has sources of information that are RELIABLE.
If you want to improve your chances in 1948, why not follow the plan of thousands of top executives who read the reports in The Wall Street Journal before making important decisions?
These reports are accurate and they come to you DAILY. You get the fastest possible warning of any new trend that may affect your business and personal income. You get the facts in time to take whatever steps are needed to protect your interests, or to seize quickly a new profit-making opportunity. You are promptly and reliably informed on every major new development relating to: Taxes, Prices, Tariffs, Industries, Production Trends, Commodities, Securities, Marketing, Consumer Buying, Labor, World Trade, Finance and New Legislation.
The Wall Street Journal is the complete business daily... with the largest staff of writers on business and finance ...and, in addition, it is the only business paper served by all four big press associations. Why not try it for the next 3 months... just tear out this ad and attach it to your check for $6 and mail. Or tell us to bill you. Trial subscription... $6 for 3 months—77 issues (in U. S. and Possessions). Address: The Wall Street Journal, 44 Broad Street, New York 4, N. Y. WP 2-8

Prefab Unit Production Shows Rise

Prefabricated manufacturers produced 37,000 units last year. This total was accomplished with 80 firms, in contrast to 150 firms producing in 1946 when approximately 33,000 units were produced.

Prefabricated Home Manufacturers Institute said many prefab manufacturers have curtailed proposed production plans for 1948 until they see whether or not Congress will authorize more funds for FHA insurance commitments under Title VI of the National Housing Act.

Title VI authorizes FHA to insure mortgages up to 90 per cent of the estimated construction cost of a proposed house. The policy has greatly stimulated house and apartment construction

Prefabbers shipped an estimated 4000 houses during December, the Institute added. Of approximately 80 firms manufacturing houses in 1947, many leading companies increased their shipments about 50 per cent over 1946, according to Harry H. Steidle, Institute manager.

Scores Of Washington Builders, Officials To Attend Chicago Convention

Thirty-five Washington builders and scores of high Government officials will attend the annual convention and exposition of the National Association of Home Builders, in Chicago, February 22-26, it was disclosed yesterday.

Government officials scheduled to speak at the convention, estimated to attract thousands of builders from over the Nation, will be headed by Raymond M. Foley, Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

Eight top officials of the Federal Housing Administration will address panels and clinic discussions of home-building problems. They are FHA Commissioner Franklin D. Richards, Curt Mack, Victor C. Adler, Lancelot Sukert, Byron Hanke, Alfred W. Jarchow, Maurice R. Massey and Clyde L. Powell.

The local home-building delegation will be headed by Clarence W. Gosnell, president, and William S. Banks, vice president.

Metropolitan Washington builders scheduled to participate in meetings include Edward R. Carr, president, NAHB, Waverly Taylor, Clarke Daniel, Wesley Buchanan, Lewis E. Breuninger and Donal L. Chamberlin.

Other Washington speakers will include Richard Gray, AFL; Harry Steidle, Prefabricated Home Manufacturers Institute; Richard F. Voell, Ingersoll Utility Units; T. B. King, director, VA Loan Guarantee Service; Asa Groves, VA; Omar Ketchum, VFW; Comdr. Robert Corry, Amvets; Miles Colean, economist, and Seward Mott of the Urban Land Institute.

Panel discussions and open forums where builders can ask questions and receive expert answers form an important part of the planned program.

Over one million dollars of latest home building materials and equipment will be on view.

James W. Pearson, executive director, and Ann Driscoll, assistant secretary-treasurer, Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, will also attend the convention.

A large contingent from NAHB national headquarters, located here, is scheduled to leave February 17 for Chicago.

Soft Seats, Too

'Big Top' Will Sport New Look This Year

By Richard L. Coe

THIS IS A MIDWINTER COLUMN on springtime frivolity, a book with practically no circulation and a statesmanly wink at Hollywood.

The springtime frivolity is the official news that THE circus—that is, the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus—will be here May 31.

What makes it official is that Melvin D. Hildreth says it will and he's the Capital's Voice of the Circus, official, unofficial and complete.

What's more, legal eagle Mel says that there will be foam-rubber seats, which is news indeed. They'll work on some sort of hydraulic principle, be all in one piece and so comfortable you'll think you're posing for one of those bed-linen ads. What a shame corpulent Phineas T. didn't live to see his circus fans squatting on foam rubber.

There's even more. The big top is to have a New Look. It's not going to be oblong or oval any more and it's not going to be a perfect square or a perfect circle. It's going to be elliptical, which means all the seats are going to be in front of the five rings. In other words, everywhere people sit will be the view perfect. Can you bear it?

Mel, whose law practice is his livelihood but to whom pink lemonade is ambrosia, says the big show will be passing through here from its winter headquarters in Florida at the end of March, bound for Madison Square Garden. After a month in Gotham, the show goes to Boston, Philly and then here. John Ringling North is now in Paris signing up new acts.

THE BOOK with practically no circulation is titled "Flying Fox," the name embossed in gold on fine leather binding. Its theme is how on a $6000 investment you can make a weekly profit of $944. For months, maybe even years, IF.

As in all pot o' gold programs, the IF is the big thing. This IF has to do with a play about Australia, a romantic comedy by Warren Cheney titled, of all things, "Flying Fox." Cheney wants to produce it with Jean Dalrymple, the pert gal who produced last week's "Burlesque."

LLOYD GEORGE

NORTH

The Army's former Captain Cheney cooked up his idea while on active service Down Under during the war. He tells what happened to a United States bomber crew during seven days' leave in Sydney. Before his war days, Cheney was a free lance radio and flick writer in Hollywood.

His illustrated refugee from the limited editions club is addressed to prospective angels, angels being noncombatants who back plays with hard cash. "Angeling" has become big business. Some 55 backers put in for "Command Decision," from $300 to $3000 each and by the end of its fourth week it began paying dividends. That was some 14 weeks ago. The angels of "Life with Father," of course, are the luckiest angels who ever lived.

What Cheney and Miss Dalrymple are doing in their book is laying their goods on the line. They quote such celebrities as big-league agent Annie Laurie Williams, Critic John Gassner and Star Aline MacMahon that "Flying Fox" is good goods. Then they break down production costs, running expenses and possible intake—up to the rainbow 100 per cent profit by the nineteenth week.

Always, of course, IF the play's a hit. Time will tell whether the few who'll be reading copies of this glowing prospectus will be glad they did or whether, life being what it is, they'll wonder what hit them.

THE STATESMANLY wink at Hollywood comes from the Earl of Dwyfor, Richard Lloyd George, son of Britain's World War I Prime Minister.

Dickie, as his friends call him, landed in New York this week, breathing hatred for Mr. Attlee's Labor Government, and said he was here for a six-month lecture tour. That's what he said.

What he's really here for is to see if a Hollywood producer will buy the idea of making a biographical picture based on his father's life history.

It would make quite a film, the eventful life of the Welshman who worked up from his bootstraps. The Welsh respected him and loved his wife, Dame Margaret. Their marriage startled Wales, not so much because he was poor and she was wealthy but because he was a Baptist and she a Methodist. Their children alternated chronologically between the two important Welsh denominations. Lloyd George held the parliamentary seat of Criccieth (pronounced cricket) for 55 years, a legislative record.

Some of Dickie's adventures would be part of the picture, too. He's an engineer and once, while his father was Prime Minister, he was going home from work looking like a bedraggled sandhog. A phalanx of bobbies were blocking suffragettes from Downing st. and when Dickie tried to break through by telling him he lived at No. 10, a bobby told him: "Yeah, 'n' I'm Mary Pickford. 'Op it."

In back of the Hollywood deal is the tangled will his father made on his deathbed. All the money went to his second wife and the responsibilities to the children. (There was a lot of money, for in one deal involving ownership of the London Chronicle, Lloyd George cleared eight million dollars).

Hence, money is needed to keep up the estate inherited by sister Megan (who now holds her father's seat in Parliament.) Whether Dickie will succeed in interesting Hollywood in the picture remains to be seen.

Manners in Music

There's a Right Time To Cough at a Concert

By Paul Hume

TODAY we want to talk about audiences and this letter from K. O. Glass seems to start things well enough:

"I wonder if it would be possible for you to call attention in some manner to the amazing and disconcerting habit Washington music 'lovers' have recently developed in using the interval between movements at Constitution Hall as a too-protracted period of talk and movement. With the exception of applause, the end of a work could hardly call forth a more complete breakdown in audience attention and courtesy.

"Cases in point are the recent concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra and Mr. Schnabel.

"I have attended concerts in almost every major city in the United States and have never before seen such a breach of music manners."

We agree completely with Mrs. Glass. It was particularly noticeable at Artur Rubinstein's recital this past week, when each movement of the Chopin B Flat Minor Sonata was followed by handclapping even though the pianist shook his head.

One Washington critic suggested that Rubinstein must expect that sort of thing now that he has broadened the scope of his audience appeal through the movies and a highly limited, "popular appeal" repertoire.

Not Movies Alone

ON SOME occasions we have a mixture of audiences gathered in one hall, with the bobby-soxers out in strength for Iturbi and, to a lesser extent, Rubinstein. But these audience differences cannot all be laid at the feet of the offending movies.

For instance, Dr. Potter had to ask the audience to hold their fire until the intermission of Handel's "Messiah" because they began clapping after each number, in violation of an unwritten law about conduct during oratorios.

And, to return to Artur Schnabel's program, which certainly attracted only the most serious music lovers, it was disgraceful to hear the conversation, coughing, and miscellaneous rumblings between the movements of the sonatas he played so movingly.

Let's take the business of coughing. Why is it that the coughing comes just at the quietest, and generally most beautiful moments of the concert? Not because the volume level of the music has dropped. It is far more likely that, popular taste being what it is, more people lose interest as the volume indicator drops. Losing interest, they cough.

A psychologist could tell you those 20 imitators are not coughing because they must. They are coughing because someone reminded them of the possibility.

FAVORITE STAGE scene screened: Eve Arden, as the possessive Olive Lashbrooke, and Eleanor Parker, as the dreamy Sally Middleton, in John van Druten's film version of his famed stage comedy, "The Voice of the Turtle," at the Warner

Have a Breath

SPEAKERS, singers and radio announcers often have to manage the voice over a slight tickle and they will tell you that the whole thing is a matter of habit. If, when you are tempted to cough or clear your throat, you will take a deep breath, slowly, and from way down around the diaphragm instead of right up at the top of your neck where most of you breathe most of the time, the whole idea of the cough will go away.

And, of course, if you really have a conscience about music, you will strangle the noise in a handkerchief or something equally handy, rather than disturb the entire gathering.

Then there are the late-comers. Always they seem to be with us, and who will deny that sometimes it is impossible not to be late. But believe me, the orchestra and conductor or the soloist is rarely behind time. If you are late, don't insist on being shown to your seat, and don't sit down and catch up on what's happened by asking your neighbors. And if you don't know where your seats are, please don't stand around in the aisle hoping for a streetcar to come along and show you.

Maybe Danny's Livin' Too Fast

By John Crosby

TEN years ago, Danny Thomas was working in Detroit taverns for a couple of bucks a night. Then he began hitting the night club circuit in Chicago, New York and Hollywood. When I was last in Hollywood, he was the most discussed new comedian in town and the people who were discussing him were his fellow professionals, a fairly difficult group to please. Several of them, including Jack Benny and Eddie Cantor, have called Thomas the freshest new voice in the business.

Today Thomas is getting checks from night clubs, the movie industry—he's made two pictures, "Unfinished Dance" and "The Big City"—and radio. He arrived in radio with a tremendous advance blast of publicity on his own program, "The Danny Thomas Show" (WTOP-CBS, 8:30 p.m. Fridays).

In light of the advance ballyhoo, I thought I must not have heard aright when I caught Thomas' first program. Thomas expended a good deal of energy but the show never quite got going. Subsequent programs have been better but they have not nearly lived up to Thomas' reputation. Perhaps it isn't a good idea to come to radio in the wake of such enthusiasm.

The Bright Touch

THOMAS sounds quite a lot like Bert Lahr and a little like George Jessel. That refers only to his voice. His material is quite different. He has a bright, satiric touch and appears to be dead against many of the contraptions of modern society, particularly the mechanical contraptions. "We're livin' too fast, I tell ya."

THOMAS

Like Ed Wynn, he enjoys inventing silly things (a cigarette lighter with attached matches, for instance). "I invented the shoelace. Then I had to invent the shoe. I invented the hat pin but the girls looked silly with holes in their heads so I invented the hat."

His humor is up-to-date, satric stuff and, thank heaven, he doesn't dwell on radio and the radio commercials, which are getting to be an awfully footsore subject. He can imitate anything from a Swiss bell-ringer to owls. He can sing more than passably and, in fact, sounds like a parody on Bing Crosby in his earlier days. All in all he has more talent than anyone quite deserves and it seems a shame the comedy doesn't come across better than it does.

The Crosby Theory

MY own theory concerning Thomas' failure is that he isn't quite adjusted to the tempo of radio. He's livin' too fast, to use one of his own sentences. Mr. T. whips through a bit of comedy and plunges into another while the listener is still trying to focus on the first one. He is using about four times as many ideas as are necessary, never quite exploiting any of them. Perhaps we radio listeners are stupider than night club audiences or possibly, because we can't see the comedian, we need the stage to be set in a little more detail. Or perhaps I just have a blind spot on Thomas. At any rate, I'm not going to turn in a minority report on him until he's been around a little longer. Who am I to contradict Jack Benny?

Strictly Qualitative

"VARIETY," which has long expressed sharp dissatisfaction with quantitative radio ratings such as the Hooper, has taken the initiative in publishing a qualitative radio rating compiled by Dick Mansfield, an independent research man. The Hooper rating merely counts noses; the Mansfield rating is a reasonably professional judgment of the program's script, performance, production, advertising and music. Sixty-five of the best known radio editors in the country were polled in this rating.

The first week of the experiment brought an interesting rearrangement of the Hooper ratings. The first 15 were in order, Bing Crosby, Amos 'n' Andy, Fibber McGee and Molly, Lux Radio Theater, Fred Allen, Godfrey's Talent Scouts, Jack Benny, Duffy's Tavern, Edgar Bergen, Walter Winchell, Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Red Skelton, Bob Hope and the Screen Guild Theater.

These, of course, are the familiar old names. There was a reason for this. The radio editors couldn't judge every show on the air, so Mansfield asked their opinions of the top 15 on the Hooper list. However, there was space at the bottom for write-in votes and five programs drew strong support. They were Candid Microphone, Ozzie and Harriet, Fred Waring, Percy Faith and Studio One. One of the top Hooper shows, Bob Hope, was so weak on the editor's poll that it may drop off the list entirely.

Joan's a Schoolma'am Next

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—Jerry Wald postponed "Until Proven Guilty" so he could put "Common Ground," starring Joan Crawford, on the screen now. The latter is the tale of a school teacher and her struggle against juvenile delinquency. The timeliness of the subject made Jerry rush it into production. Incidentally, Wald, who produced "Johnny Belinda," has been doing nipups since the sneak preview of the picture. He thinks he has an Academy Award winner in Jane Wyman.

Where There's Hope, There're Gags Like This

BOB HOPE, the honorary Mayor of Palm Springs, worked in a picture with chesty Jane Russell recently, but still more recently returned to a picture with his regular leading lady, Dorothy Lamour.

"I guess I don't look like so much after Russell," Dotty said to him the day Bob came back. For emphasis, she walked back and forth in front of him in her latest "old look" sarong. Hope yawned. "Hello, boy," he said.

JANE RUSSELL

DOTTY LAMOUR

"The Saintly Miss Peters," about a school teacher, is in preparation at Metro for Greer Garson, and John Garfield is dusting off "Deborah," still another teacher story. It will be produced by the same setup that turned out "Body and Soul," with—John hopes—Rosalind Russell.

Roz is flattered that Louis Bromfield wants her to do "The Green Bay Tree," but she had to say no to the offer. She wants comedy. She went to San Francisco to see her father-in-law, Carl Brisson, in action. "He held his audience spellbound for 55 minutes," said Roz. "And when he introduced me at the end of the performance, he made me feel like a queen. The Statler Hotel people want to sign him for another five years."

Fun in the Sun

NOEL COWARD spent a day on Alfred Hitchcock's "Rope" set. I asked why he didn't write an original screen play and produce it with Hitch. Said Noel, "I'm not writing anything until after Gertie Lawrence and Graham Payne open in 'Tonight at 8:30' on Broadway February 20. Then I'm off to the West Indies sun. While there I will let beautiful thoughts ooze out of me and into my next book."

Dore Schary is reading Jimmy Savo's story, "Barnaby," which Frank Sinatra wants to do on the screen. Savo will be here to confer with Sinatra.

Bob Young's independent outfit has offered Paramount $75,000 for "The Gauntlet." The story was first optioned by RKO as a starring vehicle for Bob, then Paramount bought it with the hope of getting Lew Ayres for the lead. It's a wonderful story of a Protestant minister, written by James Street. . . . Leo McCarey wanted to get the reactions of real guys, so he invited an entire road construction gang working near his home in for dinner and showed them a preview of "Good Sam." They gave the picture their okay.

Pretty Good

RONALD COLMAN was amused when UCLA's Alpha Gamma Delta sorority picked him as the handsomest man on the screen. Hope you didn't miss the Colmans on Jack Benny's air show. I asked Ronnie why he and Benita didn't have their own program. "Because we have no Benny, Rochester, situations, or Jack's writers," replied he.

Veronica Lake took the role in "Sainted Sisters" that nobody wanted and turned out to be the sensational comic of Paramount. She said, "Why didn't I get that hair out of my eyes and start this career sooner?"

Sam Goldwyn tied in a plug for "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" with our safety campaign. At important intersections here, signs are stenciled on the sidewalks: "Don't be a Mitty—watch traffic lights." The same thing was being planned in San Francisco; then it was suddenly called off. Officials there were afraid people might think it meant Archbishop Mitty, who is beloved but is a careless pedestrian. . . . Barbara Eiler, Dennis Day's girl friend on his air show, is about to be signed by Paramount.

John Ford deserves his popularity. "The Three Godfathers," which he is making for Metro, will be dedicated to the late Harry Carey, who played in the original version for John. In the present one, Harry Carey, jr., plays his father's role. John Wayne and Pedro Armendariz will be the other godfathers. Young Carey served with Ford in the Navy, and this role should make him a star, as it did his father. John Ford never forgets a friend.

Metro is to be congratulated on getting Louis de Rochemont to sign a contract. . . . When Andre de Toth finishes directing Lizabeth Scott in "Pitfall," he moves to Paramount for Liz' next, "Paid in Full," for Hal Wallis. . . . Joel McCrea and Frances Dee spread good will during their New York visit. They are nice people.

It'll Be 'Blossom Time' Tonight at the National

Here are Elizabeth Houston and Everett Marshall, who are opening tonight in "Blossom Time" at the National Theater

"BLOSSOM TIME" is probably the only opperetta with a score whose melodies are more than a century old.

The music of this operatta, which opens tonight at the National Theater with Everett Marshall singing its songs, was arranged by Sigmund Romberg. But Romberg has been quick to acknowledge his indebtedness to a short bespectacled Viennese school teacher's son named Franz Schubert. Schubert is also the subject of the "Blossom Time" libretto written by the late Dorothy Donnelly.

This formula, the merging of a songwriter's life and music, has tempted other writers. The music of Edward Grieg, for example, was woven around a song-and-dance biography of the composer. Librettists have lately aimed their typewriters at the life of Tchaikovsky.

The movies of course have followed the formula frequently. Using the folios of composers, they have filmed the lives of Gershwin, Kern and Stephen Foster. At the moment they are contemplating the fabulous life of Lorenz Hart, the late collaborator of Richard Rodgers. Even Gilbert and Sullivan have had their lives and songs adapted for the footlights.

Heading the current production of "Blossom Time" in addition to Marshall are Marion Stevens, Harold R. Brown, Anthony Blair, Elizabeth Houston, Rosalie Lynn, Patricia Boyer, Zella Russell and Harry K. Morton.

"Blossom Time" had its American debut at the Wilbur Theater, April 1921. It was Bertram Peacock who first impersonated Franz Schubert. At one time there were nine facsimiles of "Blossom Time" roaming the countryside. And for a historic moment, there were two companies playing it on Broadway within a radius of 10 blocks.

They Don't Really Yell, Lights! Camera! Action!

By Bob Thomas

Hollywood, Feb. 7 (AP).—"Hey, Ameche, invented anything lately?"

For several years, Don Ameche has had to put up with that kind of repartee. His supposed inventing prowess has been the butt of radio comics: Fred Allen even needled him on 17 consecutive shows. Says Don:

"All that publicity hasn't hurt my career, but it amazes me how it still goes on. Actually, I only played one inventor—Alexander Graham Bell."

This brought to mind other popular misconceptions about Hollywood. Here I go in an effort to set the record straight:

Fancy—That movie scenes are started by "Lights! Camera! Action!"

Fact—The signal for lighting is "Light Your Arcs" or "Light 'em All." Then "Roll 'em" (start the camera), "Speed" (camera speed is reached), "Action."

Fancy—That Monty Woolley is a native of England, Adolphe Menjou of France, Roy Rogers of the West.

Fact—Woolley was born in New York City, Menjou in Pittsburgh, Pa., Rogers in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Fancy—That Sam Goldwyn is part of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Fact—Goldwyn left MGM in 1924, has been an independent producer ever since.

Fancy—That all movie stars are rich.

Fact—Many of the old-line stars are wealthy, fabulously so. But lots of the newcomers are just slightly better off than you or I. Income taxes, you know. Plus heavy expenses and iron-clad contracts signed when they were unknown.

Fancy—Movie studios are in Hollywood.

Fact—Some are, but mostly they are spread around in Westwood, Burbank, and Culver, Universal and Studio cities.

Successor to USO Starts Work in Vet Hospitals

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—Veterans' Hospital Camp Shows, Inc., swung into action this week to continue the entertainment of the war-wounded. The hospital section of the USO-Camp Shows provided the entertainment until that organization disbanded last December 31.

The new organization was formed by 23 outfits, representing all phases of stage, screen and radio. Broadway and Hollywood professionals worked hard for the past three weeks to whip the first schedule into shape.

Eight streamlined revues and two legitimate comedies began operation this week in scattered parts of the country. The units will continue for five months in a complete swing around the veterans' hospitals. Then they will be replaced by new shows.

The 10 units premiered at Percy Jones Hospital Center, Battle Creek, Mich; Fitzsimmons General Hospital, Denver; Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Tex.; the United States Naval Hospital, St. Albans, N. Y., and the Veterans' Administration hospitals at Fayetteville, Ark.; Livermore, Calif.; Alexandria, La.; Kecoughtan, Va.; Columbia, S. C., and Butler, Pa.

Two of the revue units were put together by experienced directors on the West Coast and the others were done here in New York.

The two plays that the veterans will be seeing are Norman Krasna's "John Loves Mary," still running on Broadway after a year, and Ring Lardner's old "June Moon." A special cast was recruited for the former after the authors and the producers, Oscar Hammerstein and Richard Rodgers released the rights, but the "June Moon" company moved over intact from the Equity Library Theater.

Metropolitan—"Albuquerque," a Technicolor western with Randolph Scott, Gabby Hayes and Barbara Britton, opens Thursday.

Columbia—"The Mark of Zorro," a reissue of Tyrone Power's hit with Linda Darnell makes these Powerful days on F st., opens Thursday.

Little—"Shoe Shine" is breaking records and "Johnny Frenchmen" probably will wait for weeks yet.

Hippodrome—"I Know Where I'm Going" eventually will be followed by a revival of "That Hamilton Woman," with Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh.

Next Offering At National, 'Pick-Up Girl'

ELSA SHELLEY's play, "Pick-Up Girl," will open at the National Theater for the week commencing Monday evening, February 16.

PEGGY ANN

In the title role will be young Peggy Ann Garner, who won an Academy Award for her performance in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," and has since appeared in numerous other films.

Following its six months' run on Broadway, "Pick-Up Girl" has garnered an international reputation.

Staged in a replica of a juvenile court, the story involves a 15-year-old embryo "pick-up girl," Elizabeth Collins, who has been trapped in a compromising position with a 47-year-old man, in what she insists was only her second transgression.

Although poverty and a yearning for nice things are revealed as contributing causes, in the end it is the parents who stand indicted and it is apparent that understanding and a closer relationship between mother and daughter could have prevented the tragedy.

Students of Ballet To Do 'Cinderella' Next Weekend

Students of the Washington School of Ballet will present "Cinderella" as the season's second offering of the Children's Theater of Washington. "Cinderella" will open next Friday at 8:30 p. m. and will be repeated the following afternoon at 2:30 in the Roosevelt High School auditorium.

A third performance of the ballet, to music by Tschaikowsky, will be given Saturday afternoon, February 21, on the same stage.

These offerings of the group are sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department.

Kerr to Speak Friday

"The Future of American Stage and Screen" will be discussed by Walter Kerr, associate professor in the speech and drama department at Catholic University, at the February meeting of the Charles Carroll Forum in the Mayflower Hotel next Friday at 8:15 p. m.

Schwartz Will Play 'Shylock' Here

Maurice Schwartz and his celebrated Yiddish Art Theater company will appear at the National Theater for two performances Sunday, February 22, matinee and evening, in his latest vehicle, "Shylock and His Daughter."

The play, written by the Hebrew novelist and poet, Ari Ibn-Zahav, has been adapted from the same sources used by Shakespeare for "The Merchant of Venice."

The author points out that Shakespeare's Shylock is a legendary figure and that the bard had had no knowledge of Jewish life since, up to his time, England had known no Jews for 300 years. The story now is told from the sympathetic viewpoint of Shylock.

The Schwartz production opened in New York last fall and is now embarked on a nationwide tour. In the supporting cast will be some of the leading figures of the American Yiddish stage, including Anatole Winogradoff, Dina Halpern, Charlotte Goldstein, Gustave Berger and Muni Serebroff. Joseph Rumshinsky has composed music for the play, which has been directed by Schwartz.

Szigeti to Play Prokofieff Sonata

IMPORTANT events of the week: Washington premiere of Prokofieff's violin sonata, played by Szigeti; Anne Brown's recital Friday, a benefit for Inspiration House; local debut of Christopher Lynch, Irish tenor, Wednesday; return of the Guillet Quartet to the Library of Congress (they are the quartet who had to give an encore at their last concert—and that's unheard of); Doda Conrad's superb program tomorrow night at the Phillips; Burl Ives' first local concert, and the coming of the renowned St. Olaf Choir in a sterling program under Olaf Christiansen tomorrow.

Christiansen

Evelyn Davis' Dance Playhouse is giving some of its finest works in Lisner this Friday. All proceeds from the recital go to George Washington University for the establishment of a series of dance recitals in that theater, which should be ideal for them. Doctor to the Dead, Ladies of the Broken Heart, Penitentes, and others associated with Miss Davis make the evening one of great promise.

Ballet Soiree, Washington's own ballet company, will give its next performance Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. at Cafritz Auditorium, 16th and Q sts. nw. Guest soloist will be Maria Theresa Acuna, considered one of the great Spanish dancers of our time.

Paul Robeson, noted baritone and actor, will give a recital Thursday evening, the 12th, at Turner's Arena. The concert will begin at 8:30 p. m., and is a benefit for the Citizens' Committee for Cafeteria Workers.

Robeson was heard here last fall, and announced at that time that he would shortly return to the concert field almost exclusively.

Those of you who go to concerts have by now been given slips about Music-Q, a monthly magazine listing musical events and programs for Washington and surrounding areas. Information about this useful paper can be had from Box 6767, Washington 20.

Richard Bales, music director of the National Gallery, has been invited to conduct the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra in April. This is the first time in over a decade that the orchestra's baton, usually handled by Henry Cowles Whitehead, will have been turned over to a guest conductor.

THE Army Band which plays here on Wednesday evenings, gives a concert this Thursday right smack in Carnegie Hall. Guest conductor Morton Gould will be on hand, with Lucy Monroe to sing the "Star-Spangled Banner," and Washington's Charlton Meyers, pianist with the band, as soloist.

Another concert in the Jewish Music Festival brings Abrasha Robofsky to the Cafritz Auditorium tonight, together with Irma Taishoff, soprano; George Steiner, violinist; Harold Hirsch, pianist; Batya Heller, dancer, and two choruses. 8:30 p. m.

National Civic Opera Company announces auditions for singers Wednesday, from 8 to 10, and Saturday from 2 to 4. Place: New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, studio of Charles Dana Beaschler. Four operas in mind include Marriage of Figaro, Don Pasquale, Old Maid and the Thief, and The Devil and Daniel Webster. Bring your own music for the audition.

Angela Diller, music educator and lecturer, will speak on four subjects connected with music teaching. Tomorrow and Tuesday at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Mu Phi Epsilon and Sigma Alpha Iota join tomorrow evening for a program meeting at the Women's City Club.

Music-takes-us-around-these-days item: Before the Ballet opening this week we heard Pearson Thal playing the Grieg concerto with his orchestra in the Mayflower Lounge. This is real piano playing, sometimes straight, and sometimes hepped up just a little. With an orchestra that switches from saxophones to flutes and clarinet, Thal turns out music that is good preluding for concerts later in the evening. —P. H.

Lit'ry Folk Demonstrate A Knowledge of Music

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—When music entered literature in the good old days, it was "Spring Song," "Moonlight Sonata," "Humoresque" or "One Fine Day," and never a composer mentioned. Novelists attend more concerts in our times, and here's what they've heard in recently published books:

In John Cobb's "The Gesture," Major Harris buys a recording of the Beethoven Seventh. Lieutenant Whipple, one of his officers, attends a London concert where an Elgar composition and the same Beethoven are played. Says Whipple, correctly, I'm sure, though he doesn't name the Elgar: "I had liked the Beethoven but not the Elgar. I never got tired of Beethoven."

In F. L. Green's "A Flask for the Journey," there are several musical selections. A Czech imprisoned by the Germans plays Chopin's nocturne in C minor and works by Brahms, Debussy and Dvorak. Brahms' Fourth symphony and Rachmaninoff's Second piano concerto are played at a concert; at still another concert, the Rachmaninoff is heard again, along with Debussy's nocturne "Fetes." And there is a recording of the "Rasoumovsky" quartet in C major.

In Vivian Connell's "The Golden Sleep," Margaret asks Calvin whether he'd like to hear a broadcast of Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 in F minor.

In Kenneth S. Davis' "The Years of the Pilgrimage," Mrs. Galbraith's radio-phonograph plays Brahms' trio No. 1 in B major. In Bryan S. Morgan's "Vain Citadels," Starling looks forward to a church service which he hopes will include some Bach. In Hermann Broch's trilogy, "The Sleepwalkers," Dr. Kessel plays Brahms' 'cello Sonata in E Minor, op. 38.

But maybe Truman Capote is the most specific of all. In "Other Voices, Other Rooms," he speaks of "the rasping F of the bumblebees."

Stories and Articles About the Opera

MILTON CROSS' COMPLETE STORIES OF THE GREAT OPERAS. (Doubleday; $3.75.)

Of all the voices with which the "Met's" immense radio audience is familiar, probably none is so well known as that of Cross. If you like his facile commentary, you'll like this book. It deals with 72 operas and contains brief and elementary articles on ballet, opera history and how to enjoy an opera.

Please Mind Your Manners At the Concert

ferences in this province. Suppose you are absolutely swept away by the power or brilliance, or beauty of what you have just heard. Let yourself go. If you want to shout for Pinza, don't feel that it is not polite. When music means as much to us as food, we will react to it more physically than we do now. I'll admit it is more of a problem to know where to put the tears which certain incredibly profound works and rarely beautiful performances bring out, but they are as honest a response, and your suggestions will be welcome.

As to how to attend to music with which you are unfamiliar, don't worry about it. Don't feel that you are lacking in intelligence, understanding or musicianship if the first hearing or the tenth fails to produce some familiar result in your mental or emotional makeup.

But please, how about a little politeness in case the music fails to attract or hold your attention. Not long ago the Philadelphia Orchestra played Samuel Barber's new ballet score, "Medea." During this exciting, dissonant and vigorous music, there were those who, failing to respond to it favorably (a legitimate failing) responded by talking, laughing out loud and ridiculing the work. Such attitudes brand one as unintelligent where no failure to appreciate a work of music could.

Some Are Good

THERE are some wonderful audiences in Washington. We have four principal places for outstanding concerts in town: Constitution Hall, the Library of Congress and the Phillips and National Galleries. Week after week hundreds of people crowd the latter three halls. They have often stood in line for hours to hear some of the world's greatest chamber music. Or they have gone to the hall an hour ahead of concert time in order to have a good seat for free concerts.

These audiences, by their rapt attention, and in view of the high level of repertoire maintained in these places, stamp themselves as Washington's most alert, intelligent audiences. There is no disturbing element of money, social stratification or other outside distraction.

But Constitution Hall has its good audiences, too. Let's see. There are rather clear distinctions among the various groups gathering there. There is the orchestra audience, rather the same in character whether it is the National Symphony, the Philadelphia or the Boston playing. Then there are the piano lovers, the specialists in singers, and the stringed instrumentalists. These three sometimes overlap. There used to be opera fans, but they have given up, as have the opera companies, for lack of space, staging and the other complicating factors in Constitution Hall.

She Done 'Em Wrong

BALLET audiences are constant and unique. They often have little regard for other forms of music, and one of them said in a loud voice the other night, "That orchestra is lousy. I wouldn't give them 165 cents." That lady should have known that almost half the orchestra for ballets is composed of the regular ballet orchestra, the rest added from the National Symphony.

The National Symphony Orchestra is playing brilliantly this season, and thoroughly deserving of her miserly support. But she is not the kind of listener from whom the orchestra will get its needed $165,000, if it gets it.

Now if you are really curious, drop around Wednesday evening to hear Joseph Szigeti play Sergei Prokofieff's new sonata for violin and piano. Szigeti himself says, "One movement is the ugliest thing going." And then comes a lyrical movement like something out of Puccini, followed by a fast, gay finale. That would give you the chance to get there on time, not cough, and try out your reaction to a new work plus some older favorites.

Swedish Opera Prize Awarded

A competition for a new Swedish opera to be performed at the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Royal Opera House in Stockholm on September 19, 1948, has now been decided. The first prize, worth about $2500, was won by the Swedish composer, Kurt Atterberg, for his work "The Tempest," based on Shakespeare's drama. The second prize, valued at $850, went to a 79-year-old professor of music, Ernest Ellberg.

Atterberg's opera is not only based upon the drama by the same name, but follows the text almost word for word. Ariel is a light soprano, Prospero a bass baritone, and Caliban, the savage slave, a basso. Some parts, especially the comic ones, are spoken with a musical background. Atterberg, who was born in 1887, is the composer of four operas, eight symphonies and many violin and piano concertos.

The second prize winner, Professor Ellberg, who used to be a teacher at the Music Academy, has been working on his opera for more than 50 years.

Lynch Sings Nine Very Irish Songs

THE MINSTREL BOY. Christopher Lynch, with John Wummer, flute; Leonard Rose, cello, and Laura Newell, harp. Music arranged by Normand Lockwood. Columbia 722. $4.75. One of the rising singers of our times, whose eventual place in singing history is not yet known, Christopher Lynch makes his Columbia record debut in nine Irish songs.

LYNCH

He will also make his first Washington appearance Thursday evening in Constitution Hall. On that occasion he will sing at least three of the nine songs contained in this album. Others will undoubtedly appear among his encores.

This album contains the mistaken legend that an Irish tenor must sing Irish songs. Some of these are beautiful, for instance, the Palatine's Daughter, and the Young May Moon; others are trite. Most of them are helped by the ingenious yet simple accompaniments worked out by Normand Lockwood. Harp, flute and cello give much of the true atmosphere for the songs. Recording is good, and Lynch's voice sounds better than on any previous recording.

BRUCH: Scottish Fantasy. Jascha Heifetz, with Victor Symphony Orchestra, under William Steinberg. Victor 1183. $4. Max Bruch is best known for his G Minor Concerto, a work in the repertoire of every violinist of repute, and played by most students of the instrument.

That Bruch was greatly taken by Scottish legends and history is proven by his large score, The Cross of Fire, based on Sir Walter Scott's Lady of the Lake, and this present Scottish Fantasy. (Sopranos might well investigate the "Ave Maria" from the Cross of Fire when they want something worth working on, provided they have a pianissimo high A flat.)

The Scottish Fantasy for violin and orchestra has emerged from complete oblivion. It would do well to hasten back into outer darkness. There are some lush passages, and a bit of pyrotechnicality. But who cares? It is no secret that Heifetz can play like this. It is also no secret that Victor can and does put out a really scratchy surface when they feel like it.

TSCHAIKOWSKY: Francesca da Rimini. Boston Symphony Orchestra under Serge Koussevitsky. Victor 1179. $4. Up to the present, Sir Thomas Beecham and his London Philharmonic had the best and most exciting (or are the two synonymous?) recording of this windy piece.

Now a formidable rival enters the lists. Having entered, it rides to victory on expert cohesion and a superb sense of the climactic moments of the piece. The tone of the orchestra is as magnificent as ever. For me, I find the first part dull and the last part so lush I love it. Surfaces could be better, but the recorded tone could not be improved.

WEINBERGER: Polka and Fugue from Schwanda, the Bagpiper. Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra under Dmitri Mitropoulos. Victor 12-0019. $1. Last year Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra put out a better recording of this music. Their tone is clearer, the motion of the fugue more distinctly outlined, and the whole recording more impressive. Also the final capitulation of the fugue, where the polka enters in extended form, with full orchestra and organ, has a great sense of excitement. All of these qualities are lacking from this Victor release. Too bad.

WALDTEUFEL: Espana; also: Pierne: Entrance of the Little Fauns. Carnegie Pops Orchestra under Walter Hendl. Columbia 7591-M. $1.25. Two old favorites on pops concerts and high school orchestral programs. They are well enough played until you compare them with recordings of the same things by Boston Pops. Fiedler is better at this kind of thing than Hendl shows himself.

Why do we need these little accidents when there are so many unusual, beautiful and seldom heard gems in miniature which would make much more inviting single discs? Works of Purcell, Handel, Faure, Roger-Ducasse, Vaughan Williams and hundreds of other composers. Let's not keep on making the same things over and over (Research shows that there are five recordings of each of these things.) Besdies which, we hear them constantly on radio and muzak.—P. H.

Met Announces Spring Itinerary

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (U.P.).—The Metropolitan Opera Company has announced the itinerary of its spring tour, the most extensive one in 43 years.

Starting as usual in Boston, March 15 to 20, the company will return to New York for its customary post-season week, March 22 to 27, and then will visit the following cities in order:

Baltimore, Richmond, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Memphis, Dallas, Los Angeles, Denver, Lincoln, Nebr.; St. Louis, University of Indiana (Bloomington), Minneapolis, Cleveland and Rochester. The tour ends in Rochester on May 17.

The company will be in Los Angeles for 12 days, the longest stand of the tour. It will be the first visit to Los Angeles since 1905.

Pick Good One, Stick With It: That Goes for Print Paper, Too

By Ollie Atkins

THE final product in photography is the print and photographic papers are the materials from which the print is made. This column today discusses the various types, grades and surfaces of photo papers.

The big names in manufacturers of photographic papers are Kodak, Ansco, Defender, Haloid, Dassonville.

Main items which differentiate the various papers are: stock weight, surface type and degree of contrast.

I have been in the photographic business for nearly 15 years and still I have not tried even a third of the various types of printing papers on the market.

It costs money to keep many varied types of paper in your darkroom, and your waste will mount if you jump from one type to another.

Just as you standardize your film and general darkroom procedure, standardize your use of printing papers.

Print your pictures on glossy paper, single weight—either contact or small projections. From these select the few good ones—all the big name photographers toss out 90 per cent of their negatives, so don't you feel bad if the really good photographs are few and far between. When you do have a beautiful picture be sure to print it perfectly on large heavy weight paper.

Seagulls hovering greedily, awaiting a chance to snatch away the food another gull is gulping, make a striking picture within the possibilities of all cameras with shutter speeds of 1/100th second and up

As for stock weights—there are double weights, very heavy, thick papers and expensive, and single weights, regular grade for most prints. (Very thin special purpose papers will not be discussed here.)

Find the variety to suit your personal taste in the many emulsion surfaces on the market. The "long hair" boys like very rough surfaces and the "crew-cut" lads stick to single weight glossy. The most widely used surface is the "glossy" type. The pictorialist like semi-matte and matte surfaces. Many photographers insist that a tweed, silk or canvas emulsion effect will add a certain something.

Contrast in printing papers has become very standard now with most popular types of paper availalbe in four to six degrees of contrast.

Select photographic paper which meets your needs best and expose, develop and process it carefully.

BILL Buford of the Ford Photo Supply Co. says he has a revolutionary new cut film holder which he plans to put on the market shortly. Made for 4x5 and 5x7 cut films, the new holder will weigh about the same as three ordinary holders but will contain 36 sheets of film, whereas the present day holders accommodate just two sheets. The new model which will retail for about $30, and be available as soon as patent rights are cleared.

Currently on display at the United States National Museum is an exhibition of pictorial photographs by Dr. Sidney S. Jaffe, of Washington. The pictures will be on view through February 29 in the Arts and Industries Building, northwest gallery, Ninth and Jefferson dr.

Sam Solomon, formerly with the Ritz Camera Centers, announces he is now manager of the Camera Department at Ballard's, 13th and G sts. nw.

Eugene D. Yates, 4009 Davis pl. nw., has written us relative to the recent column on how amateur photographers can make money with their pictures:—

"There is a market for most any kind of photograph which is good and clear . . . If you don't know how to market your work, come to see me. Bring some samples of your work and we will market them for you on a commission basis. So photographers we say . . . go out and get you some models and do creative photography and make money at the rate of $500 to $600 per month."

News photography and taking spot news pictures will be discussed at the monthly meeting of the National Photographic Society on Wednesday at the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution at 8:15 p. m. Speaker will be Andrew May, past president of the White House News Photographers Association.

The color section of the society will meet on February 18 to view color pictures shown by B. Anthony Stewart of the National Geographic Magazine.

ARTHUR J. SMITH of 921 N. Wayne st., Arlington, has requested information on three-dimensional projectors. There have been three-dimensional systems for both movie and still projection. The systems have been based for the most part on stereoscopic principles. They generally employ two polarizing filters, one set horizontally and the other vertically for picture-taking purposes. When these images are projected, they are viewed through correspondingly crossed spectacles having polarized lenses.

There is the new Lenticulated screen now being employed in the so-called three-dimensional methods of photographic reproduction. This screen has many little ridges which separate the image into two parts.

A. E. Fletcher of Waldorf, Md., has a Plainbel Makina camera brought from Germany by his nephew, who found it in a demolished house. It has an F/2.9 lens in Compur shutter with screw-in filters and other lenses. Fletcher complains that he can't figure out just how to use the camera inasmuch as it has a 35-mm. adapter back. My advice is to trace a 35-mm. frame on the proper section of the ground-glass back and focus the camera with the various lenses to see if it will focus with the lenses you have on this section. Maybe one of our readers will have one of these unusual cameras and will write in with more advice on using it.

A MODERATELY priced slide projector which will accommodate all slide sizes from 35 millimeters up to and including 3¼x4 inches is announced by the Kimac Co. of Old Greenwich, Conn. A novel accessory lens for the projector permits low-cost reduction of the standard 8-inch focal length lens to 6 inches in order to yield larger images.

The Eastman Kodak Co. introduces a badly needed series of snapshot albums in a wide variety of styles and covers, and in color combinations which happily break away from the old conventional black pages.

The Kodak Thermount Iron for dry mounting of prints is also back on the market. The small iron is useful for quick mounting of album or exhibition prints without all the muss of paste or cement.

Another new accessory marketed recently by Eastman is a metal cable release equipped with a shutter plug that is longer than the length of its maximum travel. Thus, with a part of the plug always housed, the old nuisance of bending or snagging during operation is minimized. It will fit most cable release sockets.

Monogram Films Ready

The first 6 of 36 Monogram motion picture features, for which Post Pictures Corp., has acquired exclusive 16-millimeter distribution rights, have been released and are available for rental through film libraries and dealers.

The six titles are "Dawn on the Great Divide"; "Isle of Missing Men"; "Ghosts on the Loose"; "The Stranger from Pecos"; "Rhythm Parade," and "Silent Witness."

Colored Chalk Can Be Used To Darken Picture Prints

THE use of artists' chalk to darken light areas of a print is a method of print control which can be learned by any amateur with the inclination to practice, according to Harvey Falk, a New York amateur photographer.

The equipment required for the chalking process can be bought at any art supply store for approximately 50 cents, Falk says.

The necessary materials are one piece each of blue, brown or sepia, black and purple chalk; a box of fine powdered pumice; a piece of soft kneaded eraser and a box of absorbent cotton.

The chalks of suitable colors are scraped and blended to match the tone of the print. A small amount of pumice is added to lighten the tone and to give "tooth" to the print surface so it will respond to the processing.

Using a wad of cotton, a small quantity of the blended chalk is rubbed lightly over the surface of the print area which is to be darkened. Small areas are chalked with cotton swabs or chamois or paper stumps.

To pick up high lights in the chalked area, the substance is rubbed away with the moulded eraser. Then the excess chalk is removed from the print by wiping with clean cotton.

There are two schools which are considerably at variance over the best method for fixing the chalk permanently into the print. Falk belongs to the steaming school, and advocates the fixing be done by permitting steam from a kettle to come in contact with the chalked area for a few seconds. Others hold that fixing is best accomplished by drawing the print quickly through a plain water bath.

In any event, the object of the fixing process is to draw the chalk down into the paper emulsion, and eliminate all traces of the chalking. After the print is dry, Falk says, it should be mounted and waxed with a good grade of print wax.

New Camera For Women Is Available

AN INEXPENSIVE new instrument for women who want a 2¼ by 2¼ reflex type camera with the ready-set operating simplicity of a box model has just been announced by the Eastman Kodak Co.

Known as the Kodak Duaflex, this camera incorporates the latest picture-taking improvements, including built-in flash synchronization. With its flasholder it is possible to take good pictures of the children or family at any time—day or night, indoors or out.

The camera takes 12 pictures on each roll of black-and-white 620 film or nine color snapshots per roll. It features a large, brilliant viewfinder which gives a "preview" of the picture in nearly full size.

A good ready-set camera for youngsters, the camera is set for picture taking at 6 feet to infinity, but can be adapted for close-ups with the use of an accessory lens for snapshots when the subject is as near as 3 feet. It costs about $11.75.

Revised Booklets On Photography Being Distributed

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Revised editions of two Ansco booklets for amateur photographers, "Better Photography Made Easy" and "Developing and Printing Made Easy," are being distributed to dealers for sale.

Although the cover pictures and size of the booklets are the same as last year's editions, the texts have been revised and all inside illustrations have been changed to make photography "so easy a child could follow it," according to the writers.

"Better Photography Made Easy" has new sections on "Choosing a Camera," "Simple Trick Pictures," and print mounting. A page of new drawings shows camera parts and lenses.

Changes in "Developing and Printing Made Easy" include directions for processing sheet film and film packs and an Ansco film developing chart.

Fan Mail's Not All Posies

By Sonia Stein

NOT so long ago a greeting card company began turning out ready-made fan mail to be sent to radio stars. Complete with pastel roses, orchids, daisies, bears, kittens, scottie dogs, birds, bees, disheveled gamins and slick chicks, the sentiments were straightforward and folksy. Each one a little gem. To wit:

"I go for your show
I honestly do,
And the best thing about it
Is Y-O-U."

"I like your program, it's lots of fun,
It helps me get my housework done,
It lightens my cares 'n' brightens my day—
In fact—it's swell in every way!"

"You're sure one entertainer
Who is really tops with me,
And each performance that you give
Is grand as it can be."

"Your program's so good 'n' you are too,
I had t' write this note t' you—
T' let you know that I've just made
You number one on my hit parade!"

For fans whose minds bumble along at that speed, grammar askew and thoughts in a rut, the cards were fine. But despite canard to the contrary, all radio fans are not so simple of heart and head.

The literary among them had still to coin their own phrases of love and endearment, admiration and praise. And coin them they did, producing purple prose and verse.

Herewith some recent samples from the mountains of mail that pour into radio stations.

Little Black Diamonds

THE first, from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, to Albert Warner, WOL news chief, was inspired (no other word will do) by a Warner broadcast allegedly describing a travelogue he'd been given by a taxi driver en route to the Capital.

"My Dear Albert:

"On Saturday night, at some inconvenience to myself, I turned on the radio, expecting to hear the mellifluous tones of your voice giving a resume of the week's happenings in Washington. You may judge my intellectual consternation when I found that I was literally being taken for a ride . . . I was constantly aware that while the discourse was supposed to emanate from an anonymous taxicab driver, the voice I heard was the voice of Esau. I mean Albert Warner.

"All of this, Albert, is merely by way of saying that I think you missed your calling. As a rickshaw man in the Orient, you would have made a marvelous success. Any opulent Sassenach world traveler visiting the Orient would employ you by the month, not to push him about, but to recline with him 'neath the shade of a ginkgo tree while you regale him with essential facts concerning the world and the universe; how deep is the sea; how far are the heavens; why the grass is green, and why an infant's eyes are blue . . . to which you could make immediate, if somewhat romantic answer.

'These Feeble Words . . .'

"SUCH talent as you possess should not remain in obscurity and be known to but comparatively few. It deserves recognition of the highest degree; and I felt that I could not permit another sun to set until I had made known to you, through the instrumentality of these feeble words, the deep and durable impression which you made upon me, when, because of the paucity of news, you permitted your listening public to have a glimpse of a far-soaring intellect at work."

Etc., winding up with a luncheon invitation when Lewis could "accumulate the necessary rupees."

Needless to say, Lewis and Warner are old friends.

But Florence, the girl disc jockey, who does the wake-up show on WGAY, has among her admirers a poet whom she has never seen.

Labyrinthine and Rococo

IN FACT, he has seen his "Red-Corpuscled and Freckled Reincarnation of Ishtar . . . Most Blessed Little Lady of Levity and Skylarking" only once, and at a distance, at the Silver Spring carnival this fall.

Joe, as he rather flatly signs himself, wrote 10 pages of coruscant, impassioned, labyrinthine poetry, teeming with classical allusions and all in rococo longhand to the girl "whose coolness inflameth, whose laughter misleadeth, whose earthliness enchanteth, whose mockery pleadeth."

Our Girl Florence, who is so unpretentious she gets about with one name and clings to her Brooklyn-bred voice, is to Joe a "Divine Electronic Sorceress! Lorelei and Leprechaun among the Skirt-Disc Jockeys, Whirligigging Disc-Rider Extraordinary!"

Of her voice he says, "Not a rose-bush faintly shaken and by dew drops overtaken from the wings of a bathing bird can surpass the gentle strain from your fluted soft-throated gushing . . ."

Or in short, "Florence, flower on thornless stem."

A little spy work by a friend of the "Morning Star" revealed that "Joe" is a professor at the University of Maryland. Florence reminds him of his daughter, who is now in a convent.

He's still a stranger to Florence, but every day she dedicates a record to him.

Jenkins to Worse in Verse

VERSE was used to bemoan the transmogrification of Bill Jenkins of WTOP who recently doffed his name and his seedy and avuncular manner to become the ever-so-slightly suave Grant Page.

Writes a tearful listener:

O, sisters, bow your heads and weep,
Hang wreaths of crepe and trillium!
Gone, gone to everlasting sleep
Our early dawn Sweet William!

How just-for-usly buttered he
His golden bantam jokes!
How cozily Virginia baked
How one, he, of the folks!

He seemed so comfortably tame,
And as we sipped our mocha
He ne'er de-creamed and sugared same
With that darned "Too Fat Polka!"

Is this the "new look," CBS?
Deprive us of our Billy
To force on us this crassly less
Than Jenkins, Page? How silly!

Grant Page, who suave and Phoenix-like
Leaps lightly from the ashes,
While we, bereaved, our bosoms strike
And break out in red rashes!

We HATE this nineteen forty-eight!
Loathe this atomic age!
Bring back our Bill, and take away
This fair, unwritten Page!

Radio-for-Every-Room Idea to Be Tested Soon

By Wayne Oliver

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—Late this month Hartford, Conn., will become something of a "guinea pig" in the program of radio manufacturers to sell the American public on the idea of a radio for every room.

The radio-in-every room idea is being pushed by the Radio Manufacturers Association as a means of opening up additional markets, inasmuch as more than nine out of ten American homes already have one or more radio sets.

In cooperation with local dealers, the RMA will conduct a "saturation test" in Hartford for two weeks starting February 23. The results of the campaign there will be used in a Nation-wide campaign.

The campaign is only one of a number of methods on which manufacturers are depending to keep demand abreast of the war-expanded production of their plants.

PARTS of this general picture is the RMA's campaign to improve radio repair service for the public. A committee working out plans for "town meetings of radio technicians" to be held in five major cities annually.

The "town meeting" plan calls for close cooperation among manufacturers, jobbers and dealers to improve service standards and eliminate abuses. The plan is based on a successful experiment in Philadelphia.

THE GREAT increase in the number of standard radio stations since the war, the mushroom expansion of frequency modulation and the growth of television are grist for the mills of the people who make audience surveys.

While the expansion of broadcast facilities probably has added many new listeners, to a greater extent it has resulted in a dividing-up of audiences. In communities that formerly had only one station, there now are two, three or four. This raises new problems for sponsors in reaching potential customers in those areas and brings additional demands for surveys of which stations serve which most effectively.

WESTERN UNION'S expansion of its radio relay system may well result in additional television network facilities. The telegraph company is building the system, utilizing radio beams instead of wires or cables, primarily for its own use.

But Western Union also is installing television relays on towers of the New York-Philadelphia leg of its New York-Washington-Pittsburgh radio relay triangle. They are being put in under FCC experimental authorization but could be used to provide an additional Video channel between the two cities.

The most extensive television hook-up now in operation is that of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company from Washington to Boston, with intermediate connections. It uses coaxial cable between Washington and New York and radio relay between New York and Boston. Three other shorter privately-operated relay links are now in use and NBC is building a fourth.

THE LATEST realignment of executive personnel in the Columbia Broadcasting System is the resignation of Mefford R. Runyon as executive vice president of Columbia Records, Inc., a subsidiary. Frank White, formerly vice president and treasurer of CBS, recently moved over as president of Columbia Records, and a number of assignment changes have been made recently in CBS itself.

RCA is convinced that while the public wants low priced television sets, customers will compromise just so far on the size of the picture produced. The company has discontinued production of its lowest price model, a $250 set with a 7-inch picture tube, because the demand was neglible compared with the demand for the next larger model with a 10-inch tube and selling for $75 more.

Of television's immediate future, Poppelle says: "I look to 1948 as the year of telveision's great emergence on a national scale.

Daily Television Newsreel to Start On February 16

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—A three-cornered sponsorship deal has been effected to provide television with a daily network newsreel.

Sponsor is the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., with Fox Movietone News making the films for relay via NBC's Eastern network of five stations. Ultimately it is planned for other parts of the country. Special techniques will be used for the television films, with the stress on closeups.

A Monday through Friday schedule will be started February 16 to New York, Schenectady, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Each program is to run 10 minutes at 7:50 p. m.

"Elly Reads a Story" to Joanne Gilbert, Lisby Coe and Fritz Keeler (clockwise) at her home, 2220 N. Quantico st., Arlington. Youngsters too far away to drop in for the weekday sessions can eavesdrop over WQQW each day at 5 p. m. Mrs. Livingston begins the Walter Brooks' "Freddy" series tomorrow

Art Invades Sports Field Via Television

THERE, there now. What if you didn't guess the identity of Mr. Hush? Or Mrs. Hush? Or Miss Hush? Or Mr. F[illegible]? Or The Man Who Walks?

Maybe you can do better on "Sports Cartoon-a-Quiz." Tuesday nights at 7:30, WMAL-TV telecasts an identification quiz with sketches and cartoons as clues and sports stars as the answers.

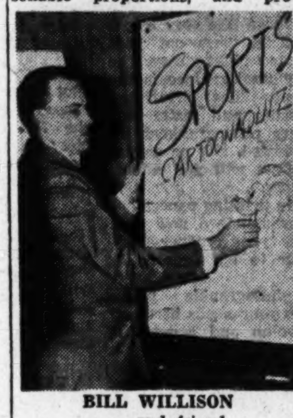
This narrows the field to reasonable proportions, and produces a feeling of success, which any psychologist will tell you beats that failure feeling all hollow.



BILL WILLISON
. . . and friend

The clues are drawn by Bill Willison, promotion manager for WMAL and WMAL-TV, who got into television when slides, title cards, etc. were needed for telecasts.

Somewhat abashed at finding himself wielding his charcoal stick before the cameras, Willison is excused from the chit-chat department by Jim Gibbons, who emcees the show.

NBC Keeping Strings on Its Telecasts

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—One television broadcaster has begun to seek ownership in the visual programs put on the air. At the same time he is endeavoring to prevent their "resale" through an admission fee or other device.

Interpreted, this statement can be taken to cover these points:

1. That NBC feels it has the right of ownership in the original presentation and that it can determine circumstances surrounding reproduction.
2. That it prefers reception on home-type receivers in the home.
3. That it does not approve any form of "admission," such as night club cover or similar charges, where public receivers are on view.
4. That it likewise disapproves the use of "nickel in the slot" type receivers in public places.
5. That the "admission ban" also could be considered as taking in a theater charge for reproduction either from a direct telecast or by a delayed showing where a high-speed film developing process was employed.

Clyde Moody Joins WARL

CLYDE MOODY, lately of Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn., joins WARL on a daily basis tomorrow at 1 p. m.

An occasional visitor to the "Radio Ranchmen" show on WARL, Moody and his fiddling accompanist, Chubby Wise, join the aggregation as regular members now.

Thirty-three years old, Moody is a 6-foot native of the North Carolina hill country.

Wise fiddled with Bill Monroe's Bluegrass Boys on the Opry program before migrating North.

Quiz Kids Begin Hunt For Best Teacher

Friday, March 5, closing date of the Quiz Kids' $6000 best teachers contest of 1948, has been designated as National Teachers Day, with the indorsement of the American Association of School Administrators and the Council of Education.

The best teachers contest opened January 25. A cash prize of $2500 for a year's advanced study will be paid to the winning teacher, with two additional prizes of $1000 each to be awarded to second-place winners. In addition to the cash award the top winner will receive a week's vacation in Chicago as guest of the Quiz Kids.

Cash prizes totaling $1500 will be awarded to students writing the best letters on "The Teacher Who Has Helped Me Most." Letters should be addressed to "Best Teacher Contest, Quiz Kids, Chicago 7, Ill."

Wayland Has Eye on 1200

By Fred M. Hechinger

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Feb. 7.—Little more than a year ago a tourist asked a farmer out here the way to the college. "College?" the man said. "We ain't got no college that I know of." Wayland College was only 10 miles away, but few people other than alumni, students and faculty had heard of it.

Things have changed. If you ask the same farmer today, he is more likely to answer: "You mean OUR college!" Plainview, with its population of 14,000, is beginning to see itself as a university town.

The change came with the appointment of Dr. J. William Marshall as president of this small Baptist institution last May. For a quiet 29 years his predecessor had been satisfied with being a conscientious educator without paying much attention to the tedious details of administration. The college was a modest dot in a country which thrives on vastness.

The first discovery Dr. Marshall made was that there was not even a maintenance staff. And after that omission had been rectified, the chief of the new "department" reported: "So help me! This school doesn't even own a pair of pliers."

There are about 500 students now, but a goal of 1200 has been firmly set. In less than a year a model men's dormitory has been built and ground has been broken for the girls' new quarters. A million dollar building fund will provide additional academic halls and laboratories.

Geared for Speed

OUT here in Texas things move fast. I noticed it first when I saw that the "cleaning up" for expansion had been done with bulldozers. And if President Marshall wants to visit colleagues in distant places, he simply boards his private plane.

But the changes are not only on the surface. "We used to think that Baptist schools ought to train mainly missionaries," said Dr. Marshall. "I want Wayland to be more than a 'preacher factory'—without detracting from the need for well-trained ministers. It is important that everybody who goes out to represent America is a missionary for his country and for humanity."

The new Wayland wants to train men and women who can carry the spirit of brotherhood into the Foreign Service, medicine, industry abroad, and into every profession and endeavor. "For every missionary who goes overseas," I was told, "there are a dozen doctors, business men and diplomats."

With Marshall came a sudden awakening to world-wide obligations. Even "The Jackrabbit," the student newspaper, changed its name to "The Wayland World."

A Record Flight

THE new president brought with him years of international experience on the Baptist Foreign Mission Board. He had worked in China, Japan, Hawaii and in many European countries. It seemed hardly revolutionary to him, therefore, when he and four faculty members took 257 students to Europe last summer; but the air line looked it up and found that Wayland had sent the largest organized group to be flown abroad since the war.

For several months the students toured England, Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium, France and Switzerland. Everywhere they went as scholars ready to learn, rather than as tourists. They brought back two special projects, in addition to many semesters' worth of experience.

Under the direction of Edd T. Hitt, head of the department of visual education, they prepared a collection of slides entitled "Monuments of Peace and War." In startling contrast, this realistic training aid will show the work of schools, hospitals, factories and farms as well as the rubble of bomb-torn cities and the futility of soldiers' cemeteries.

Hitt is now working on the sound track for a film, taken on the same tour, which will show promising instances of brotherhood among men.

This summer the travel program will be expanded, and added to it will be a new feature: students may work for college credit in a combination of touring and learning. Faculty members will deliver lectures and conduct seminars "on the spot"—literally on planes, on boats, amid the aftermath of war and the reconstruction of a still precarious peace.

World Beats Path

BUT international cooperation at Wayland has become a two-way avenue. Already there are foreign students out here in the Panhandle. They have come from Scandinavian countries, South America and China. Professor Yue of China and a sociologist from Denmark are on their way to join the faculty.

"We want to challenge our people to international thought and service," said Dr. Marshall, "by creating a cosmopolitan campus community."

By now the people of Plainview have overcome their surprise at the new president's challenge: "Let's make Wayland of the Plains, Wayland of the World."

"Zeal for American Democracy"

Schools Deal Blow to Communism

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

STUDEBAKER

THE United States Office of Education, charged by Congress to point the way for schools in developing programs that strengthen national security, devotes the current issue of its official magazine, "School Life," to the theme "Zeal for American Democracy."

Publication of the issue was hailed yesterday by United States Education Commissioner John W. Studebaker as "an important step in the program to stimulate the Nation's schools to strengthen the teaching of the American way of life and to identfy and meet the challenge of communism and other forms of totalitarianism."

Contributors include Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), writing on the threat of communism; Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.) on the threat of fascism, and Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations on world peace.

Schools' Role

A STATEMENT by the Citizens Federal Committee on Education, a lay group that advises the Office of Education, defines the role that schools are expected to play. It is:

" . . . to broaden democratic understandings, deepen democratic loyalties, and help to fashion habits of thought, feeling, and conduct which are consonant with democratic ideals.

"An educational program which fails to foster an intelligent and abiding faith in democracy and to translate that faith into a design for living has failed its chief purpose," the statement declares.

"The individual needs democracy as a personal faith consisting of social ideals and convictions, to give him a central purpose which is capable of providing direction to his civic hopes, strivings and actions; to endow him with strength to withstand the conflicting pressures of intellectually and spiritually enervating and restricting propagandas . . ."

Must Have Program

GEORGE S. COUNTS of Columbia University Teachers College, in an article on Soviet education states that if democracy is to win the world struggle with communism it must develop "an educational program which will serve the purpose of freedom as effectively as totalitarian education serves the purposes of tyranny."

Such a program is sketched in for the schools in a speech presented by Studebaker in November before the convention of the National Council for Social Studies and reprinted in the magazine Schools, he said, should:

"Give young people a clear understanding of the essential elements of the American democratic way of life.

"Develop a true appreciation on the part of American youth of their glorious American heritage of freedom wrung from the bitter struggle of centuries.

"Contrast very concretely the philosophy and practices of democracy with those of dictatorship.

"Help young people to recognize the elements of Communist strategy and to be intelligent and skillfull in thwarting that strategy.

"Give them a vision of the possibilities of a future world of freedom, justice, peace and plenty.

"Give them an understanding and appreciation of the ethical and spiritual values, as well as the material benefits, of the American way of life.

"Inspire them with the resolve and with the zeal to do their full part in helping to improve the working of democracy."

Three Insufficiencies

THE Office of Education chief finds that the present social studies programs offered in schools are insufficient in materials and methods of instruction and in time alloted. There also is failure to focus attention on problems of the contemporary and national scene.

Studebaker proposes four years of required work in social studies in grades 9 to 12 and a sequence of required courses in college.

Time in the curriculum must be provided, he believes, even if it means revamping of the entire school program and the lengthening of the school day.

Ad Club for Students

South Orange, N. J., Feb. 7.—To create a closer contact between the advertising profession and students, Seton Hall Colege has reinstituted its Advertising Club to serve as a stepping stone for students into the advertising field.

Leaders in the advertising field appear as guests at the monthly meetings. Evaluation of advertisements, research and layout are among the phases of the club's activities. More than 600 students have been placed in agencies and advertising groups since 1940.

Student Poll at Elmira Votes 3 to 1 for UMT

Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Elmira College students, in a poll conducted by the International Relations Club, voted three to one in favor of universal military training as recommended by the President's Advisory Commission on Universal Training in what is known as the Compton Report.

Students who voted for the proposal gave as reasons the strength of Russia, the possibility of a "push button" war, the fear of another Pearl Harbor, and the hope that American strength would also aid the United Nations.

Mississippi Considering New 150-Year Stamp

By William M. Stuart

MISSISSIPPI is to have a commemorative stamp. The Territory of Mississippi was created by Act of Congress April 7, 1798, and it is possible that the anniversary date might be used for the new issue.

The stamp program appears to be going along briskly, new stamps being mentioned with great frequency. News of some of these issues does not come from the Postoffice Department, as in the case of the Mississippi commemorative. Members of Congress suggesting stamps are not pledged to secrecy, a situation dissapproved by some department officials.

There should be no secrecy in arranging stamp programs, but, by the way of suggestion, why not allow the Postoffice Department the privilege of giving out the stamps under consideration?

10-Cent Canal Zone

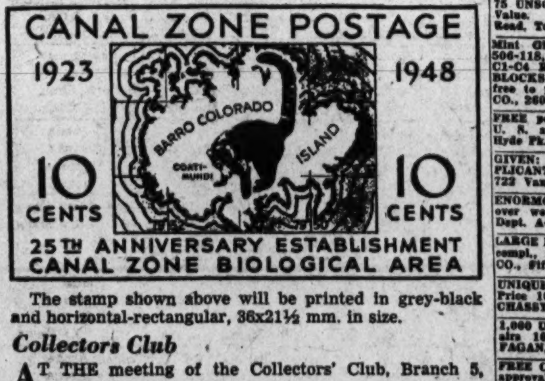
JAMES MARSHALL, Director of Posts, Canal Zone, has announced that a 10-cent ordinary postage stamp will be issued April 17, commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Canal Zone Biological Area on Barro Colorado Island in Gatun Lake. First day cancellations will be serviced, and stamps sold, by the Canal Zone Philatelic Agency, Balboa Heights, Canal Zone. Some 500,000 stamps have been ordered for the first printing.



The stamp shown above will be printed in grey-black and horizontal-rectangular, 36x21½ mm. in size.

Collectors Club

AT THE meeting of the Collectors' Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., Tuesday evening at Pythian Hall, a donation auction was held, 91 lots being sold to net the club's treasury $89. There will be another meeting Tuesday evening at Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw.

The Silver Spring Philatelic Society will meet Thursday evening in the Board Room of the County Building, Silver Spring. Ernest Woodhouse of the Collectors Club will speak.

Mrs. Philip L. Corson, of Plymouth Meeting, Pa., is an expert on old cancellations and can supply practically any cover with just the cancellation desired. More collectors are interested in cancellations than ever before and Mrs. Corson's collection is one of the largest in the country.

The Capital Precancel Club will meet at the home of Joseph L. Taylor, 3420 Newark st. nw., at 7 p.m. tomorrow. There will be plenty of precancel stamps to exhibit, sell or swap.

Paul Thurston MacKie, jr., "Perry Hill," R. F. D. 2, Upper Marlboro, Md., has an excellent cover of the official cachet commemorating the loss of the U. S. S. "Akron" and crew off the New Jersey coast, April 3, 1933, when 73 men were lost and 3 saved.

Fan Mail's Not All Posies

By Sonia Stein

NOT so long ago a greeting card company began turning out ready-made fan mail to be sent to radio stars. Complete with pastel roses, orchids, daisies, bears, kittens, scottie dogs, birds, bees, disheveled gamins and slick chicks, the sentiments were straightforward and folksy. Each one a little gem. To wit:

"I go for your show
I honestly do,
And the best thing about it
Is Y-O-U."

"I like your program, it's lots of fun,
It helps me get my housework done,
It lightens my cares 'n' brightens my day—
In fact—it's swell in every way!"

"You're sure one entertainer
Who is really tops with me,
And each performance that you give
Is grand as it can be."

"Your program's so good 'n' you are too,
I had t' write this note t' you—
T' let you know that I've just made
You number one on my hit parade!"

For fans whose minds bumble along at that speed, grammar askew and thoughts in a rut, the cards were fine. But despite canard to the contrary, all radio fans are not so simple of heart and head.

The literary among them had still to coin their own phrases of love and endearment, admiration and praise. And coin them they did, producing purple prose and verse.

Herewith some recent samples from the mountains of mail that pour into radio stations.

Little Black Diamonds

THE first, from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, to Albert Warner, WOL news chief, was inspired (no other word will do) by a Warner broadcast allegedly describing a travelogue he'd been given by a taxi driver en route to the Capital.

"My Dear Albert:

"On Saturday night, at some inconvenience to myself, I turned on the radio, expecting to hear the mellifluous tones of your voice giving a resume of the week's happenings in Washington. You may judge my intellectual consternation when I found that I was literally being taken for a ride . . . I was constantly aware that while the discourse was supposed to emanate from an anonymous taxicab driver, the voice I heard was the voice of Esau. I mean Albert Warner.

"All of this, Albert, is merely by way of saying that I think you missed your calling. As a rickshaw man in the Orient, you would have made a marvelous success. Any opulent Sassenach world traveler visiting the Orient would employ you by the month, not to push him about, but to recline with him 'neath the shade of a ginkgo tree while you regale him with essential facts concerning the world and the universe; how deep is the sea; how far are the heavens; why the grass is green, and why an infant's eyes are blue . . . to which you could make immediate, if somewhat romantic answer.

'These Feeble Words . . .'

"SUCH talent as you possess should not remain in obscurity and be known to but comparatively few. It deserves recognition of the highest degree; and I felt that I could not permit another sun to set until I had made known to you, through the instrumentality of these feeble words, the deep and durable impression which you made upon me, when, because of the paucity of news, you permitted your listening public to have a glimpse of a far-soaring intellect at work."

Etc., winding up with a luncheon invitation when Lewis could "accumulate the necessary rupees."

Needless to say, Lewis and Warner are old friends.

But Florence, the girl disc jockey, who does the wake-up show on WGAY, has among her admirers a poet whom she has never seen.

Labyrinthine and Rococo

IN FACT, he has seen his "Red-Corpuscled and Freckled Reincarnation of Ishtar . . . Most Blessed Little Lady of Levity and Skylarking" only once, and at a distance, at the Silver Spring carnival this fall.

Joe, as he rather flatly signs himself, wrote 10 pages of coruscant, impassioned, labyrinthine poetry, teeming with classical allusions and all in rococo longhand to the girl "whose coolness inflameth, whose laughter misleadeth, whose earthliness enchanteth, whose mockery pleadeth."

Our Girl Florence, who is so unpretentious she gets about with one name and clings to her Brooklyn-bred voice, is to Joe a "Divine Electronic Sorceress! Lorelei and Leprechaun among the Skirt-Disc Jockeys, Whirligigging Disc-Rider Extraordinary!"

Of her voice he says, "Not a rose-bush faintly shaken and by dew drops overtaken from the wings of a bathing bird can surpass the gentle strain from your fluted soft-throated gushing . . ."

Or in short, "Florence, flower on thornless stem."

A little spy work by a friend of the "Morning Star" revealed that "Joe" is a professor at the University of Maryland. Florence reminds him of his daughter, who is now in a convent.

He's still a stranger to Florence, but every day she dedicates a record to him.

Jenkins to Worse in Verse

VERSE was used to bemoan the transmogrification of Bill Jenkins of WTOP who recently doffed his name and his seedy and avuncular manner to become the ever-so-slightly suave Grant Page.

Writes a tearful listener:

O, sisters, bow your heads and weep,
Hang wreaths of crepe and trillium!
Gone, gone to everlasting sleep
Our early dawn Sweet William!

How just-for-usly buttered he
His golden bantam jokes!
How cozily Virginia baked
How one, he, of the folks!

He seemed so comfortably tame,
And as we sipped our mocha
He ne'er de-creamed and sugared same
With that darned "Too Fat Polka!"

Is this the "new look," CBS?
Deprive us of our Billy
To force on us this crassly less
Than Jenkins, Page? How silly!

Grant Page, who suave and Phoenix-like
Leaps lightly from the ashes,
While we, bereaved, our bosoms strike
And break out in red rashes!

We HATE this nineteen forty-eight!
Loathe this atomic age!
Bring back our Bill, and take away
This fair, unwritten Page!

Radio-for-Every-Room Idea to Be Tested Soon

By Wayne Oliver

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—Late this month Hartford, Conn., will become something of a "guinea pig" in the program of radio manufacturers to sell the American public on the idea of a radio for every room.

The radio-in-every room idea is being pushed by the Radio Manufacturers Association as a means of opening up additional markets, inasmuch as more than nine out of ten American homes already have one or more radio sets.

In cooperation with local dealers, the RMA will conduct a "saturation test" in Hartford for two weeks starting February 23. The results of the campaign there will be used in a Nation-wide campaign.

The campaign is only one of a number of methods on which manufacturers are depending to keep demand abreast of the war-expanded production of their plants.

PARTS of this general picture is the RMA's campaign to improve radio repair service for the public. A committee working out plans for "town meetings of radio technicians" to be held in five major cities annually.

The "town meeting" plan calls for close cooperation among manufacturers, jobbers and dealers to improve service standards and eliminate abuses. The plan is based on a successful experiment in Philadelphia.

THE GREAT increase in the number of standard radio stations since the war, the mushroom expansion of frequency modulation and the growth of television are grist for the mills of the people who make audience surveys.

While the expansion of broadcast facilities probably has added many new listeners, to a greater extent it has resulted in a dividing-up of audiences. In communities that formerly had only one station, there now are two, three or four. This raises new problems for sponsors in reaching potential customers in those areas and brings additional demands for surveys of which stations serve which most effectively.

WESTERN UNION'S expansion of its radio relay system may well result in additional television network facilities. The telegraph company is building the system, utilizing radio beams instead of wires or cables, primarily for its own use.

But Western Union also is installing television relays on towers of the New York-Philadelphia leg of its New York-Washington-Pittsburgh radio relay triangle. They are being put in under FCC experimental authorization but could be used to provide an additional Video channel between the two cities.

The most extensive television hook-up now in operation is that of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company from Washington to Boston, with intermediate connections. It uses coaxial cable between Washington and New York and radio relay between New York and Boston. Three other shorter privately-operated relay links are now in use and NBC is building a fourth.

THE LATEST realignment of executive personnel in the Columbia Broadcasting System is the resignation of Mefford R. Runyon as executive vice president of Columbia Records, Inc., a subsidiary. Frank White, formerly vice president and treasurer of CBS, recently moved over as president of Columbia Records, and a number of assignment changes have been made recently in CBS itself.

RCA is convinced that while the public wants low priced television sets, customers will compromise just so far on the size of the picture produced. The company has discontinued production of its lowest price model, a $250 set with a 7-inch picture tube, because the demand was neglible compared with the demand for the next larger model with a 10-inch tube and selling for $75 more.

Of television's immediate future, Poppelle says: "I look to 1948 as the year of telveision's great emergence on a national scale.

Daily Television Newsreel to Start On February 16

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—A three-cornered sponsorship deal has been effected to provide television with a daily network newsreel.

Sponsor is the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., with Fox Movietone News making the films for relay via NBC's Eastern network of five stations. Ultimately it is planned for other parts of the country. Special techniques will be used for the television films, with the stress on closeups.

A Monday through Friday schedule will be started February 16 to New York, Schenectady, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Each program is to run 10 minutes at 7:50 p. m.

"Elly Reads a Story" to Joanne Gilbert, Lisby Coe and Fritz Keeler (clockwise) at her home, 2220 N. Quantico st., Arlington. Youngsters too far away to drop in for the weekday sessions can eavesdrop over WQQW each day at 5 p. m. Mrs. Livingston begins the Walter Brooks' "Freddy" series tomorrow

Art Invades Sports Field Via Television

THERE, there now. What if you didn't guess the identity of Mr. Hush? Or Mrs. Hush? Or Miss Hush? Or Mr. F[illegible]? Or The Man Who Walks?

Maybe you can do better on "Sports Cartoon-a-Quiz." Tuesday nights at 7:30, WMAL-TV telecasts an identification quiz with sketches and cartoons as clues and sports stars as the answers.

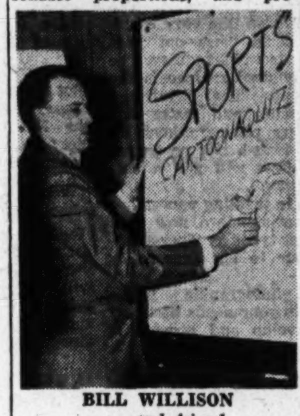
This narrows the field to reasonable proportions, and produces a feeling of success, which any psychologist will tell you beats that failure feeling all hollow.



BILL WILLISON
. . . and friend

The clues are drawn by Bill Willison, promotion manager for WMAL and WMAL-TV, who got into television when slides, title cards, etc. were needed for telecasts.

Somewhat abashed at finding himself wielding his charcoal stick before the cameras, Willison is excused from the chit-chat department by Jim Gibbons, who emcees the show.

NBC Keeping Strings on Its Telecasts

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP).—One television broadcaster has begun to seek ownership in the visual programs put on the air. At the same time he is endeavoring to prevent their "resale" through an admission fee or other device.

Interpreted, this statement can be taken to cover these points:

1. That NBC feels it has the right of ownership in the original presentation and that it can determine circumstances surrounding reproduction.
2. That it prefers reception on home-type receivers in the home.
3. That it does not approve any form of "admission," such as night club cover or similar charges, where public receivers are on view.
4. That it likewise disapproves the use of "nickel in the slot" type receivers in public places.
5. That the "admission ban" also could be considered as taking in a theater charge for reproduction either from a direct telecast or by a delayed showing where a high-speed film developing process was employed.

Clyde Moody Joins WARL

CLYDE MOODY, lately of Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn., joins WARL on a daily basis tomorrow at 1 p. m.

An occasional visitor to the "Radio Ranchmen" show on WARL, Moody and his fiddling accompanist, Chubby Wise, join the aggregation as regular members now.

Thirty-three years old, Moody is a 6-foot native of the North Carolina hill country.

Wise fiddled with Bill Monroe's Bluegrass Boys on the Opry program before migrating North.

Quiz Kids Begin Hunt For Best Teacher

Friday, March 5, closing date of the Quiz Kids' $6000 best teachers contest of 1948, has been designated as National Teachers Day, with the indorsement of the American Association of School Administrators and the Council of Education.

The best teachers contest opened January 25. A cash prize of $2500 for a year's advanced study will be paid to the winning teacher, with two additional prizes of $1000 each to be awarded to second-place winners. In addition to the cash award the top winner will receive a week's vacation in Chicago as guest of the Quiz Kids.

Cash prizes totaling $1500 will be awarded to students writing the best letters on "The Teacher Who Has Helped Me Most." Letters should be addressed to "Best Teacher Contest, Quiz Kids, Chicago 7, Ill."

Wayland Has Eye on 1200

By Fred M. Hechinger

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Feb. 7.—Little more than a year ago a tourist asked a farmer out here the way to the college. "College?" the man said. "We ain't got no college that I know of." Wayland College was only 10 miles away, but few people other than alumni, students and faculty had heard of it.

Things have changed. If you ask the same farmer today, he is more likely to answer: "You mean OUR college!" Plainview, with its population of 14,000, is beginning to see itself as a university town.

The change came with the appointment of Dr. J. William Marshall as president of this small Baptist institution last May. For a quiet 29 years his predecessor had been satisfied with being a conscientious educator without paying much attention to the tedious details of administration. The college was a modest dot in a country which thrives on vastness.

The first discovery Dr. Marshall made was that there was not even a maintenance staff. And after that omission had been rectified, the chief of the new "department" reported: "So help me! This school doesn't even own a pair of pliers."

There are about 500 students now, but a goal of 1200 has been firmly set. In less than a year a model men's dormitory has been built and ground has been broken for the girls' new quarters. A million dollar building fund will provide additional academic halls and laboratories.

Geared for Speed

OUT here in Texas things move fast. I noticed it first when I saw that the "cleaning up" for expansion had been done with bulldozers. And if President Marshall wants to visit colleagues in distant places, he simply boards his private plane.

But the changes are not only on the surface. "We used to think that Baptist schools ought to train mainly missionaries," said Dr. Marshall. "I want Wayland to be more than a 'preacher factory'—without detracting from the need for well-trained ministers. It is important that everybody who goes out to represent America is a missionary for his country and for humanity."

The new Wayland wants to train men and women who can carry the spirit of brotherhood into the Foreign Service, medicine, industry abroad, and into every profession and endeavor. "For every missionary who goes overseas," I was told, "there are a dozen doctors, business men and diplomats."

With Marshall came a sudden awakening to world-wide obligations. Even "The Jackrabbit," the student newspaper, changed its name to "The Wayland World."

A Record Flight

THE new president brought with him years of international experience on the Baptist Foreign Mission Board. He had worked in China, Japan, Hawaii and in many European countries. It seemed hardly revolutionary to him, therefore, when he and four faculty members took 257 students to Europe last summer; but the air line looked it up and found that Wayland had sent the largest organized group to be flown abroad since the war.

For several months the students toured England, Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium, France and Switzerland. Everywhere they went as scholars ready to learn, rather than as tourists. They brought back two special projects, in addition to many semesters' worth of experience.

Under the direction of Edd T. Hitt, head of the department of visual education, they prepared a collection of slides entitled "Monuments of Peace and War." In startling contrast, this realistic training aid will show the work of schools, hospitals, factories and farms as well as the rubble of bomb-torn cities and the futility of soldiers' cemeteries.

Hitt is now working on the sound track for a film, taken on the same tour, which will show promising instances of brotherhood among men.

This summer the travel program will be expanded, and added to it will be a new feature: students may work for college credit in a combination of touring and learning. Faculty members will deliver lectures and conduct seminars "on the spot"—literally on planes, on boats, amid the aftermath of war and the reconstruction of a still precarious peace.

World Beats Path

BUT international cooperation at Wayland has become a two-way avenue. Already there are foreign students out here in the Panhandle. They have come from Scandinavian countries, South America and China. Professor Yue of China and a sociologist from Denmark are on their way to join the faculty.

"We want to challenge our people to international thought and service," said Dr. Marshall, "by creating a cosmopolitan campus community."

By now the people of Plainview have overcome their surprise at the new president's challenge: "Let's make Wayland of the Plains, Wayland of the World."

"Zeal for American Democracy"

Schools Deal Blow to Communism

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

STUDEBAKER

THE United States Office of Education, charged by Congress to point the way for schools in developing programs that strengthen national security, devotes the current issue of its official magazine, "School Life," to the theme "Zeal for American Democracy."

Publication of the issue was hailed yesterday by United States Education Commissioner John W. Studebaker as "an important step in the program to stimulate the Nation's schools to strengthen the teaching of the American way of life and to identfy and meet the challenge of communism and other forms of totalitarianism."

Contributors include Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), writing on the threat of communism; Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.) on the threat of fascism, and Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations on world peace.

Schools' Role

A STATEMENT by the Citizens Federal Committee on Education, a lay group that advises the Office of Education, defines the role that schools are expected to play. It is:

" . . . to broaden democratic understandings, deepen democratic loyalties, and help to fashion habits of thought, feeling, and conduct which are consonant with democratic ideals.

"An educational program which fails to foster an intelligent and abiding faith in democracy and to translate that faith into a design for living has failed its chief purpose," the statement declares.

"The individual needs democracy as a personal faith consisting of social ideals and convictions, to give him a central purpose which is capable of providing direction to his civic hopes, striving and actions; to endow him with strength to withstand the conflicting pressures of intellectually and spiritually enervating and restricting propagandas . . ."

Must Have Program

GEORGE S. COUNTS of Columbia University Teachers College, in an article on Soviet education states that if democracy is to win the world struggle with communism it must develop "an educational program which will serve the purpose of freedom as effectively as totalitarian education serves the purposes of tyranny."

Such a program is sketched in for the schools in a speech presented by Studebaker in November before the convention of the National Council for Social Studies and reprinted in the magazine Schools, he said, should:

"Give young people a clear understanding of the essential elements of the American democratic way of life.

"Develop a true appreciation on the part of American youth of their glorious American heritage of freedom wrung from the bitter struggle of centuries.

"Contrast very concretely the philosophy and practices of democracy with those of dictatorship.

"Help young people to recognize the elements of Communist strategy and to be intelligent and skillfull in thwarting that strategy.

"Give them a vision of the possibilities of a future world of freedom, justice, peace and plenty.

"Give them an understanding and appreciation of the ethical and spiritual values, as well as the material benefits, of the American way of life.

"Inspire them with the resolve and with the zeal to do their full part in helping to improve the working of democracy."

Three Insufficiencies

THE Office of Education chief finds that the present social studies programs offered in schools are insufficient in materials and methods of instruction and in time alloted. There also is failure to focus attention on problems of the contemporary and national scene.

Studebaker proposes four years of required work in social studies in grades 9 to 12 and a sequence of required courses in college.

Time in the curriculum must be provided, he believes, even if it means revamping of the entire school program and the lengthening of the school day.

Student Poll at Elmira Votes 3 to 1 for UMT

Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Elmira College students, in a poll conducted by the International Relations Club, voted three to one in favor of universal military training as recommended by the President's Advisory Commission on Universal Training in what is known as the Compton Report.

Students who voted for the proposal gave as reasons the strength of Russia, the possibility of a "push button" war, the fear of another Pearl Harbor, and the hope that American strength would also aid the United Nations.

Ad Club for Students

South Orange, N. J., Feb. 7.—To create a closer contact between the advertising profession and students, Seton Hall College has reinstituted its Advertising Club to serve as a stepping stone for students into the advertising field.

Leaders in the advertising field appear as guests at the monthly meetings. Evaluation of advertisements, research and layout are among the phases of the club's activities. More than 600 students have been placed in agencies and advertising groups since 1940.

Mississippi Considering New 150-Year Stamp

By William M. Stuart

MISSISSIPPI is to have a commemorative stamp. The Territory of Mississippi was created by Act of Congress April 7, 1798, and it is possible that the anniversary date might be used for the new issue.

The stamp program appears to be going along briskly, new stamps being mentioned with great frequency. News of some of these issues does not come from the Postoffice Department, as in the case of the Mississippi commemorative. Members of Congress suggesting stamps are not pledged to secrecy, a situation dissapproved by some department officials.

There should be no secrecy in arranging stamp programs, but, by the way of suggestion, why not allow the Postoffice Department the privilege of giving out the stamps under consideration?

10-Cent Canal Zone

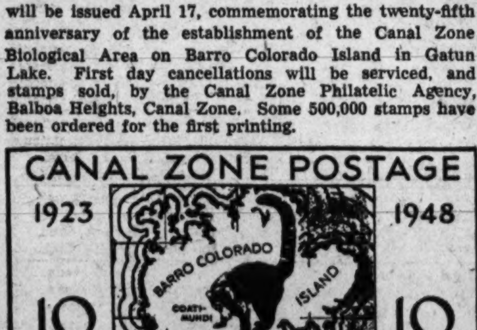
JAMES MARSHALL, Director of Posts, Canal Zone, has announced that a 10-cent ordinary postage stamp will be issued April 17, commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Canal Zone Biological Area on Barro Colorado Island in Gatun Lake. First day cancellations will be serviced, and stamps sold, by the Canal Zone Philatelic Agency, Balboa Heights, Canal Zone. Some 500,000 stamps have been ordered for the first printing.



The stamp shown above will be printed in grey-black and horizontal-rectangular, 36x21½ mm. in size.

Collectors Club

AT THE meeting of the Collectors' Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., Tuesday evening at Pythian Hall, a donation auction was held, 91 lots being sold to net the club's treasury $89. There will be another meeting Tuesday evening at Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw.

The Silver Spring Philatelic Society will meet Thursday evening in the Board Room of the County Building, Silver Spring. Ernest Woodhouse of the Collectors Club will speak.

Mrs. Philip L. Corson, of Plymouth Meeting, Pa., is an expert on old cancellations and can supply practically any cover with just the cancellation desired. More collectors are interested in cancellations than ever before and Mrs. Corson's collection is one of the largest in the country.

The Capital Precancel Club will meet at the home of Joseph L. Taylor, 3420 Newark st. nw., at 7 p.m. tomorrow. There will be plenty of precancel stamps to exhibit, sell or swap.

Paul Thurston MacKie, jr., "Perry Hill," R. F. D. 2, Upper Marlboro, Md., has an excellent cover of the official cachet commemorating the loss of the U. S. S. "Akron" and crew off the New Jersey coast, April 3, 1933, when 73 men were lost and 3 saved.

It's 100 for Rails and the West

This is one of the 1320 passenger trains which reach or leave Chicago every day. It's a far cry from the log-burning "Pioneer" which made an eight-mile trip back in 1848

By William J. Conway

CHICAGO, Feb. 7 (AP).—The railroads and the West are rounding out a century of going places together.

The vast region beyond the Great Lakes, now crisscrossed by 188,525 miles of tracks, was marked only by trails when the iron horse began to rumble across the prairies.

The first trial run from Chicago was made by the "Pioneer," a spidery, 10-ton, third-hand, log-burning locomotive that had been brought to town on a sailing brig. It pulled a single car 5 miles out and back on crude strap rails—lengths of Norway pine topped by strips of oak and ribbons of iron.

That was October 25, 1848. Horse-riding Abraham Lincoln, approaching the end of his first and only term in Congress, was in Petersburg, Ill., campaign for Stephen T. Logan, the Whig candidate to succeed him.

Steam rail transportation, then in its second decade in the United States, was challenging river boat, canal barge, stage coach and covered wagon. There were less than 8000 miles of tracks in the Nation, mostly along the Atlantic Coast.

A New Glitter

THE Northern Cross Railroad had a right of way in Illinois, built eastward from Meredosia to Springfield. Some of Chicago's 20,000 citizens figured the city's first rail outlet also should point East.

But the "manifest destiny" was in the West. The Southwest and Northwest had just been taken into the United States territorial fold. The Mormons had reached the Great Salt Lake. Reports of the discovery of gold at John A. Sutter's place in California had been heard.

The trail-blazing Galena and Chicago Union Railroad had been authorized to build "on toward, if not to, the Mississippi River near the lead mines of Galena, Ill., and Dubuque, Iowa." It had not ventured very far when, quite by chance, it encountered the pattern of the future.

The Galena and Chicago Union took over other lines, the network took on the name of the Chicago and North Western Railway, continued to fan out, and now covers 9632 miles.

Century of Progress

THE North Western is making plans to observe the centennial in 1948 in cities in its system. The program will mark a century of progress in the West.

The people have increased and multiplied. So have the iron horses. The territory entered by the old Galena road, with a hand-me-down locomotive, 25 cars and 10 miles of track, now is served by 392 railroads of all types, including 51 class 1 carriers.

Chicago, the jumping-off point, has become the world's greatest rail hub. Twenty-two trunk lines radiate from the city, and 1320 passenger trains arrive or leave each day.

What about the future?

"The years ahead hold rich promise for the West and South," says C. E. Johnston, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives. "Population and industry, which move hand in hand, have been fanning out from the North Atlantic States at an accelerated pace during the last decade."

At the Bridge Table

Team of Four Saves Face for D. C. Players

By Marian H. Barre

DISTRICT players had an undistinguished record up until the last event of the Maryland State Championships in Baltimore last weekend. Bad luck pursued them—but the day was saved by the local team of Lewis Tubbs, J. J. Parish, Henry Stearman, and C. C. Johnson, which finished in a tie for second-place in the match for foursomes. The position rates high master-point awards.

It was a high-powered field. The winning team boasted two Life Masters, Robert Appleyard and Ambrose Casner of New York, who teamed with Mrs. Ruth Goldberg and S. J. Lowery, Philadelphians. Members of the foursome tied by the District line-up were Waldemar von Zedtwitz, John R. Crawford, General Robert Gill, and Clagett Bowie. A New Yorker, Von Zedtwitz is Life Master No. 2, bowing only to Charles Goren; Crawford, of Philadelphia, ranks eleventh among the immortals. The other pair are topnotch Baltimoreans.

Other Maryland championships were won by—Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McCorquedale, of Wilmington, open title; Mrs. Edward Behrend-I. H. Fisher, Baltimore; mixed pairs; Mrs. W. W. Birnstock-Louise Lansdale, Baltimore, women's pairs; Arthur Schlessinger-James Hunter, Baltimore, men's pairs.

In the last-named event J. G. Stone and Miller Roberts, both of this city, finished third, with Johnson and Parish fifth on the honor list. Best local showing in women's pairs went to Mrs. Dora Schwatz, in fifth place with Mrs. I. Zeskind, of Baltimore. Mrs. Frederick Vosburgh and Leroy Thurtell were among the first ten in the mixed. J. G. Fletcher and William Lingley were top Capitalites in the opens.

There is a tournament on this weekend at Fort Monroe, Va. A few District fans planned to compete today in the team match.

A NEW policy was inaugurated by the Federal Bridge League on February 3, when members' friends were allowed to participate in an open pair match, run concurrently with the usual team-of-four game. Heretofore, Federal games have been closed to nonmembers except on "last Tuesday" master-point monthly contests.

The League's second annual open pair championship will be played on February 23 at Pierce Hall, 15th and Harvard sts. nw. It is a two-session event, first round beginning at 1 p. m.; starting time for the finals will be announced from the floor. A special one-round open game will be held in the evening, beginning at 7. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rosson are the defending title-holders. Coming on a holiday, the game is expected to draw a large field.

Another holiday event is the Capital City Chess Club's monthly master-point duplicate at 8 p. m. on February 14, at Hotel Gordon. Only members, and holders of guest cards may compete. The club's recently-completed open pair championship was won by Mrs. Marianne Boschan and Mrs. Frederick Eberson. Played through two sessions, the winners finished second in each round but nevertheless managed to build up a ponderous lead over runners-up John Moore and Merrill Flood. First round leaders were Mrs. K. Moorman and William Million, Miss Kathleen McNutt and Dr. J. G. Wooley topped the field in the finals.

At La Salle Studios, master-point awards for the past month went to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Seabourne, north-south, and to Mrs. Henry A. Walker and Miss Lucille Berger, in the other position.

Britain Is Warned Of Highway Breakdown

London, Feb. 7 (AP).—Britain will face a breakdown in highway transportation if proposed reductions in maintenance forces are carried out, the British Road Federation said in a letter to government ministers.

Monetary grants for road maintenance, as well as the labor force, have been reduced because of the economic crisis.

The federation said the cuts will prove "disastrous to the social and economic structure of the country."

Gas Shortage Booms Spain's Black Market

Madrid, Feb. 7 (AP).—Spain's current gasoline shortage, apparently destined to become more acute, already has pushed black market prices to new record highs of from 7 to 30 pesetas (70 cents to $3 at official exchange rates) per liter.

While far from plentiful, the black market gasoline supply appears to be increasing in a direct ratio to the diminishing supply available legally. Present black market prices are from two to three time higher than those during wartime rationing.

The government has extended the ban on the use of privately owned autos to three and four days weekly. All privately owned autos up to 18 horsepower are off the streets Saturdays, Sunday and Mondays. Those with more than 18 horsepower must remain idle these days and also on Wednesdays. Only physicians, diplomats and high government officials are exempt.

Some officials have predicted food and fuel shortages in the larger cities because trucks have been immobilized through lack of fuel.

The taxi scarcity, which is serious in Madrid, Barcelona and Sevilla, has been aggravated because drivers have found they can make more money by selling their gasoline than by carrying passengers.

Five Sun Valley Ski Meets Topped By U. S. Nationals

SUN VALLEY, Idaho, Feb. 7.—This Sawtooth Mountain sports resort has a full schedule of ski meets for the season that will be climaxed March 27 and 28 by the Harriman Cup Races, combined with the United States National Championships in downhill, slalom and the combined.

Tourneys began December 28 with the sixth annual Sun Valley Intercollegiates. Other meets include the seventh annual Sun Valley Western Interstate Meet held January 3 to 25, the Sun Valley Ski Club Tourney February 22 and, following the combined Harriman and Nationals, the fifth annual Idaho American Legion Junior Championships on April 3 and 4.

Last year the Harriman races drew contestants from France, Switzerland, Norway and Canada as well as from every section of the United States. Sun Valley expects foreign stars again may compete in the meet this winter, after the Olympics are over. American skiers are expected to be back from the Olympics in time for the Sun Valley Ski Club meet.

Science to Study Wild Region Of Northern Australia Corner

AN EXPEDITION to Arnhem Land, little known corner of northern Australia, to study the aborigines and their environment was announced yesterday by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society.

The society and the Smithsonian Institution will join with the Commonwealth of Australia in the project. Its purpose, Dr. Grosvenor said, is to fill in the blank space in human knowledge represented by this Maine-size aboriginal reserve east of Darwin.

The American and Australian scientists will take the field in Arnhem Land at the close of the rainy season in March. They will study the primitive natives and the mammal, bird, fish, insect, plant and marine life throughout the dry season, which normally ends late in October.

Water Approach Necessary

NOWHERE in the northeastern corner of Australia's Northern Territory which contains Arnhem Land are there charted trails passable for trucks or automobiles. The expedition's approach to the reserve will be by small schooner to coastal stations on Van Diemen Gulf, the Arafura Sea and the Gulf of Carpentaria. Natives will be enlisted as porters for journeys inland.

Of five bases selected for the expedition's use, one especially suited for study of marine life is on Groote Eylandt (Big Island) just off Arnhem Land's east coast in the Gulf of Carpentaria.

Other bases are at the heads of navigation of mainland streams, where Christian missions established early in the century have been allowed to remain. These are lonely exceptions to the ban on the white man in the aboriginal reserves.

Arnhem Land corresponds in its tropic-zone position to Nicaragua. Its winter dry-season climate might be compared to summer in the southern United States. Named for the yacht of its Dutch discoverers in 1623, the region remains virtually unmapped and unexplored except from the air. Although a few exploring parties have penetrated inland, their reports are meager, scientifically.

Stone-Age Civilization

ONLY in recent years have the aboriginal tribes been absolved to some degree of a mythical reputation as bad men, killers and cannibals. They can be warlike on slight provocation, but are now described as generally friendly, extremely wary and difficult to approach except by persons they know.

The Arnhem Land natives have never developed the bow and arrow. They rely on a variety of wooden spears and throwing sticks to hunt, fish and safeguard their way of life against intruders.

True stone-age wild men, they have lived the same primitive life down the centuries amid stone-age birds, beasts and reptiles. Mixed blood is evident only on coasts where equally wild Papuans have come across from nearby New Guinea.

Only these nomadic natives are geared for travel in this land of varied terrain. Mangroves fringe countless bays and estuaries infested with crocodiles, snakes, leeches and mosquitoes. Tall spear-grass borders flood areas, quagmires and tortuous streams. A succession of dense scrub forests, deep watercourses and low ranges often rising in sheer, rocky bluffs thwart inland progress.

But It's Doubtful

Ghosts May Be Haunting Old Octagon

SOME FOLKS may think that ghosts creak through the Octagon—the historic dwelling which once served as the White House.

But James D. Cypress, the Negro caretaker who has lived there nearly 26 of his 63 years, protests that "they never bother" him. His wife, Carrie, feels much the same way.

Cypress works for the American Institute of Architects, which maintains headquarters in the eight-sided brick mansion where President James Madison and his wife, Dolly, sought refuge when the British burned the White House during the War of 1812.

The caretaker, as well as institute officials, get frequent inquiries about the storied ghosts who reputedly dwell there.

Versions Don't Agree

NO TWO persons can agree on the legends of the Octagon ghost or ghosts. (One school of haunted thought claims there is a solitary ghost, while another maintains with equal lack of authority that there are two.)

Nobody seems to know whether the wraiths were supposed to frequent the place back in the days when Madison signed the Treaty of Ghent, ending the war between the United States and Britain, in the circular room of the residence.

According to the legends, both ghosts were daughters of Col. John Tayloe, reputedly intimate friend of George Washington. The first President is said to have prevailed upon Tayloe to build his winter residence here. The Octagon was the result.

London Hotels Drop Fight on Tipping

London, Feb. 7 (AP).—Two of London's biggest hotels, the Regent Palace and the Strand Palace, have given up a 38-year struggle to abolish tipping.

The management of the hotels, which are jointly owned, said it couldn't be done.

And the Regent Palace changed its cable address, which was: "Untippable Piccy."

Neither Deck Chairs Nor Saddles Empty

ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 7.—February vacationists are enjoying a full program of events plus exhilarating sea air.

The city's auditorium has been turned over to winter sports, with figure and public skating daily and Eastern League ice hockey on Friday and Saturday nights. Professional basketball holds the spotlight on Tuesday nights, with pro boxing on the Thursday evening calendar. The latter two events are staged in the main ballroom, which has a capacity of 5000.

Horseback riding on the beach (see below), roller chairs on the boardwalk and sun basking in deck chairs on both beach and hotel mezzanine roofs (above) are also enjoyed at this time of year.

The new year finds a majority of the beachfront hotels and a number of avenue houses staging special programs. The boardwalk and adjacent avenues are lighted by thousands of lamps to give the Wooden Way a festive air.

Travel in Virginia Sets Record of 132 Million

PEOPLE who traveled in Virginia last year doubtless will be delighted and astounded to know that they set a new record of 132 million dollars worth of business for the State. The data about the 132 million comes from the Virginia Conservation Commission, which says the 1947 record mark compares with a take of 116 million in 1946 and 100 even in 1941 . . . John J. Kay writes rather breathlessly from Wildwood, N. J., to say that that upstanding city will enter the big outdoor sports show to be held indoors here next month. John says the Wildwood-by-the-Sea booth has been painted, hammered, squinted at and generally pushed into shape to make for a very sharp appearance . . . "The way to see Europe is from an armchair!" it says here in a note from Tony Hamilton's Lanseair Travel Service. That's not my idea of how to see Europe, but I guess that's neither here nor there. Anyway, Tony has two tours lined up for people heading East—one is a 14-day trip for Catholics in Italy which starts at Milan and includes an audience with the Pope. All you have to do is get to Milan. The other is a 21-day jog which leaves Paris and rambles into Italy, Switzerland and Austria before calling it a jaunt.

THE FORMER ESTATE of Alfred Lord Tennyson (In the spring a young man's—) is being fixed up into a colony to accommodate tourists, according to Thos. Cook & Sons. The estate, which is on the Isle of Wight, is "destined to become a literary shrine comparable to Stratford-on-Avon," T. Cook says. And the reply rings down, Excelsior! , , , Here's another note addressing me as "you fellows." Curious thing. This one's from Bill Sharpe, the old Tarheel, and speaks highly of Fontana Village, N. C.

IT'S ONLY an eight-minute walk from any Pinehurst, N. C., hotel to the area's three famous golf courses . . . If any of the gadgets on your car don't work, here's your chance to take it up directly with the front office. The Automobile Accessories Manufacturers of America are opening a four-day gabfest in Atlantic City tomorrow . . . Denmark, like everybody else, is beckoning the tourist. Hotels in Copenhagen and other cities are keeping hotel rooms available for travelers, in return for which they get a larger food ration than that accorded the Danish public . . . The National Sportsmen's Show opens in New York next Saturday . . . The Reefs Beach Club on Christian Bay, Bermuda, is open and operating . . . The Canadian Pacific is shelling out 31 million round ones for new diesel locomotives and new freight and passenger cars this year. Among all the new stuff will be three cabooses with bay windows—instead of the cupola topside. CP wants to find out if freight trains can be handled as well from lookout posts on the sides of cars as from those on top. (Betcha they won't be able to spot the bimbos as well.)

ANOTHER MAP. A new official State highway map of South Carolina is available. It's 16 by 18 inches, with routes and things on one side and photographs on the other. You write to the Highway Department in Columbia to get it . . . Down in Howey-in-the-Hills (that's just wonderful), Fla., they're having a bass contest, and it's not for Pinza or people with large violins. It's for fishermen and a cup, yet, is involved. It will be donated by the Floridan Country Club for the biggest (or maybe it's the fastest—says here the bass are running) fish caught. . . . A set of rules for trailer-park management thas been drawn up by the Trailer Coach Manufacturers Association. It suggests things like a 5-mile speed limit in the park, uniform parking, registration of tenants and such. Just in case you were thinking of opening up a trailer park . . . Woody Thompson, my far-from-private operative in Miami Beach, says accommodations are still plentiful (that's what he says, so help me), that season business is somewhat disappointing, that the mutuel handle at the tracks is slightly off, and that tourists are as numerous as ever but are keeping some of their dough in the sock.

THEY'RE DIGGING around at an old stone building in Newport, R. I., in an effort to prove it the earliest Christian Church in the Western Hemisphere. The Preservation Society of Newport, which apparently finds time hanging heavy on its hands, thinks it was built by Norsemen more than 100 years before Columbus established that beachhead on San Salvador. . . . Stand by for some din, men. The Hamilton Wright Organization of New York has been retained by the government of Puerto Rico to whack the tubs in a big publicity howl . . . The tenth annual Florida-to-Nassau yacht race starts at noon Tuesday from Miami. It's 186 miles and takes about 36 hours.

Just for the record, there are five Sundays this month and that's very good going for a February. Probably won't happen again for eons. O. B. H.

Home of Pirate LaFitte Is Sought as a Shrine

GALVESTON, Tex., (U.P.).—The home of Jean LaFitte, one of the last of the freebooters in the Gulf of Mexico and a man whom time has softened from pirate to legendary figure, is slated to become a historical center.

The old building has been requested by the Galveston Historical Society. The society asked the city to waive tax claims accumulated over the years and to convert the home into a historic center and recreation area for underprivileged children.

LaFitte, with his brother, Pierre, came to the Galveston area after the Battle of New Orleans, in which they and their followers played a prominent part in the defense of the Bayou City.

After the battle, the two outlawed Frenchmen were restored to citizenship by the American Government. The life of respectability paled on them, however, and they set up their smuggling and pirate band again on the Texas coast.

It was during that period that LaFitte maintained his home in Galveston. A pugnacious American Navy kept close tab on the activities of the LaFittes and finally the commander of an American war vessel gave the pirates notice to vacate.

In a letter to the city commissioners, the society explained that W. L. Moody, jr., had acquired the property on a foreclosure a few years ago. It was found that the delinquent taxes amounted to more than its utilitarian value, and Moody let the State foreclose.

The redemption period has expired and Moody has offered to quit-claim the property to the Galveston Historical Society, providing the State, county and city will remit the delinquent taxes.

Trip to Africa Can Be Part Of Florida Visit

Vero Beach, Fla., Feb. 7.—At least in the sense in which continents are distinguished by their plants and trees, a trip to Africa is now possible in a visit to McKee Jungle Gardens here, where the flowers, trees, shrubs and even some of the soil of Africa have been transplanted in a natural Florida jungle on the brink of the vast Indian River.

Not only African treasures of nature, but Latin American, native Floridan, Australian, Oriental and South Sea blooms and plants grow in a lush extravagance at McKee Gardens.

Most impressive feature this year is a display of rare orchids growing out of doors over many acres of dense forest. Orchids, cultured through years of indoor research, now growing in unbelievable variety outside—draping their graceful forms from trees, branches and stumps in the moist tropical depths of McKee Jungle Gardens.

More Power

It is estimated that a modern steamboat will use more power in crossing the Atlantic than was used in the construction of the Great Pyramid in Egypt.

Highest and Lowest

Highest and lowest points in the United States are within 60 miles of each other in California, where Mount Whitney rises 14,496 feet above sea level and Death Valley sinks 276 feet below it.
